TUESDAY, JULY 28, 1903.

MR. BRYAN FALSELY ACCUSED.

The Watson charge that Mr. Bryan... in Congress refused to vote for Mr. Crisp...

Another charge against Mr. Bryan... which we must discredit is that he objected to a Southern man as chairman...

With two clean and honorable men contending for the presidency...

WOMEN ON THE CHAIN-GANG.

Some days ago there came from Greenville, S. C., the statement that negro women convicts were to be put to work on the streets of that city...

"These sacred North Carolina birds" hypocritically says The Charleston News and Courier...

"Many of us," says The Richmond News Leader, "are corporations, but we hardly suppose Mr. Bryan's prohibition against corporations..."

Chairs The Columbia State: "The only question we can think of is better than 'Why is Atlanta'..."

A TRUST THAT WOULDN'T STAY BUSTED.

If President Roosevelt and Attorney General Bonaparte can possibly so contrive, the Standard Oil Company will not rejoice long over the recent victory in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago...

We do not think, however, that Mr. Roosevelt's course in reading the judges a lesson can be excused even under these circumstances...

Among the President's chief causes of irritation is undoubtedly the small prospect of pushing the case any further...

It is well that law has been upheld and court sensationally rebuked even with a justly deflected monopoly as defendant...

The result of the Texas primary on the governorship is to be regretted, Campbell, the incumbent, is re-nominated...

Death of Mrs. Samuel Faulkner. Mrs. Samuel Faulkner died yesterday morning at 1 o'clock at her home on Winnow street...

THIS IS HOW IT WAS.

The antiquary of The Charlotteville Progress, according to The Petersburg Index-appeal, overthrows the claims of The Charlotte, N. C. Observer, that Horace Greeley married a North Carolina woman...

KILLED BY TRAIN.

Mr. W. A. Stewart struck by a Passenger Train Saturday Night and Dies of Injuries.

Struck by a passenger train within about 75 yards of the Southern station at Salisbury Saturday night, Mr. W. A. Stewart, of this city, was fatally injured and died Sunday morning...

Mr. Stewart was a native of Catawba county and surviving in a real manner...

Mr. Stewart, it is understood, left home here early Saturday morning from being a well man...

VICE MAYOR TO PRESIDE.

Aldermen May Be Asked to Elect a Successor to Vice Mayor J. W. Wadsworth.

The rumor being current that there might arise a tie in the opposition to Vice Mayor J. W. Wadsworth, presiding at the regular meeting of the board of aldermen next Monday night...

Opening at Latta Park a Big Success.

A large number of dancers attended the opening dance at Latta Park last evening. This is one of the most delightful auditoriums around Charlotte...

Criminal Assault Charged.

The white woman who was arrested at the Southern passenger station Saturday night on the charge of having stolen a grip bag...

Death of Mrs. Samuel Faulkner.

Mrs. Samuel Faulkner died yesterday morning at 1 o'clock at her home on Winnow street after a lingering illness with tuberculosis...

A Lively Contest.

"Who will be the queen of the Eagles?" is the all important question before the local public...

Tales of the Town and the Times

BY RED BUCK

"Did you have any rain between here and Kansas City, last night?" asked an affable looking man...

"Nope, but we had a flood near Colorado Springs, Sunday," said I.

"Yes, but that will not do us any good over here," declared the man with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"Been to the convention?"

"Yes."

"We're mighty dry through here," said my interrogator, going back to the original subject.

"So I see."

"Being somewhat of a physiognomist," said Mr. Dan Covington, old Gov. Charles B. Aycock...

"It's Missouri!"

"Go-hungh!"

"Farmer are you?"

"Yes—stock raiser—hog?"

"Bryan man?"

"No; Taft."

"A Missouri Republican?"

"Nope, a North Carolina Republican?"

"Why, I am from North Carolina. Where did you come from?"

"Watauga county. Where is your home?"

"Charlotte."

"I have been here many a time, selling mules," Banner, Sam Banner, is my name, and my people live near Banner's Elk, out from Blowing Rock."

Everybody you meet is connected in some way with North Carolina and most people are proud of it.

"I knew from this man's friendly appearance, when he came in the car, that he ought to be a Tar Heel. He smiled and cast his eye about as if he knew every one and took an interest in all."

"For hours I had sat, groggy, unwell, and silent, but when I saw Mr. Banner, coat off, familiar, yet modest, I could not resist the temptation to converse with him."

"He is one of those rare creatures, whose manner makes you feel as if you know him when you do not, and I was not long in realizing that about him that made me think I had seen him before."

"How much land do you own out here?"

"About 1,800 acres."

"I took a good look at him. His clothes indicated that he was prosperous."

"How did you like Denver?" he asked me.

"Fine. I did not relish a cloud-burst that I got in out there."

"Well, you better thank God you were in a cloud-burst in Colorado and not in a cyclone in Oklahoma," said Mr. Banner with some feeling.

"What about the cyclones out here?"

"We don't have them here; nor do they have them in Colorado, but in Oklahoma—the first thing a man buys is a hole in the ground, a place to take his family when a cloud rises."

"Is it that bad?"

"Yep, and worse. Before coming here I had been in North Carolina, I lived in Oklahoma two years. You ever been there?"

"Nope, but came near going last fall to live."

"STUNG!" SAID MR. FARRELL.

"Squire Barkley bites at an Old Show Story and the Boys Laugh at Him."

"Why did The Chronicle let that story of the tiger tearing up the man at Spartanburg escape?" asked Squire David A. Barkley, the night watchman at The Observer to Mr. E. P. Wide-man last night...

"What do you mean?" said Squire Barkley.

"I do not believe a tiger bit any body," said Wide-man.

"The fellow came in here early this morning and told me about it and gave me notes for the paper," declared Mr. Barkley.

"Stung!" said Willie Farrell.

"Stung!" said Will Allen, the son of Dick.

"Stung!" said Elias.

"Stung!" said Buster Brown.

"Had you never heard that bloody tiger story before, Mr. Barkley?" asked Mr. Wide-man.

"No, was the man bit once before?"

"No, but the fellow said he was."

"Stung!" said the Squire, as he passed into the next room to recall the names of those to whom he had told the most wonderful tale of the vicious lion.

"Why, blame me if I didn't give that fellow a morning paper for his story and told him that I regretted very much we did not get the news last night," said Mr. Barkley as he pulled through the hall ten minutes later.

"Stung!" said Willie.

Fine Crops and Prosperous Farmers Everywhere.

Mr. Richard B. Hunter, State lecturer for the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union, was in the city yesterday on his way to Randolph, Montgomery, Moore and Lee counties, where he will spend this week.

Last week Mr. Hunter was in Lincoln, Catawba, Polk and Cleveland. The crops, he says, are fine and the people in fine spirits.

Mr. Hunter declares that he has never seen so much improvement in farm methods as is manifest in North Carolina. The tiller of the soil has become a business man.

All plenty the crops are large and the individual Farmers, he observes, are making more food stuffs and, thereby, becoming more independent.

For Better Passenger Facilities.

As a result of the conference between committees representing the T. P. A. and U. C. T.'s supplemented by Messrs. C. E. Hooper and Edgar B. Moore, with Mr. James Ker, Jr., local passenger agent of the Seaboard, it was agreed that suitable memorials be presented to the traffic officials of the road for a passenger coach to be attached to the freight train leaving Charlotte between 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Ker stated to the gentlemen conferring with him yesterday that he was personally in favor of such a plan, but had no liberty to act in the matter.

It is hoped that the improvement in accommodations between this city and Monroe can be brought about.

Comes to His Pastorate Shortly.

The congregation of the Steele Creek A. B. C. church has been notified that Rev. C. Y. Love, of Illinois, recently called to the pastorate, will take up his work the latter part of August. Mr. Love comes from the United Presbyterian Church of the North, but is a Southerner by birth and training.

THE REMEDY THAT DOES.

"Dr. King's New Discovery is the remedy that does the healing others promise to do," says E. J. J. P. of Auburn Centre, Pa. "It is curing me of throat and lung trouble which the doctors said other treatment relieved only temporarily. New Discovery is doing me so much good that I feel confident it will continue to be a reasonable length of time will restore me to perfect health." This renowned cough and throat remedy and throat and lung healer is sold at all drug stores, 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.
