Kind Words for the County Paper and the Cause of Education.

Correspondence of The News-Herald.

I have been prompted by an unseen force to try to write a letter to your valuable paper, that should be more liberally patronized; yes, to the extent of every family being a subscriber and sympathizer, and if able, a contributor. Then THE NEWS-HERALD would be everybody's paper in fact, and not largely Morganton's paper, as it is, and why? Because Morganton buys (subscribers for it) and pays for space in it and occasionally contributes an article. This makes it look like her paper; but you could (I mean the country folks) make it appear in like manner as your paper by doing as they do, as before stated, and in this way not only would the paper be bettered but all the people of the community or county as well. If every family in the county would take this interest in the paper it would bring all the people in closer touch, and they would all know what things of interest are taking place in the county. To illustrate: Last summer THE NEWS-HERALD printed the State announcement for farmers' institutes, and to this the editor gave considerable editorial space and in a forceful way set forth the great good that could be gained by attending these annual institutes, and the importance of a liberal attendance. The result was the largest and most enthusiastic institute that has ever been held in Morganton, and I am sure a goodly number present were benefitted in dollars many times the price of a year's subscription to THE NEWS-HERALD, and what would have been the attendance if every family had been a subscriber and thus learned of the meeting and the importance of it? What did the editor get for this editorial? The writer at the close of the meeting extended thanks to him, and while this was proper, "Thankie will starve a cat." Moral: Every farmer should subscribe to THE NEWS-HERALD for his common good. But some will say they don't like something about the paper, and I will say that I have not in the past been in full harmony with the paper; but again I recall the fact that the editor who ran a paper pleasing all has long since died, and were we to undertake the task we would likely succeed less favorably. So this is no reason why you should not subscribe. Try it one year and be convinced of its merits.

My article is growing too long, but in this connection I want to congratulate the people of Burke county on their forward march along educational lines and to express my great satisfaction with an enthusiastic meeting of the board of education held recently, when a number of petitions were before the board asking for a chance to vote on local tax districts. It was an inspiration to see the friends of the several petitions contending between each other (in a friendly way) for boundaries, and to now learn that the elections have been held and that the cause of education has triumphed almost unanimously is most gratifying. And I must not fail to mention the

More Improvements—St. Paul's Church
Struck By Lightning During Saturday's Storm.

Correspondence of The News-Herald.

Honor to whom honor is due. Through an oversight I failed to give the Southern R. R. credit for work done here. The bridge across the railroad above the depot connecting Linville and Asheville streets, has been taken in hand by the railroad force and repaired and whitewashed, which adds much to its usefulness and appearance. The depot is resplendent with a fresh coat of paint, and a passenger landing has been made above and below the depot. The railroad is to be congratulated in having for its agent here Mr. T. A. Simpson, whose genial nature and accommodating spirit causes all who are thrown in contact with him to feel at home.

Pitts & Giles have built a new warehouse in rear of their store, which will add to the handling of business.
Mr. Lum Daves, of Dewartville, is running the sewing machine part of the business, selling furniture, etc., for Hatcher Furniture Co. of this place.
Miss Helen Davis, who has been here for several days on a visit to her uncle, Mr. M. A. Davis, returned to her home at Waynesville, N. C., to-day.

Mr. E. J. Sigmon, by repairs and painting, has added much to the attractiveness of his store and dwelling-house on Linville street.
Saturday, between 2 and 3 o'clock, quite a storm of wind and rain struck this place. St. Paul's church, an important mission point of the Episcopal church north-west of here about 2 miles on the west side of the Catawba river, was struck by lightning during the storm. The tower, on the west end of the church, was badly damaged, the forms around the concrete steps leading into the tower torn to pieces, the lightning passing through the tower into the main body of the church. A large rock in the wall of the church was split open, pieces of rock thrown out of the wall and balls of fire rolled from one end of the church to the other, setting fire to some loose paper near a can of linseed oil and some fat pine. Tom Irving, col., one of the workmen, with his coat put the fire out. Had it caught the oil and pine nothing could have saved the church. There were four workmen in the building at the east end of the church. Had they been at or near the west end all would have been killed. They were all more or less shocked. One was driving a nail when the bolt struck and was knocked down and his hammer thrown from him. His arm became very sore from the shock.

STABLES BURNED AT NEWTON.

Twenty-Four Horses and Mules Perish
in the Flames—Yount & Wilson the Sufferers.

Newton Special, 22nd, to Charlotte Observer.

Last night shortly after midnight the sale stable belonging to Yount & Wilson, on Pine street, was found to be on fire. The fire was discovered by the man who sleeps on the premises but the flames had gained such headway that nothing could be done to save the building or its contents. Twenty-four horses and mules lost their lives.

Immediately after discovering the fire the man opened the front door and two horses rushed out. One escaped unhurt, but the other was so badly burned that it was killed shortly afterwards. Mr. Zeb. Yount, one of the owners, rushed into the burning building and tried heroically to save some of the horses, but could not get them to come out. When discovered the fire had gained such headway that the fire companies had to give all their attention to saving the buildings nearby.

Besides the stable, the old office of the firm, as well as the new one just completed, and into which Mr. Yount had only recently moved, were destroyed. A small barn across the street belonging to Misses Relia and Sue Jarrett was also burned. This barn was filled with fodder and hay belonging to Mr. Bud Poovy. In it was an automobile belonging to Mr. A. H. Williams, of Maiden, which was saved.

The gentlemen forming the firm are Mr. Zeb. Yount and Mr. A. M. Wilson, of Newton, the former residing in town, the latter several miles in the country. They carried upon buildings and stock insurance of $3,500, which will only cover the loss of the horses. These gentlemen calculate their loss over and above the insurance to be about $2,000. There is no clue whatever as to how the fire originated.

Teacher And Child.

Asheville Citizen.

Few parents stop to think that the greater part of child life is spent in the schoolroom, and that the mind, influence and character of the teacher very often, if not always, make or mar the future man or woman. For this reason school boards and other governing authorities should exercise the greatest care in the selection of the teaching staffs, since, of course, the parents can have no voice in the matter. These remarks are prompted by an excellent article on "The Teacher and Child" written by Stephen S. Wise in the October number of the Pacific Monthly. Among other things he says:

"The needs of the teacher are only two, but they mean so much—preparation and consecration. Preparation is the never-ceasing process of fitting oneself from day to day for the ever increasingly difficult task of teaching. Consecration is a sense of devotion to the teacher's calling, arising from a realization of the sacredness of the teacher's responsibility. Consecration may be reduced to simpler terms—love! Love for the child; love for the task! And love in turn implies so much—respect, sympathy, forbearance. Love for the child! Edward Everett Hale and Helen Keller were talking of a school which she and a friend were to open, and Helen expatiated upon the way in which the school was to be conducted. He said: "But Helen, what are you going to do?" "Oh," said she, "I am going to love the children." So feels the heaven-ordained teacher.

"Love and reverence for the child will beget the sympathy and forbearance which are two-thirds of the victory. The child mind and its laws, the child psychology must be known, but this knowing of science is not enough. There must be patience and sympathy with the child life, the fewest do's and don'ts. The Decalogue contains, as its name implies, just ten commandments. How many teachers are as inexact as Moses? Love for the work! Without love for the work it is impossible that the teacher should be possessed of and by the indispensable quality of enthusiasm and personality.

"The teacher must be enthusiastic in order to teach. The teacher in the pulpit and the teacher in the schoolroom should be chosen with regard to character above all things. The ancients appreciated that a teacher must be worthy in order to teach. Montaigne tells of the rearing of a Persian prince. At the age of fourteen the child was delivered into the hands of four men the wisest, the justest, the most temperate and the most valiant of the nation. The first taught him religion; the second to be upright and true; the third, to become master of his own desires; the fourth, to fear nothing. Almost anybody is good enough to teach—seems at times to be the rule which governs us in the choice of teachers; in truth, only our finest men and women are good enough to teach."

The teacher should fully understand the important part he plays in the moulding of child life, and if he feels that he is not capable of drawing out all that is best in the child, he should find another vocation.

"Are you related to Barney O'Brien?" Thomas O'Brien was once asked.

"Very distantly," replied Thomas. "I was me mother's first child—Barney was the seventeenth."

DON'T STOP MY PAPER.

Don't stop my paper printer;
Don't strike my name off yet;
You know the cash comes slowly,
And the dollars hard to get;
But tug a little harder
Is what I mean to do,
And scrape the dimes together,
Enough for me and you.
I can't afford to drop it,
And find it doesn't pay
To do without a paper,
However others may.
I hate to ask my neighbors
To give me theirs to loan;
They don't just say but mean it:
"Why don't you get your own."

We do not want to stop it,
Or seem to be unkind;
We would love to send it to you
Until you saved the dimes,
But Uncle Sammy, don't you know,
With a purely legal shout,
Has said unless you pay us,
We're bound to cut you out.

BULL-BAT AND WHIPPOORWILL.

Are They the Same Bird?—Mr. L. E.
Webb Gives His Side of the Question—Esq. Sparks Will Have to Watch Out.

To the Editor of The News-Herald:
Referring to your question in last week's issue, "Is a Bull-Bat and a Whippoorwill the Same Bird," and also the contention of Esq. Sparks, would say:

I have made a special study of birds, and mounting and dissecting same, for years, and have mounted and carefully examined both bull-bat and whippoorwill, and find there is no comparison between the two birds to prove they are the same.

The color of the whippoorwill is very dark, mingled with brown, with no white spots, while the bull-bat is grey, mingled with white spots, and with large white spots on wings.

The whippoorwill has a large number of stiff bristles or whiskers protruding several inches from the sides of the mouth, while the bat has only a few, and more pliant and shorter. The whippoorwill is never seen soaring in the air, and unless scared up never leaves cover until night fall, always making short flights, owing to inability to see well in day-light, while the bat soars for hours in the air.

Have also examined the eggs side by side. The whippoorwill's are about one-third larger and nearly round, light color with decidedly brown spots, while the bat's are longer and more greyish color, with smaller and paler spots.

The toes of the whippoorwill are shorter, and legs and toes are thickly covered with small feathers, while the bat's are very thin and entirely different growth.

While the birds look somewhat similar from ordinary observation, a careful examination will prove they are entirely different.

Facts For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Minneapolis, Minn.:—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women, I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. Within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefits to be derived from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. John G. Moldan, 2115 Second St. North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.
