Both Frank Gotch, the world's champion wrestler, and Dr. Roller, his next opponent, are in splendid condition for their contest to be held in Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday, April 27. Gotch recently defended his title against Yusuf Mahmout, the Bulgarian, in Chicago. Dr. Roller, of Seattle, Wash., is one of the most picturesque figures in American athletics to-day. Not only is he a great wrestler, but as a football star he shone brilliantly few years ago, and, then, he can go some with the padded mitts, doctor recently beat "Denver Ed" Martin. Roller is built along the same line sas Gotch but is one inch taller and probably five pound heavier. He has defeated every good American wrestler, barring the lowan, and even Gotch admits that the Seattle physician gave him the hardest tusele of his career when they net in Seattle two years ago. At that time Roller weighed 190 pounds. To-day he tips the beam at 212 pounds. The doc-Street: Class C.
