At all, allowing the visitors to wis by a score of 2 to a 1t was wonderful to many that it wasn't worse from the number of men whom the visitors were able to get on bases. Playing little short of spectacular on the part of the locals in a few instances kept the score down, but failed to bring theirs up. The game was not lost through errors, nor because the locals are not fast, it is childish to charge the fates with the tragedy, and therethe fates with the tragedy, and therefore it remains only to be said that the visitors just naturally beat the boys. There are some weaknesses on the Charlotte line-up that must needs be remedied, before hope can be entertained of tearing a game from a team tained of tearing a game from a team as swift and as strong in every respect as that of Spartanburg. Flan pitched for the Hornets and was not in good form. The high wind and uncomfortable atmosphere disadvantaged him more than Lanford, who braved it all manfully. The little wiry local slabsman has made an impression upon the spectators at previous exhibitions, but he was out of fix yesterday. Rickard, the first batsman for the visitors, stepped to the bat. Catcher Hinton shook his hand, and began signing Finn for the initial curve. It fell wide of the plate, as did the second, the third, and the fourth, Rickard being passed to first. Lanham sacrificed the runner to second, going out pitcher to first. Buesse hit a grounder to second and was out at first, Rickard trotting to hird. Watson was out on a grounder to third.
