Travelers returning from the North continue to tell of the blizzard which prevailed last week, which leveled every telegraph pole between Washington and Philadelphia, isolating Washington at the psychological moment of a quadrangle. One who attended the inauguration in Washington and who, of course, contracted a cold, said the crowd was the most disorderly and intoxicated of all with which he had mingled and the police appeared to pay no attention to fights or drunks.

TWO FALL WITH HALL.

Well-Known Citizen Bears Witness Against John Hall and Henry Miller, and These Keep Him Company For Awhile Behind the Bars.

Clark Hall, with whose ceaseless strivings against the invidious wiles of the "demon rum" the community has been familiar through all these years, whose victories are superseded by defeats, the latter published and the former unknown to any save himself, fell Saturday a victim to his thirst and to the wiles of the law. But the jar was not strong enough to drive from his mind the name of the man who furnished him with the liquor. After hours of imprisonment in a stuffy cell he was not averse to admitting that John Hall, the negro horse trader, was indirectly responsible for his plight. Consequently the men with brass buttons on their collars, who were looking for Hall the second, found him and brought him in to face his repentant accuser. But that was not all. Clark Hall's testimony implicated also one Henry Miller, colored, whose name will always recall his unearthed career as a sixth and blind tiger at one and the same time and almost one and the same place. Hall claims he has bought liquor from this individual, who has been up more than once on similar charges. Both were liberated on bond.

Assault and Robbery Charged.

That Sam Houston, a young negro man, entered her home in Brooklyn, a colored suburb, struck her in the head and seized $455 in change which happened to be accessible in a bag carried by Rachel Cunningham, a negro woman. Whether or not the accusation can be sustained remains to be seen to-morrow morning. The negro was arrested. The affair happened about 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

Governor of Louisiana Passes.

First No. 37 on the Southern Railway yesterday was a special train carrying the Governor of Louisiana and party en route home from Washington after the festivities. It consisted of a baggage car, a dining car and four sleepers. Section 27 was another special carrying miscellaneous passengers, while the regular train arrived at 2:30 in the afternoon, something over four hours late.

"The Crucifixion" Last Night.

Every seat in St. Peter's Episcopal church was occupied last night by the congregation which gathered to hear the choir of that church render "The Crucifixion." The masterpiece was beautifully rendered in a fashion which showed not only talent but excellent training. The solo parts were ably sustained by Mr. Heimer Walters, tenor, and Mr. Mark L. Thurlow, bass.

A Solution Suggested.

"Atlanta," I notice, has solved the question of taxing franchise granted to public service corporations in a way which seems businesslike," remarked a citizen last night. "They have arranged a sliding scale, charging 2 per cent. the first year, 3 per cent. the second year, 4 per cent. the fourth year and 5 per cent. the fifth year and thereafter."

Mr. J. P. Caldwell, editor of The Observer, suffered a slight stroke of paralysis yesterday afternoon a little after a o'clock while at work in his office in The Observer Building on South Tryon street. Mr. Caldwell had just returned from lunch and was about to begin his accustomed labors of the day when he experienced a peculiar sensation in his right hand and right side. He sought to investigate, aware that something was wrong, and fell. Dr. E. C. Hegstater, who was close at hand, was called in and he pronounced the attack a slight stroke of paralysis, the sensory nerves only of the right side being affected. The motor centers were not involved. Dr. Hegstater states that Mr. Caldwell will be able to be out soon, as the attack is of a temporary nature. Mr. Caldwell is being cared for at the Charlotte Sanatorium.

Mr. R. M. Stevenson, who has been connected with the Southern Cotton Oil Company's Gastonia office, has been promoted to a position at the local office and has taken up his abode.
