Salisbury Has a Dry Day.

Special to The Observer. Salisbury, Nov. 28 .- Salisbury was saintly and sightly this Thanksgiving Day with pretty women going and coming, the churches wide open and the lid down tight over the business portion. The men were out gunning for the esculent rabbit and the most Christmas-like order prevailed. The saloon men and wholesalers yesterday entered into a compact to shut down and Saliebury was very dry to-day by virtue of men who habitually vote the wet ticket. A report was started by an evil-minded man that Salisbury whiskey men shut up shop because there was such a heavy draft from Charlotte yesterday that local dealers could not honor it. The mere fact that 3,500 bottles came back here for replenishing and 16 small barrels in another order lent testimony to the suspicion that the oil of gladness was running low. But like the banks, the bars were equal to all calls and when Spencer, Nov. 28 .- Mr. B. F. Stev- the pure-in-heart abroad called for corn they were not forced to take "scrip."
