HIGH POINT NEWS NOTES.

BAPTIST ORPHANAGE MEETING. Asheville Gets T. P. A. Convention For 1909.

Improvements. Special to The Observer. Thomasville, June 25 .- The annual meeting of the Baptist Orphanage today was attended by a great throng of beautiful and showed the most careful and skillful training. The address was to have been delivered by Mr. A. D. Ward, who was detained by the convention in Charlotte. It was one of the finest ever heard on the orphanage platfourn, being delivered by Rev. J. L. White, of Greensboro. His theme was "The Redemption of Childhood" and he handled it in masterly fashion. In the afternoon Mr. W. A. Cooper, of Raleigh, the orphanage benefactor and friend, provided the usual carnival for the boys consisting of games, contests, etc., which is always amusing and interesting. The trustees held their meeting yesterday the session being a busy and portant improvements the board ordered the general manager to provide electric lights for the buildings and grounds. President Hobgood stated to the great audience that the board was delighted at the admirable condition of the orphanage. Rev. M. L. Keesler, general manager, was warmly com-mended for the splendid work of the the Travelers' Protective Association for 1909. A well-directed effort was made to bring this great meeting to North Carolina, and Charlotte is per-fectly willing to allow it to go to the mountain city and to add its congrat-ulations. Mr. T. Edgar Harvey, secretary of the North Carolina division, has done effective work in trying to get one of the national conventions to meet in a North Carolina city and the fact that the next one goes to Asheville is due largely to his efforts

ing is bound to be impressed with the loneliness there. The convention has pulled practically all the lawyers from their new abode to the Audi-torium, where they are engaged in battling for their individual prefer-ences. Only here and there can one be found during the day in his office, and then it is for only a short time. Strange as it may seem, aspiring clients are now forced to look long and wait patiently for representatives at the bar of justice.

A Bundle of Clothes Found.
