

Social and Personal

The following announcement has been received by friends here: Mrs. Mary A. Ross requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter Mary Harriet to Mr. James Thomas Brantington on Wednesday evening December second at half past five o'clock at the home of her uncle Mr. J. G. Boyle, Wednesday, N. C.

Mrs. R. M. Miller will entertain a number of friends at her home on East Seventh street this morning. Miss Ada Oiler will entertain the Pro Re Nata Book Club this afternoon at her home on South Tryon street.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mills, of Huttoxville, spent yesterday in the city, guests of the Selwyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer McEaster, of Nashville, Tenn., are spending a while in the city, guests of the Selwyn.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hutchinson of Lexington, were among the guests of the Selwyn yesterday.

Mrs. H. B. Fowler recalled the invitation for his bride yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Hal Morson, of Raleigh, an account of the telegram announcing the probable fatal illness of her cousin, Master Thomas W. McLow, Jr., of Yorkville, S. C., 7 years old.

The Ladies Aid Society of St. Mark's Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. C. A. Nelsonheimer this afternoon at half past 3 o'clock.

Mr. C. G. Shepard and wife are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dorr for a few days. Mr. Shepard is business manager for Colgate & Co., and is returning from an extended trip throughout the South.

At the morning bridge party of Mrs. H. B. Fowler in honor of Miss Hal Morson, of Raleigh, guest of Mrs. R. S. Hulse, the first prize was won by Mrs. R. M. Miller, and the second by Mrs. H. L. Adams.

Miss Florence Thomas will entertain the Cheldon Book Club this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The department of civics of the Woman's Club, of which Mrs. C. H. Bryant is chairman, held an interesting meeting yesterday morning at the Carnegie Library. The department is diligently working for civic improvement in every phase of the city's life.

The Carnegie Library was found to be in a perfect condition, except the walk and the need of screens. Those who visited the city hall and court house reported unfavorably. The ordinance about sweeping the brick walks before 3 o'clock was recommended as one deserving strict enforcement.

The Woman's Club stands for all that is best in the community and hopes to see these reforms speedily carried out.

The Colonial Dames had an interesting meeting yesterday afternoon with Mrs. W. E. Liddell.

Mrs. R. M. Miller will entertain a number of friends at bridge at her home on East Seventh street this morning.

Son Barber, colored, was arrested yesterday morning by Officer Pitts on suspicion that he had unlawfully come into possession of a pair of pants several feet too long for him. He will be tried this morning.

The Friday Night, the regular weekly gathering of the members of the Interdenominational department of the Young Men's Christian Association, will be held to-night at 8 o'clock. Some special events will take place and all intermediaries are urged to attend.

Charged with liberally indulging in the national game, Francis Thomas and Willie O'Daniel, messenger boys, were arrested yesterday morning by Officer Mettler. They were playing in the street between the two telegraph offices and were fined half the cost by the recorder.

A special meeting of the Charlotte Poultry Association was held last night in the office of President Alexander in the Harry Building on North Tryon street. Plans were discussed for the next annual exhibition which will be held January 25th-30th. The business session of the city are asked in contrivance prices.

GREAT BARITONE SINGS

CAMPANARI CHANGES HUNDREDS

A Home Which Was Only Fair and Rather Disappointing in the Home of the World's Greatest Baritone Singer—Stark Enthusiasm Evoked by His Androgynous and Exquisite Performance—Miss Clarkston, Pianist, Afforded Much Pleasure by Her Brilliant Performance—The Programme in Some Detail.

For the first time Charlotte last night heard Campanari, the greatest of living baritones. Assisted by Miss Clarkston, pianist, he gave a concert in the Academy of Music and each and every person who heard him was soon keyed up to concert-pitch enthusiasm.

He took the room by storm, as those who had heard him in New York and elsewhere, knew that he would. His voice is simply superb. For power it is unsurpassed; for softness and sweetness incomparable, and for vocalization perfect. He handles it with the ease and sureness of the life-long artist that he is and the life-long artist that he is and the life-long artist that he is.

Campanari is comparatively a young man and yet he has been world-famous for so long that one thinks of him as much older than he is. The pasting of the years makes no change in his voice, save to deepen its deep tones. He sang last night with the same exquisite quality of tone, the same resonance and robustness, the same color flexibility and finish, the same dramatic fire that he did ten years ago. His most youthful hearer in the audience last night, a little girl of 6 years, said after the first rendition of Figaro, "God certainly put sound into that man's mouth and the sound is not only his volume but its softness; its sweetness."

Campanari is not only a great singer, but a wonderful interpreter. Therein his musical personality is most fascinating. He has mastered all the great baritone roles of grand opera, and in each and all not only the great singer, but the clever actor. He excels in dramatic effects. What could have been more inspiring than his rendition last night of "L'Alceste," "Rodeo Figaro," and "The Trovatore." The latter was sung with enthusiasm after each and recalled him a number of times. He graciously gave two encores, one being Figaro, the other a serenade, "Sopra il quale" by some belated, the scene. Both were great. "Coms L'amore" Grendell; "nor Pul Andri"—Mozart, and "Tost's Serenades" were artistically and beautifully given. The popular Torsador Song was the closing number. It is a fine vehicle for high dramatic art such as Campanari excels in. His rendition of it was most inspiring.

After the concert Campanari received a number from the audience in his dressing room and talked freely and pleasantly to all. He spoke of his children—three—each of whom inherits his talent. "I have a boy who has a beautiful voice," he said, "a future generation will therefore have it Campanari. The voice of the father will be heard again in the operas of to-day, in the voice of the son. 'Tis well. Such melody, such art should live on through the ages."

MISS CLARKSTON. Campanari's pianist, Miss Clarkston, gave infinite pleasure in her numbers. She is an artist to her finger tips. Her technique is exceptionally fine; her touch exquisite in delicate passages, masterly in grand harmonies, beautifully and clean throughout. She was enthusiastically received at each appearance and recalled several times—tribute that Charlotte seldom pays a pianist.

Miss Clarkston is from Atlanta. She has studied abroad and in New York under the best masters. She plays with finish and style. As an accompanist she is comprehensive, an artist sympathetic, and a performer, an artist of high order. She and Miss Adelaide Stephens, of the Presbyterian College musical faculty, were musical friends and contemporaries in Atlanta.

The programme of last evening follows: Arietto ..... Handel Povero Marinar ..... Millotti Serenade ..... Fostel Balad ..... Chopin Miss Clarkston Nor Pul Andri ..... Mozart G. Campanari Waltz ..... Grieg Nocturne ..... Chopin Come L'amore ..... Grendell La Valla ..... Roda G. Campanari Largo Al Fantasma ..... Rossini G. Campanari Polonaise ..... Liszt Miss Clarkston Torador Song ..... Bizet G. Campanari

GEN. CARR'S LIBERALITY

Largest Private Donation to Female College. Greensboro Record.

In response to an appeal from the president, Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, Gen. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, has given $1,000 to the endowment fund of Greensboro Female College. This donation is the largest amount subscribed for the fund since Mr. Andrew Carnegie's promise of $15,000, also secured by Mrs. Robertson two years ago. Gen. Carr's liberality is well known to the public and this is but another instance of his generosity and his interest in the cause of education. This is not General Carr's first gift to Greensboro Female College, he having donated $1,000 to the "Lucy McDoer fund" a few years ago. The friends and alumni of the college are deeply indebted to him for the very substantial aid which he has given them in their efforts to place the institution on a larger and higher plane of usefulness in the education of women in North Carolina.

General Carr's donation brings the endowment fund up to $22,500 and the college authorities estimate the hope of increasing the fund to $50,000 within the next few months. This matter will be brought to the attention of the Western North Carolina conference, now in session at Asheville. Mrs. Robertson will have tomorrow for Asheville to attend the conference in the interest of the college. Rev. W. M. Carr, secretary and treasurer of the college, is already in Asheville.

The Duty of the South to Her Dead Friend. Wilmington Star.

The Cleveland Memorial Association has decided to raise one hundred thousand dollars for the erection of a suitable monument to the memory of Grover Cleveland at Princeton. The South should contribute her part of this fund. We hope it will do so.

Why Say a Cat in a Sack? At our exhibit next week we will show you the difference in actual operations between a sack and a sack.

At best, housecleaning is a season of unrest.

But its miseries can be greatly minimized by the wise use of Ivory Soap—to give new beauty to furniture; to make rugs and curtains look as they did the day they were bought; to brighten silver and brass-work; to make blankets as soft and fluffy as when new.
