$250 For Forty Minutes in Jail. Gastonia News.

Mr. C. A. Spencer, formerly section master for the C. & N. W. road at Gastonia, won in his suit against Mayor John Cilley, of Hickory, Friday at Newton and was given $250 damages. Mr. Spencer was section master at Hickory some time ago when the road was torn up by citizens of that town one night. He telegraphed to the officers of the road and went to work at once to repair the road. Mr. Cilley signed a warrant and had Mr. Spencer placed in jail 40 minutes. Mr. Cilley said he had Mr. Spencer arrested for his own protection. Mr. Spencer claimed illegal arrest. In a former trial the damages were placed at $500 and the judge set the verdict aside as excessive damage.

Apple Wine. Wilkesboro Chronicle.

There is a new industry which promises to figure in apple sections of this section. Mr. H. C. Walker, of the Brushles, has a process by which he manufactures pure apple wine and those who judge that it is fine wine, equal to the best superlative. It is a secret process and if put in use, the apple industry will be a big thing. With the wine and cider made of apples in this section, the wiley can't argue that the east is favored by the prohibition law.

To Arrange Programme. Special to The Observer.

Winston-Salem, Feb. 12.—Rev. Dr. J. H. Clewell, of Salem Academy and College, left today for Rock Hill, S. C., to meet Dr. R. E. Park, of Conway, and Dr. Johnson, of Winthrop College, to prepare a programme for the annual meeting of the presidents of the colleges in North and South Carolina, which will be held at Spartanburg next month.

RICE IN THE PHILIPPINES

M. C. M. FRITCHEIT'S LETTER

Former Charlotte Resident Writes Entertainingly of His Stay in the Philippines—The Culture of Rice, the Great National Food—The Soil is Fertile and the Country Rich in Natural Resources—All That is Needed is "Elbow Grease and an Iron Guiding Hand"—Bananas Delicious—How Monkeys Are Captured.

Mr. C. M. Fritchett, one time engineer with the D. A. Tompkins Company, of this city, is now in the government service in the Philippines building roads. The following is an extract from a private letter received by a friend recently in which many interesting facts are given about the islands:

"I suppose you have never visited the Orient and consequently you have quite a treat in store for you. Most travelers I believe pronounce the Philippines as the most uninteresting part of the Orient, but you will find a great deal here to see and learn. Most of the Americans hear the 'Call of the Orient' when they get home.

"Like the States, there is a great deal that is good and some that is bad here. All you have to do is to look for it. Before you hear anything you wish about the islands.

"The women are usually scared to death about the lizards, the snakes and the various insects. As a matter of fact they do not notice them any more than you do in the States. There is a little house lizard here very similar to the one the ladies use to chain about their necks. They are harmless and only catch mosquitoes and spiders. If you wish to go out in the bushes and look for them you will find a variety of lizards of all sizes.

"I have seen the agnana four feet long and they are said to grow ten. They are very timid and run at the sight of a man. Snakes are sometimes killed here as long as thirty feet but I have never seen one more than two feet and I have been all over the province. One of my foremen reported having seen a large one's track several times near the mountains but they are scarce.

"Spiders, roaches, etc. are about the same as they are in the States. I was coming up from Manila one day on the little steamer and the natives on the little harbor and my window was just opposite a tree. Beneath it were a dozen native children trying to knock down a large spider which had just out of their reach. One of them handed me a stick and I knocked it down for them. The whole crowd dived for it like it was a piece of candy. One of them tripped it and his hands and ran triumphantly with it.

BIRDS DISAPPOINTING. "I was very much disappointed in the birds here. I expected to see a great variety and an unlimited number. The lizards are said to be their main food and the natives destroy a great many of them. I have seen only a few with beautiful, rich plumage. One wears the national colors, red white and blue. It is a variety of the kingfisher. Another is a rich yellow bird trimmed with black. There are several varieties of game birds but the wild duck is the most plentiful. There are a great many wild chickens in some sections. You never see such a thing here as a rabbit or a squirrel. Deer, wild hogs and musons or mountain cats, are plentiful. In some of the provinces there are quite a number of wild carabos.

"Monkeys are plentiful. You can find them most anywhere. They are quite destructive in some places. I went out on a deer hunt and interesting to see a large dog and interesting running around among the trees. Quite a large number of them are caught and tamed as pets. The natives catch them by means of a trap set out in the nut just large enough for the monkey to get his foot in. When he gets his hand full of meat he will not turn it loose and I will think this a fairy tale, but it is a fact. You can buy the monkeys here, as many as you want for 50 cents in gold, each.

DEER VERY PLentiful. "I went out on a deer hunt during the holidays with some of my friends, four of us altogether. We had a three-day hunt. We killed six deer and a wild hog. The latter attacked me after I had wounded him in some tail cogan grass and knocked me heels over head, gun and all. Fortunately he was a young one and had no tusks. He gave me one small scratch on the shin. I picked up my carbine and again he charged and he been over-loaded. We had about 40 dogs and 34 natives to do the driving, packing, etc.

"Carabao hunting is rather dangerous and the madams says I can't go. Quite a number of men have been killed at the sport. Two since I have been here. One of them was one of the most prominent merchants in the city. One of my friends killed a large bull a few weeks ago and had to shoot him 14 times with a Craig before he was downed. A 30-30 Winchester will not penetrate a big bull's hide. The horns are often five feet from tip to tip and make beautiful trophies when polished.

RICH COUNTRY. "This is the banner rice province of the islands. A great field of it five or six feet high is certainly a beautiful sight. It would amuse you to see the way they cultivate and harvest it. The fields are divided into small paddies, usually about 50x100 feet. Each one is separated from the other by a small dyke about 12x12 inches. In the water, the ground is very fertile and bears immense crops with very little tilling. In fact you will never see any of it cultivated like that in the States. The principal rice of the country is sown in a row and the paddies are filled with water the natives plow them up with a carabao and a crooked stick. The latter is shaped somewhat like a banner. It is very rich and holds water, almost indefinitely.

what like a plow but only has one long handle.

"A few of these paddies are sown with rice as thick as it will stand. When it gets about 12 inches high it is pulled and the water is drained off. You will see hundreds of men, women and children transplanting rice in the muck and mire up to their knees and no clothes on except a G string or an old skirt girded to their loins. Sometimes they have an hombre sitting on the dyke with a guitar to keep time for them. Every stalk of rice in the islands is planted this way and you cannot convince them that it can be planted in any other way.

RICE CULTURE. "Most of the rice is planted in June. They sit down then and wait for it to get ripe. They harvest it in December and January. It is always harvested on shares, usually one-fifth. Nearly every native in the country thinks it is his religious duty to harvest rice and you can get very few of them to do anything else during the harvest season, despite the fact that he could earn twice as much at most anything else. Rice is their staple food and they lay their year's supply in this way under great cost. Most of them are great gamblers and when you pay them money they lose it on the next Sunday's cock fight. Guess they are wise hombres after all, to cut rice. The whole family works at it, big and little, old and young. They come into the rice fields from all parts of the province and even other provinces.

"I see hundreds of them coming in on the boats every week. As the rice gets ripe most of it gets so heavy and blows over that the States this would be very clearly but here it is just what they are waiting for. If it does not blow over they go out and push it over with sticks. Then they go in with mail gutters about six inches long and cut each stalk, one at a time. This is bound in small bundles called manojos, five to a cavan. They are all exactly the same size. Rice does not keep very well here when threshed out but it will keep indefinitely as palay. You can buy the palay after harvest season anywhere from one to three pesos per cavan and sell it for 25 centavos per cavan and sell it for six pesos.

"There are several large rice mills in the province but they are all operated by hand. The palay is put into a large trough, hewn out of a tree, and pounded, always by the women, with wooden pestles. These are about four feet long and taper on their upper ends. The fair damsel catches the pestle in the middle, rises on her tiptoes and strikes with either hand catching it on the rebound with the other. Usually four or five are pounding in the same trough at one time. They keep perfect time and the rhythm is somewhat similar to the steel drivers at a quarry. The girls look graceful at this work and it is a sight to see. The rice is now taken out and panned by an old woman. She uses a flat bamboo pan, very light and about two feet in diameter by one inch deep. She sweeps the rice of chaff into the air very skillfully and allow the wind to blow the chaff away and she catches every grain of rice. The rice is now re-pounded and panned when it is ready for the market.

OTHER PRODUCTS—HEMP. "Hemp, of course, is one of the noted products of the islands but we have none of it in this province. It is raised further south. It takes an expert to tell a hemp from a banana plant. Bananas and coconuts grow all over the islands in abundance. You would think to see them that we have enough to supply the whole world.

"Bananas are superior to those you get in the States. They are much finer flavored and you can buy them for a mere song. I bought 200 lbs. today for 2 centavos. They are somewhat higher in the towns and markets. The groves are the ugliest things you ever saw. The old dead stalks are never removed and they usually shed the new leaves. "A young coconut grove is a beautiful sight. The trees are planted about 10 feet apart and the green look like a beautiful picture. As they grow old and get very tall they look spindly. You often see them 75 feet high. They are very hard to get up on them and they resemble a feather duster with a long handle. The trees bear at six years and are practically barren at twenty.

"I used to hear that the natives never had trained monkeys to throw the nuts down but instead they good the trees and climb them. A good bearing tree will produce from 100 to 150 nuts. This will net the owner about two pesos."

ANOTHER RIDDLE SENSATION.

Sixteen-Year-Old Boy Elopes With Cotton Mill Girl One Year His Junior—The Couple's Whereabouts Unknown. Special to The Observer.

Fayetteville, Feb. 12.—The family of Thomas Riddle is now in the penitentiary for killing his father, James Riddle, last August in a quarrel over cigarette smoking, and whose mother recently married a 19-year-old youth after she had attempted to marry him because of her refusal to marry him, furnished another sensation yesterday when Charles Riddle, a 14-year-old son of the family, came to Fayetteville from a cotton mill village near the State capital to obtain a license to marry Georgia Cain, a 15-year-old girl employed in a mill at Cotton, and on failing to obtain it hurried back to the village, drove up to the mill, led his pony and readied to the buggy and drove away. Where they went is not known. The girl's mother is almost prostrated with grief.

Negro Wanted in Ireddell Arrested in Washington. Special to The Observer.

Stateville, Feb. 12.—Sheriff Deaton received a message yesterday afternoon from Richard Sylvester, superintendent of the Washington City police, stating that Ernest Wallace, a Statesville negro, who is wanted here to answer charges of gambling and re-telling, has been arrested in Washington. The negro is an ex-convict and returned here without requisition papers and Sheriff Deaton has gone for him. Wallace is a mean negro and the officers have been trying to locate him for a long time. He was under bond for re-telling and gambling and skipped.

Went Crazy Over Religion. Special to The Observer.

Winston-Salem, Feb. 12.—In Superior Court, Judge Webb presiding, W. G. ("Buck") Wright, a farmer living near Tobaccoville, was adjudged insane and was sent to the insane ward of the penitentiary indefinitely. He had been arrested some months ago, charged with attempting to attack his 12-year-old daughter. The man was given to long harangues on what he called the "Bible," and was a religious subject. He was not tried for the alleged crime.

SOLDIER TAKES DEATH PLOT. It seemed to J. A. Stone, a civil war veteran, of Kemp, Tex., that a plot existed between a desperate lung trouble and the grave to cause his death. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough that stuck to my throat for weeks. For years I had my weight run down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which restored my health completely. I now weigh 175 pounds. For severe colds, obstructive coughs, hemorrhages, asthma, and to prevent pneumonia it's unrivaled. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists."

tion of a general principle. He wanted to be considered the President of the whole race in the country, and expressed his sympathy with the struggle of the black man for progress. This speech was delivered to an audience of negroes which filled the grandstand, bleachers and a goodly portion of the grounds of the local baseball park, and what he said was received with marked approval.

The afternoon of the city's distinguished guest was spent at the Country Club which not only afforded the opportunity for a select luncheon-party in which Mr. Taft was also a participant, but an opportunity for what will doubtless be the last game of golf Mr. Taft will indulge in for many months. After his extended sea trips and a confinement on the isthmus of Panama without exercise, the opportunity was one most pleasing. Mr. Taft took rounds of the local golf course and did some shopping during the day.

The telegraphic correspondence between Mr. Taft and Senator Knox made public here today is regarded as the most important of the local interest of Congress to remove any constitutional obstacles in the way of the appointment to a Cabinet position of the Pennsylvania Senator is most desirable.

THE TAFT-KNOX TELEGRAMS. Senator Knox wired Judge Taft as follows: "A bill has been introduced in the Senate to remove the constitutional bar to my eligibility to the Cabinet by repealing the act which prohibits my appointment to the Secretary of State. I am in no way promoting or having anything to do with the measure."

"It is a matter for you as the appointing power to first determine whether the proposed action is desirable or would be effective. Our minds should be free from all doubt concerning the legality and propriety of the proposed plan before acquiescing in it. If you have any reason for not approving what is being done an injustice may be done whoever may be appointed. "P. C. KNOX."

"I sincerely hope that the bill repealing the increase in salary for the Secretary of State will pass. I have no doubt that that will remove all the difficulties of the situation in the light of its purpose. I should regard your ineligibility at this time as a great public misfortune and it would be a personal disappointment to me too great for me to express."

"I have telegraphed Senator Hale, Speaker Cannon and Mr. Payne my wishes and hopes in regard to the appointment of W. H. TAFT."

Mr. and Mrs. Taft will leave here for Cincinnati at 9:20 o'clock to-morrow morning, arriving in the latter city at 10:45 Sunday. Monday afternoon the President-elect will start for Washington.

GOVERNOR SANDERS SPEAKS. Governor Sanders, responding to the toast "Louisiana," after extending a hearty welcome to Mr. Taft spoke in favor of the Federal government assuming the maintenance of the levee interests. He asked that thought be given to the Americans who are engaged in this farming industry, and said that the eyes of the South are turned to Mr. Taft to protect their interests. He asked that thought be given to the Americans who are engaged in this farming industry, and said that the eyes of the South are turned to Mr. Taft to protect their interests.

The reception to the President-elect by the negroes of the city today was marked by enthusiastic cordiality. Thousands of the members of that race assembled in the local baseball park, filling the grandstand bleachers and a large portion of the grounds. Hundreds of negro school children were banded on the benches, each bearing an American flag. Songs were sang and speeches made by members of the race. Education, in Philip's words, is the only way to the betterment of the race.

THE NEGRO'S EDUCATION. Mr. Taft declaring his desire to be "the President of all the people," and adding that he wanted to make a plain, common sense, non-political talk, told his hearers that their past history had been remarkable in showing their capacity to develop; that their future depended not on emotion but upon individual character and ability, which means hard work and thrift. To make themselves indispensable to the people of the community in which they lived was, he declared with emphasis, the only final solution of the problem which they were to solve. He ridiculed the idea of transporting the negro to any other country, asking where was the place the 10,000,000 members of that race now herded could be placed. Education, in Philip's words, is the only way to the betterment of the race.

phatic and repeated incentive was made the governing rule of character. As to the dealing with crime he said that if the negro wanted a square deal in that respect he must be willing to give a square deal and be as earnest and zealous in the punishment of the crimes of the negro as any others.

GLAD TO GO TO THE "PEN."

Negro Woman Laughs When She is Sentenced to Five Years in State Prison—Members of Her Race Not Pleased With Short Sentence. Special to The Observer.

Asheville, Feb. 12.—In Superior Court this morning Sallie Porter, a negro woman convicted yesterday of the murder of Bob Miller, another negro, on the streets of Asheville, was sentenced to five years in the State prison. The woman laughed when sentence was pronounced and after leaving the court room in the custody of a deputy sheriff laughed and talked with several of her friends and said that she felt fine over the prospect of staying at the "pen" five years.

Many of the negroes of Asheville were displeased with the light sentence. The court room was packed with negroes when sentence was passed and after leaving the room no few of the negroes expressed the opinion that the woman ought to be hanged. Sheriff Hunter will take the prisoner to Raleigh either to-morrow or Sunday.

The woman evidently has nerve. While frail and apparently delicate, she seems unconcerned about a bullet that is embedded in her lung. She was a good shot, too, hitting Miller three times out of three shots and inflicting a mortal wound at each fire.

SCHOOLMATE OF VANCE DEAD.

Dr. John J. Ensor, to Whom Vance Predicted His Own Political Career, Dies at Age of 83 at Bristol, Tenn. Special to The Observer.

Bristol, Tenn., Feb. 12.—Dr. John J. Ensor, who was a schoolmate of Governor Zebulon B. Vance, of North Carolina, at Washington College, Tennessee, twenty years before the civil war, died here today in the 83d year of his age. His death occurred on the 57th anniversary of his marriage. His aged wife, two sons and one daughter survive.

Dr. Ensor frequently spoke of his early association with Governor Vance, telling of a time when Vance predicted his own political career with remarkable accuracy. After Vance had been elected Governor of North Carolina, he wrote Dr. Ensor an affectionate letter from the Capitol at Raleigh, reminding him of the school days' prediction that he would be Governor of North Carolina.
