THE SAGACITY OF HENS. Chief Christenbury Tells of An Interesting Incident in the Life of a Stolen Chicken—An Old Sighting Hen Was Taken From Her Nest by Jim Longcorier But When Returned to Her Own Nest Went to Her Nest—Another Bad Chicken Rogue in Limbo—The Notorious Jim Hemphill to Be Tried—Mack Earnhardt's squirrel rooster.

"Small bits of testimony make a strong case sometimes," said Chief Christenbury, at the police station last night.

"Jim Longcorier, a notorious chicken thief for three years term on the chargin' for stealing chickens and an old hen convicted him."

"That's interesting," said a reporter, who had gone to the Tombs, to look in on the unfortunates.

"It was like this. We knew for a long time that a negro was raiding hen houses nightly in a certain section of the city and getting chickens by the dozen. We got wind of him here and there but could not get on his trail. One morning while prowling in the Wriston woods, John Porter and myself came upon an empty sack that contained chicken feathers.

We smell a mouse. The next day we went back to the same place and found three well feathered sacks.

"That was more than a clue. We slipped out before day the following morning and lay for the thief, but he did not show up, yet, when it was light we went back about us, we discovered that he had been there and gone. On the way to town we got on track of him. We found three stolen hens in the possession of an old negro woman, who had bought them from a colored man whose name she did not know. We took the hens regardless of vigorous protests from the negro, who had come by them honestly, but told her that she would get pay for them if she would let us know the next time the same ducky called and she promised and was faithful to it, for the following day we got a message to appear and we did so and got Jim Longcorier.

"But our evidence was not as convincing as we desired it to be. No one could be perfectly certain about the identity of the chickens. It was here that the old hen came to the rescue. A street car conductor, who had lost three chickens among them a sitting hen, felt almost certain that three of the fowls in Longcorier's possession were his and the police officers let him take them home. Within a very few minutes after the chickens were dropped in the yard the sitting hen was back on her nest, clucking and fussing because she had been sold. "That little incident convinced us that Jim Longcorier was the right man. We massaged our evidence and sent him to the roads for a long term.

"We are going to do what we can to put Jim behind the bars. He belongs. We fall positive that he has been doing a flourishing business in chickens for some time. He ran a dray every day and did not create any suspicion when he drove through the city with all about us, he belongs. He must have handled several hundred fowls within a very short time. We believe that he had pals and they had a hand in thefts of cotton."

"Talking about chickens," said Mr. Henry Muss, who had heard the story of the chief, "they have more sense than one would believe.

"You know Mack Earnhardt, the patrolman, has a squirrel rooster?"

"A squirrel rooster? What is that?"

"You know what a squirrel dog is?"

"Yes, he trees squirrels," said the reporter, "but what about the chicken?"

"Mack's chicken trees squirrels."

"What you giving us?" hissed a chorus of voices.

"Straight goods," said Mr. Muss. "Yes, sir, the rooster, one that Mr. Frank M. Shannonhouse raised on his poultry farm, goes right after a squirrel. Mack says that if he catches he knows that the squirrel has been about there but if he crows frequently and vigorously you can get your gun for he's on the tree at that very moment."

"You say that Mr. Shannonhouse raised this rooster?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, sir, and I think he is a wyan-dotte—pure white wyan-dotte."

"That'll do, Mr. Muss, you may stand aside," said Chief Christenbury.

"It's so all right," said Mr. Mussed.

Harrison Williams Will Go Well. Rufe Williams, colored, came back from Salisbury, yesterday, and brought news about his brother, Harrison, who was beaten and robbed Monday night. It is believed that Harrison will be all right soon, although his head is badly bunged up. He was the victim of an attack made by Claude Boyden and Willie Fisher, two young negroes, who saw him flourishing a handful of money. So soon as Harrison is able to attend court the negroes will have to answer the charges of highway robbery Mayor Boyden.

Harrison Williams is considered a good negro. He has many white friends here, where he has worked most of his life.

Promises to Give Away $5. Col. W. A. Peters has announced that he will give away $5 cash money at his skating rink to-night. How the ingenious Colonel proposes to do this and what people will be required to go to gain this free spot, has not been disclosed. The statement is given out that every one buying an admission ticket will have a chance for all or a part of the money. Besides this inducement to-night Col. Peters has arranged for extra attractions for the rest of the week in order to stimulate the interest in his already very popular place of amusement.

The materials are white and drab coutil, also made in white batiste, with hose supporters on front and sides. Trimmed with lace and ribbon. Sizes 18 to 30. Price.....$1.50.

W. B. Erect Form Corsets For the perfect and imperfect figures. Its lines are your lines. We have the special style meant just for you. The W. B. Nuform Corsets are cozy, modish and shape garments in which every dictate of fashion is apparent. They inflict no strain on abdomen or bust—allow full freedom to the lungs, place all the pressure of lacing upon the hips and hold the figure erect. Made with the latest high bust shape—and the new nipped-in waist. A different model for each different sort of figure. Prices start at $1.00. McColl's New December Patterns, Fashion Sheets and Magazines.

Nuform Model 403. This corset is designed to give that "chicness" and charm of figure of which the Gibson girl is the chief exponent. Suitable for either average or slender types. This model is long above the waist, producing a perfectly straight effect down the front of the figure. Made of white coutil, also in white batiste. Trimmed with lace and ribbon. Hose supporters front and sides. Sizes 18 to 30. Price.....$1.00.
