CROWELL REUNION AT MONROE

More than a Hundred Descendants of Michael Crowell Attend—Historical sketch of family read—Next Convention in Charlotte. Special to the Observer.

Monroe, July 30.—About 200 people, 102 of whom were descendants of Michael Crowell, attended the Crowell family reunion here yesterday, which was held in the grove next to the residence of Mr. W. C. Crowell. The exercises of the day commenced at 11 o'clock a. m. when Rev. Dr. H. F. Christberg offered the opening prayer. Rev. R. H. Cline read an historical sketch of the Crowell family containing statistics of the descendants of Michael Crowell and Jane Pyron, who were married in 1816. Michael Crowell was the grandson of Simon, who came to this State in 1750, along with the immigration of Pennsylvania "Dutch" (Germans) and who probably first settled in eastern Newlenburg or Cabarrus county. He settled in Union county about 1785. Michael and Jane Crowell were the parents of a large family: Abraham H., Dr. Eli, John, Andrew S., Thomas, Mrs. D. Russell, Mrs. Robert Henderson, Mrs. G. V. Flow and Mrs. Eliza Hunter. Drs. A. J. and M. S. Crowell, of Charlotte, are sons of Andrew S. Crowell; A. M. Crowell, of Monroe, a son of Abraham H. Crowell; E. E. Crowell, of Charlotte, a son of John Crowell, and Dr. Lester Crowell, of Lincolnton, is a son of Dr. Eli Crowell. Of the living descendants of Michael Crowell are 2 children, 43 grand-children, 207 great-grandchildren and 59 great-great-grandchildren. When dinner was announced it was a glorious sight to behold the table set out in the grove, loaded with all the good things to eat which were enumerated in the Observer's gastronomic contest last year. It was a no less glorious sight to behold the enthusiasm with which the guests rallied around the festive boards and disposed of the viands so bountifully provided. The rain, which had been threatening to come down all the morning, mercifully held off until the dinner was over and then it came down good and hard. This compelled the members of the Crowell family to hold their business meeting in the rooms of the Jackson Club in the afternoon. After electing Mr. A. M. Crowell, president; Dr. A. J. Crowell, vice president; and Mr. T. L. Crowell, secretary and treasurer, Charlotte was unanimously chosen as the place for the next convention, which will be held July 29th, 1909.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY.

Lesson V. I Samuel xvi, 1-13.

DAVID ANOINTED AT BETHLEHEM.

The obscure Judean village is in a tumult. The even tenor of its rural life is broken up. An unlooked-for guest has arrived in the person of a man who outranks the king himself in the popular esteem and confidence. Samuel, the judge, has made a detour from his ordinary circuit and has come to Bethlehem, east of the cities of Judah. What does his coming portend? The dull town is aroused, while the elders hasten to the gate to forestall if possible any impending judgment.

A moment later, the principal home in the place, that of the prosperous Sudean sheik, Jesse, is astir in preparation for a guest who is the most revered man of the nation. The sacrificial banquet is ready. The goodly savors of the roasted heifer fills the place; the guests are coming; the servants run hither and thither, Samuel, at once guest, host, and sympathizer, is about to take his place. A shepherd lad, on the rough Judean steppes near by, tends his father's sheep. He may have seen the prophet pass, or noted the tumult in the town; but he is fidelity's self. Curiosity nor self-interest lure him from his duty. Shepherding sheep has been his unconscious preparation to shepherd men. His task has developed the traits of courage, patience, and sympathy. He has seen the favor of devotion. As a religious improvisator, he has often broken silence under the stars with the noble strains of his psalmody, accompanying the same with his happy, making yonder, cliff come in the refrain.

The last is first. He who was not bidden even to the lowest seat at the feast, is called to the head of the table. A servant relieves David in the care of the sheep, and he hurries without opportunity to make a toilet, into the august presence of the prophet. The candidate to the throne is in the bloom of life. His healthful occupation has given him a ruddy cheek. Sunburned locks upon his marble brow are suggestive of the golden crown he shall soon wear. But the adolescent charms of person are not to be compared with the graces of the heart for which the Lord first makes his quest. David breathed deeply the theocratic spirit. He loved God supremely. His foremost purpose was to be loyal and dutiful to Jehovah, and loving and helpful to his fellows. In this he was a man after God's heart. This constituted his singular adaptation for the theocratic kingship, a position sui generis in history.

As David entered the banquet room, Samuel's holy monitor said, "Up! Anoint!" In a moment the beaded and fragrant oil of the tabernacle was glittering upon those golden locks. Gloriously no one in the company save the prophet understood the significance of the scene. A royal destiny for a shepherd boy—who could divine it?—after the manner of the least went on, and perhaps the lad, not having been "sanctified" for the occasion, went back to the sheep.

But David must know the meaning of the prophet's enigmatical act. It slowly dawns upon his illumined consciousness. Preparation for his high calling keeps pace with his ever-increasing knowledge of the claims and duties of that calling. There is a progressive occupation and enlightenment of his inner life by the Spirit of the Lord.

It matters little whether this divine culture of the young king was mediate or immediate. Samuel may have been his mentor as he was Saul's. The Bethlehemite lad may have made frequent pilgrimages to Ramah, or, like Saul, he may have taken a course in one of the divinity schools. These mediate methods are in no way inimical to the immediate influence of the Spirit of the Lord which came upon him at the time of his anointing—from that day forward. However that may be, when the hour of coronation came, the kingly office was matched by a kingly character. The manifold and imperative exactions of an office which has exact parallel in history, were met by a versatile character developed and inured to meet those exactions. David could both compose battle-hymns for his army and in person lead to battle. He could make law and administer it. He could maintain the equilibrium between the recuse and the man of affairs. With a master hand he changed the white face of Hebrew history. Long the admiring of David was the last of a long and honorable career.

THE TEACHERS' LANTERN.

Samuel's grief for Saul was evidence of his generous and humane disposition. While he still lived he could not resist trying him as if he were dead. Though he did not visit him, he bitterly lamented his downfall. But there was a boundary beyond which this grief was improper. That limit was the point at which it disqualified him for obedience to God and service to his country in finding a successor to the fallen monarch.

Grief is natural; it is even honorable; but there is always a point at which a halt must be called to it. That point is where it begins to disqualify one for the evident duties of life. The cure of grief is here indicated: Submission; I have rejected him. Work; Fill this horn and go. Hope; I have provided a king.

Blood will tell. The king-elect had an untarnished train of noble ancestors. He inherited the princely integrity of Boaz and the devoted fidelity of Ruth. Yet David's aptitude for kingship did not show in his physical appearance. Samuel would not have selected him at sight. As Lincoln passed the reins through a speculator's hands, "He's a dreadful common-looking man." The President, overhearing the remark, turned and said, good-naturedly, "It only shows how well the Lord likes common folks, that He has made so many of us." Moral qualities are more important than physical.

Youth is no bar to the Lord's service. David is called at seventeen, Samuel at twelve. Polycarp was converted at nine, Matthew Henry at eleven, President Edwards at seven, Robert Hall at twelve, Isaac Watts at nine. Great are the gains to the individual, the Church, the world, of early piety. The hero-life of David gives the lie to the iterated accusation that the religious character is a spiritless and effeminate type. It shows religion compatible with courage, intrepidity, and clear grit. Yet fervent piety envelops David's other traits. The elements of his character are sanctified with faith and prayer and psalmody.

There are no human gauges to measure the incomprehensible love of such a life. While it quickens the pulse, Glouchford, the Coal of Quality.

of youth, it will also prompt an imitation of its noblest traits. It is a voice, crying:

"Blow, blow the clarion, all the life! To all the sensual world proclaim. One crowded hour of glorious life Is worth an age without a name!"

WASHINGTON'S NEW INDUSTRY.

Big Coopers' Plant to Be Added to the Manufacturing Enterprises of the City—Skilled Operatives From the North to Be Employed—Increase in the Postal Receipts. Correspondence of the Observer.

Washington, N. C., July 29.—Washingtoners are soon to have a large coopers' plant, and this means a great deal to the manufacturing industries of this city. About two months ago the Atlantic and State Manufacturing Company, of this city, which is the title of the new company, was granted a charter to install and operate a coopers' and stave factory in this city, and the incorporators as well as the leading stockholders are C. T. Lohr and John A. Watkins, of Lenoir, O., and Mr. Beverly G. Moss, of this city. The corporation has purchased five acres on the Washington Heights property in the eastern suburb of the city and here they will erect and run the plant. The capital stock of this company is $50,000, which comes largely from the North, through Mr. Moss, who has charge of the work as the local representative, and it is largely due to his untiring efforts that the plant will be located here instead of Norfolk and several other larger places which were proposed. The machinery for this plant has already been ordered and the work of erecting the necessary buildings will commence by the 1st of September and they hope to have everything in readiness to commence full operations by the coming winter. The plant will manufacture staves at first but as soon as practical other departments for the manufacture of wood products will be added. The yearly output of the factory will be one thousand car loads and the Norfolk and Western Railroad will run a spur of track out to the factory and will employ a large number of operatives, mostly composed of skilled industrial interests of our city.

The postal receipts at the local post-office during the past fiscal year have exceeded that of 1907 by $1,542.90, which speaks well for the growing business of Washington. Postmaster Hugh Paul has recently had installed in the office a patented stamp canceling machine and is constantly adding to the present stock of stamps. He is doing everything in his power to give our citizens first-class and satisfactory service as well as courteous service.

MORE STRENGTH FOR MR. COX.

High Point Republican Visits Lexington and Since Then Friends of Mr. Walsler Have Been "Laying Low"—Capt. Frank Robbins' Condition Not Improved. Special to the Observer.

Lexington, July 29.—From what can be learned from Lexington Republicans there seems to be but little doubt about Elwood Cox, of High Point, being the nominee of the Republican party for the office of Governor. Mr. Cox was in Lexington several days ago and had a conference with some of the prominent Republicans, and although they will say nothing positive as to his expressed intentions, they intimate that he is now willing to make the run. Another thing that is significant is the fact that the friends of Mr. Zeb Vance and Walter who have been boasting him for Governor are not having so much to say since the visit of Mr. Cox. It is said that Mr. Walsler may be in the race for Congress from this district. It has been several years since he has been in the field for office, but he has kept in close touch with party affairs and continues to be one of the most prominent Republican politicians in the State. The condition of Capt. Frank C. Robbins, who has been ill for the past two weeks, is reported to be practically unchanged. The first of the week it was thought he was some better but for the past two days his condition has not been so favorable. He is 75 years old to-day and up to the present sickness he has been a remarkably strong man for his age. He has not been very well since the State convention. He was an enthusiastic supporter of Col. Ashley Horne and his friends think that the nervous strain of the long convention was too much for him. He has a naturally strong constitution and this causes his friends to have more hope of his recovery.

Latest Kipling Story.

On his last homeward voyage a lady autograph and had an approach him, but in hand, but she refused to do so. One morning she saw him scribble on one of the little cards which are used when passengers order any drinks they may require. These cards are collected into little bundles at the end of the week, and then returned to the steward who had the card, and begged to be allowed to keep it and to pay for the order. The steward did not mind as long as it was settled by some one. The lady proudly shows to her friends a small buff ticket, on which are the magic words, "Please supply me with two sodas and one whiskey," and the signature is "R. Kipling."

REACHING THE SPOT.

It Can Be Done, So Scores of Charlotte Citizens Say. To cure an aching back. The pains of rheumatism. The tired-out feeling. You must reach the spot—get at the cause. In most cases 'tis the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys. Mrs. I. B. Hargett, 301 N. Graham Street, Charlotte, N. C., says: "I suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble for years. My kidneys were very weak and by failure to act properly caused me to feel dull and languid most of the time and little like performing my household work. I also had sharp twinges generally run down. Doan's Kidney Pills having been highly recommended to me, I concluded to try them and purchased a box at R. H. Jordan & Co.'s drug store. They acted directly on the kidneys, restoring them to their proper action and thus removing all the other troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills are of the greatest value to me and I do not hesitate to speak well of them." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no others.

The way of the transgressor is Lard

The wise housewife specifies Cottolene every time in place of lard. Anyone with a particle of respect for his stomach would prefer a pure vegetable product to one made from the fat of the hog.

Cottolene is always pure; lard isn't.

Cottolene will make more palatable food than lard, and food that any stomach can digest with ease. Lard is a friend of indigestion.

Cottolene is put up in odor-proof, sealed tin pails; most lard comes in bulk, and will absorb any old odor which is near it.

You can prove every word we say by buying and trying a pail of Cottolene. All good grocers sell it; all the great cooking authorities of America recommend it.

Nature's Gift from the Sunny South

The Fat Man.

An English paper calls attention to the fact that the fat man gets the best of life, and when you think of it he does. The fat man is always happy, good-natured and interesting. He frets not, neither does he worry. He gets the best seat everywhere and is the one to be allowed special privileges. He will keep in the middle of the road while the other fellow walks in the mud. He never fails to attract attention and everyone wants to know him. He laughs at stories, listens to fond mothers and gives acceptable advice to all. In hot weather he sits in the shade, moans his head against a tree and shoes the flies, with philosophical view of life. He is every one's friend. He looks happy, he is happy.
