May Build Electric Arch Across Main Street.

A splendid permanent electric arch to be a thing of beauty and joy forever, of architectural merit alone sufficient to make it worth while, aside from the some 300 lights which would shine resplendent on special occasions, is planned to span one of the principal Charlotte streets, perhaps Trade street at the Selwyn. It will cost between $600 and $1,000. A committee of citizens is soliciting subscriptions. It is hoped to have it built in time for the Republican convention. It will take about three weeks to build it. It is stated. It will rise some 100 feet above the trolley wires, the span being 25 feet. If secured, it will be a notable addition to the beauty of Charlotte.

ALBATROSS CARRIED MESSAGE.

Made a Journey of Over 2,000 Miles With But Little Rest.

New York Sun. The story of the rescue of twenty-two starving French sailors from Antipodes Island, printed on Monday, says that they tried every day to notify the world of their distress by releasing albatrosses with messages tied to their necks telling of the serious plight of the castaways.

The idea of using albatrosses as message carriers was undoubtedly suggested to the men by a remarkable incident that occurred nearly twenty-one years ago and is known to all mariners. On September 21st, 1837, a dead albatross was found on the beach at Fremantle, Western Australia, around whose neck was fastened a bit of metal on which had been scratched in French:

"Thirteen shipwrecked men took refuge upon the Crozet islands on August 4th, 1837."

The news was cable-drawn across the world by Governor Robinson of western Australia, and the French minister of marine at once ordered the transport Meurthe to leave Madagascar for the Crozets to search for the castaways.

The Meurthe returned from her search to Madagascar on January 6th, 1838. She found no human beings on the Crozets, but abundant evidence that one of the four islands had recently been occupied, and under a heap of stones was a sheet of paper on which was written in French with lead pencil the details of the wreck of the ship Tamaris of Bordeaux with thirteen men in the crew. The crew had lived on the islands for nine months and, their food being exhausted, they were about to set out for Possession Island.

This island is eighty miles from Chocous. The Meurthe at once went there and also to East Island, but found nothing and the castaways have never been heard of since. It is quite certain that they were lost in the perilous passage to Possession Island.

Those poor fellows never dreamed that eight days before they set out the bird they sent over the waters had imprinted its wonderful flight and told the world of the unhappy situation. The winged messenger had made a journey of over 2,000 miles with few chances of rest on the way. Naturally, the sailors have told us much of the albatross' remarkable powers and endurance on the wing, but no testimony to this fact will outlive the story of the bird that was the means of letting the world know that poor castaways in the waste of southern waters sorely needed succor.

Recovery of Trade.

Philadelphia Ledger. The volume of business in the United States in the early part of last year was unusually if not abnormally great. The loss in the October slump was correspondingly large, and an immediate recovery to last year's level is not to be looked for. A comparison of current trade statistics with those of the same months in 1907 is thus misleading. It can be gradually get back to the level of the year before 1907, when progress was more nearly normal, we shall be doing well. There are many and various indications of such recovery.
