Strange Colored Man Visited Neighboring Houses. ultimate capture of the negro who entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Kaufmann on Seventh street Saturday morning remains a matter of grave doubt. It has developed that a negro man answering substantially the description given of the culprit that morning went to the front doors of the homes of a number of families living in that vicinity. At one place, after being told that the husband was away and belattle and Julia McNinch ing asked his business he inquired as to whether any painting was desired done. At another he said he had been sent to do some work about the house. At another he made inquiry of the children. This may or may not be the individual desired.

Pickles, Not Lemons, This Time. Officer J. M. Earnhardt, the night turnkey at police headquarters, had finished watering the human stock and was just wondering where trouble would break loose next. The telephone bell shattered the atmosphere. "Hello," said the policeman, his ear to the receiver and his mouth to the transmitter. "Say," asked a voice, "have you got any loose pickles?"

"No, but if I had you. I'd have one, a good sour one," answered the man at headquarters, who is something of "This is No. 88," he added parenthetically. Bang went the receiver angrily at the other end of the line.

Baptist Excursion to Wilmington This Morning. The Pritchard Memorial Baptist Sunday school excursion for Wrightsville Beach leaves the passenger station of the Scaboard Air Line Railway Company this morning at 8 o'clock. A large crowd is expected to take in the trip. A reserved seat coach is carried at the rear. Special cars will meet the train at Wilmington bearing the passengers to the beach. Tomorrow the steamer "Wilmington," specially chartered, will leave the wharf at 9:30 for a trip down the Capa Fear and out on the Atlantic ocean. Numbers of persons from surrounding towns are expected to join the party here.
