New Furniture for the Postoffice - R. R. Talk-Mitchell People Leave for Ohio-Married. Marion News, Feb. 13th.

Monday night a party from Big Rock Creek, Mitchell county boarded the west bound train for Canton, Ohio. Another company of as many more is expected to follow next week. They said they were leaving Mitchell because they made no crops last year in consequence of the flood, and had nothing to subsist on. They heard the oil fields about Canton offer tempting inducements to laborers and they expect to find work at good wages.

We hear the surveying corps of a line through the Gillespie gap, down Armstrong about with the line known as the Matson survey. That line ran down Tom's creek to the Catawba and crossed the river about a quarter of a mile west of the iron bridge and then to Marion. Our understanding has always been that both engineer Matson and Butler pronounced this the most practical route across the Blue Ridge, and if adopted the railroad will come to Marion, and no mistake.

The new furniture for the postoffice has arrived and postmaster Crawford has the same placed in position. The equipment is complete, pretty, attractive and convenient. The front boxes (96 lock boxes) are constructed of solid bronze, metalic frame that covers all of the wood work on the public side, each box front is furnished with a plated glass panel and the numbers are in black shaded with red.
