> Jefferson, the Moralist Macon Telegraph.

Thomas Jefferson was so renowned for his wise sayings that he was called the Sage of Monticello. One of his sayings, taken from a new book called "The Political Opinions of Thomas Jefferson," by John Wal-ter Wayland, of the University of Virginia, reads as follows:
"I rejoice as a moralist at the pros-wine by our national Legislature. is an error to view a tax on liquer as merely a tax on the rich.

It is a porhibition of its use to the middling class of our citizens, and a condemnation of them to the poison of whiskey, which is desolating their homes. No nation is drunken where the dearness of wine substitute ardent spirits as the common beverage. It is, in truth, the only anti-dote to the bane of whiskey. Fit but the duty at the rate of other mer-chandise, and we can drink wine here as cheap as we do grog; and who will not prefer it?"
