

VETERAN WITH HISTORY DEEDS.

Mr. John McGrath, who fought with Custer against the Sioux Indians in 1876 and was the only surviving member of his brigade, dies at the age of 78 years.

A soldier by profession tried in the fiercest tests of martial conflict, possessed of the valor and sturdy manhood inherent in the unmixt Irish blood which flowed through his veins, passed over the river yesterday on his native country's gala day, when Mr. John McGrath, of Irish birth, veteran of the Indian and civil wars and said to be the only member of the famous Custer brigade who survived the annihilation visited on it by the savages in 1876, at the battle of the Little Big Horn, died at 6 o'clock at his home, No. 7 East Stonehill street, twenty-eight years the loyal Irishman and as loyal American lived, dying on St. Patrick's day.

Mr. McGrath's career was a most unusual one, touched at many places by the color of romance, lived of the episodes which flowed through his life in a hardy and demanded a high degree of daring. Born in Galway, Ireland, 78 years ago, it was in early life that he made his initial trip to this country with his parents and with the American army, beginning a term of service which ended only after more than 20 years.

Shaw spoke interestingly on topics of import to those interested in the Y. W. C. A. movement and the objective purposes toward which it strives.

The Irishmen Were on Deck.

Patriotic Sons of Erin were in evidence on every hand yesterday. From the breasts of many floated the green emblem, which is not interpreted as an emblem of greenness. The only time Ireland lost out was when Tommy Burns put Jimmy Roche, the champion of Ireland, "to the bad" in the first round at Dublin, Ireland.

ENLARGED GLANDS OF THE NECK CURED. For five or six years I suffered from enlarged glands of my neck, which troubled me greatly, especially when I was exposed to cold, damp air. Whenever I took any cold the glands of my neck would swell and enlarge in lumps from under the ear to the collar bone. This affected my general health and my system became run down from it, and I remained in that condition for five years. After trying other things without benefit, I went on Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and one dozen bottles cured me and restored me to perfect health, and I am now a walking advertisement of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.
