NEGRO DRIVER'S TROUBLE,

The elements were very unfriendly last night to George McAfee, a wellknown negro hack driver. He was not able to tell his story after it happened, but those who had to deal with him declare that George got himself into narrow straits sometime after night came on. He was found by officers, who responded to a call, lying in a ditch on South Cedar street extension, dead drunk and half drowned, about 9 o'clock, and 100 yards away stood his horse hitched to the broken safts of his had-been carriage The mud was shoe-mouth deep, and George had evidently dragged himself through the mire until he had exhausted himself.

He was entirely too drunk to know St. Peter's, corner North Tryon and when the officers came after him, or Sunday school and rector's Bible class to secure much evidence of what had at 3:30; evening prayer and sermon at happened, and there appeared to be St. John's Chapel, North Graham mystery to the recorder to-morrow morning.
