ARKER-BUMLEY WEDDING. he Solemn Coreniony Performer Last Evening in Episcopal Church of Washington, N. C.—The Brids Pavorite in Society Circles. pecial to The Observer.

Washington, N. C., May 6 .- A love vening in St. Peter's Episcopi church, this city, when Miss Mary Parsons Rumley became the bride of Mr. Cari Denver Parker, also of this city. The stately oid edifice, artisti-cally decorated in daisies, roses and lilies, with a color scheme of green and white, together with numerous waxen tapers shedding their tiny rays over the chancel and altar, produced a beautiful effect. Long before the appointed hour the church was filed to overflowing with "riends and ac-quaintances of the bridal couple, eager to witness the joining of two young lives. Promptly at 9 o'clock, to the in-spiring strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," skilfully rendered by Miss Lillian Bonner on the organ, and Prof. W. E. Smith on the violin, the bridal party entered the church, immediately preceding the brida-party were the ushers, Messre, F. B. Worthy, John G. Bragaw, Jr., C. B. Bell and W. Murray Jones, who pass-ed down the aisle, taking their re-spective places at the foot of the chancel. First entered the brides-maids, Misses Matilda. Morton, Chudia Simmons, Martha Allen and Sha G. Farker, sister of the groom, attired in white Paris mushin and orrying bouquets of white carne-tions and maiden hair forms. Next came the maid of honer, Miss Mil-dred Rumley, stater sof the bride, wearing white China silk and carry-ing sweet peas. At the foot of the chancel the bride was met by the groom with his best man, Mr. John D. Callis, and togeth-er they entered the chancel and stood before the aliar, where Rev. Nathan-iel Harding spoke the words accord-ing to the Episcopal ceremony, mak-ing them man and wife. During the ceremony the soft strains of Schu-bert's "Serenade" filled the church. Immediately after the ceremony and to the strains of Tannhauser's wed-ding march and the marry peal of wedding hells, the bridal party pass-ed out of the church and, taking car-riages, drave to the home of the
