VICTORY TO TWINS IN NINTH ROUND

Special to The Observer.

Spartanburg, S. C., June 29 .- In one of the best games played here Winston won from Spartanburg this afternoon by a score of 1 to 0. Both teams played in fine form and played almost errorless ball. It was a pitchers' battle between McGill for Winston and O'Mara for the Spartans, the former having a shade the better of the argument, yielding only two hits. McGill was very effective, though at times he was a little wild, sending three men to first on balls; but he always steadied himself and worked out of the holes. His teammates gave him excellent support.

There was considerable kicking against the decisions of Umpire Shetter. Several times the fans used their hammers because they thought he 50 gave the Spartans a raw deal.

Charlotte squeezed in two runs yesterday afternoon and won the game from Greensboro 2 to 0.. The distinct feature of the game was the pitching of Fulenwider who allowed but three hits and struck out seven men. He was in good form and the visitors were unable to find his delivery. The contest was about the fastest of the season and abounded in some good plays by both sides. The bunts of Brennen and Sherrill, which brought in the only runs of the game, were beauties. Anthony's fielding was particularly brilliant.

Orangeburg, S. C., June 29 .- For the fifth time lately Orangeburg won out in the last half of the ninth. It was a pitchers' battle and thoroughly exciting, Averett for the locals having the better of it. He blanked the visiters and allowed but two measly hits. Tuttle at first for the railroaders was the local star, receiving many poor throws, besides being effective with the willow, it being his hit for three hames in the eleventh that broke up the game.

RIVERS OF CHINA.

Inland Waterways to Be Developed— New System of Police Control. China Mail.

The realization of imminent perils from the inland waterways of the provinces has led China to adopt such means as seem most available and practicable for the more, adequate protection of her riverine system. Provinces that have hitherto had no special provision for policing by water partol are to have their rivers and other navigable channels inland guarded alike for the suppression of piracy and also with a view to pre-vent the smuggling into the interior of arm and munitions of war.

We notice that the Previnces of Hunan and Hupel are to have a "provincial admiral," under whose "provincial admiral," under whose special jurisdiction will be the charge of riverine defence. Thus far in the history of administration of the Empire this class of officials has, we believe held office only in the seaboard provinces. When, however, the ex-tent and excellence of inland water-The Greensboro Industrial News inces under consideration are apprecan't say now that Fulenwider walked proper control the fate of the country in times of emergency may con-ceivably depend.

Hunan is drained by four rivers which all empty into the Tung-ting lake. A glance at any reliable map will show that the basin of these rivers cover little less than half the province, and the fact that the River Hsiang Clang and certain of its numerous tributaries are navigable for cargo boats is significant in relation to facilities for easy transportation between the Yangtse and all the eastern part of Hunan to the borders of this of the extended system, some of its ramifications, the journey across from the Kwang-tung north river of Lienchau to a point in Hunan where a navigable stream is reached that connects with channels by which traveler may go through to Yangtse is quite practicable, and has been undertaken recently with fair frequency by persons bent on getting views of three of the finest provinces in China.

As for Hupei, a province divided by the Yangtse into a southern and a northern part, the means of transportation afforded by this river and by the Han, which joins the Yangtse at Hankow, are among the marvels of inland navigation. We have indicated some of the circumstances leading to a more careful and complete control of these great waterways. Other causes are presumably to be sought in the tendency recently manifested by Western nations to take upon themselves the duty of patrolling rivers. Japan has been the last to intimate an intention of sending war vessels up the Yangtse, and in v.ew of the situation that now obtains between these two countries the reasons for proper control and guarding of their avenues of access to her territory have received addi-tional weight and importance.

To say that the big gray timber wolf can be tamed is to run the risk of being branded a nature faker. So many ranchers, hunters, plainsmen and miners have made the attempt and failed that few believe it to be possible.
