150 Leap To Death.

Fire in New York Leaves Piles of Dead and Dying in its Wake.

New York Dispatch, 25th.
More than 150 persons, 50 of whom were girls, lost their lives in a fire which swept a large building in Washington Square late this afternoon. The fire started on the seventh floor of the building in the shirt waist factory just before the time to close down.

Most of those who perished were killed by leaping from the factory windows before the hook and ladder wagons arrived on the scene. The girls were among the first to jump, the men not leaping until they were scorched by the flames and all the exits were cut off.

The rescuers rushed to reach those cut off by the flames above the seventh floor, because the building from the seventh to the tenth floor was occupied by the Triangle waist factory and was stored with much combustible merchandise.

The firemen in a frenzy were compelled, by their inability to give aid, to see the girls leap to death to escape the flames which were fast wrapping their tortures around them.

A young man and a girl appeared at a window on the eighth floor, clasped in each others embrace. The young man pressed a kiss to the girls lips and then she leaped to death with the man following.

Hundreds in the streets and the square, and girls from adjoining factories, ran shrieking with horror as they saw their friends leaping to death to escape the flames.

The fire had been burning an hour before the firemen made their way to the inner air shaft at the top of a one-story building at the rear and were paled by the sickening sight of the dead and the dying. At 6 o'clock seventy-five bodies were piled in the street.

Fire Chief Croker said: "This calamity is just what I have been predicting. There were no outside fire escapes on this building. I have been advocating and agitating that fire escapes be put on the buildings just such as this. This large loss of life is due to this negligence."

Fireman Dissroth, driver for Deputy Fire Chief Binns, reported that he had seen 55 bodies piled up on the ninth floor.

Death of Two Young Ladies Caused by Lamp Explosion.

Wadesboro Dispatch, 24th.
Two persons lost their lives last night when an oil lamp exploded at a neighborhood party at Olive Branch, in Union county.

The dead are: Miss Grace Baucum, aged 17 years, and Miss Wilma Davis, aged 21.

The victims had gone into a room with another young lady, and were arranging their hair, when, to obtain a better view, Miss Baucum held the lamp slanting, so as to direct its rays upon the mirror. It exploded in her hands, saturating the clothing of both with kerosene and inflicting burns from which they died early this morning. The third member of the party was not seriously injured. It is believed they also inhaled the flames.

The party was at the home of K. Pritchard, and at the time of the fatal accident there were more than 25 merry young folks present.

Miss Baucum was a daughter of H. L. Baucum, and Miss Davis a daughter of the Rev. "Cul" Davis. Both families are well known in this section and the deepest sympathy is felt for them. Both young ladies were popular and universally admired for their splendid personalities and high Christian lives.

"Sometime in severe attacks," he wrote, "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. KITCHIN AGAINST SIMMONS FIGHT ON IN DEAD EARNEST.

Present Governor Will Wage Strenuous Fight For Senior Senatorship—Other Candidates May Enter the Race.

Mr. H. E. C. Bryant, writing from Washington under date of the 24th, says:
Tarheel democrats are on the warpath. They are launching one of the liveliest campaigns that North Carolina ever witnessed. Senator Simmons, the game cock of the state delegation here, precipitated this fight by two acts during the closing days of the last congress. His voice for the acquittal of Senator Lorimer, for whom Senator Bailey and others battled so royally, is the red rag to the "progressive democrats" of the Old North State. "Progressive democrat" is what the anti-Simmons men call themselves. The speech of the senior senator against President Taft's reciprocity treaty with Canada is another red rag to the "progressives." I hardly landed here when I first got wind of the promised battle between the North Carolina "regulars" and "the progressives."

Several names are mentioned daily in connection with the contest—the contest over the seat now held in the United States senate by Mr. Simmons. Gov. Kitchin, it is understood, will be the principal opponent of Mr. Simmons at the outset but others will be brought out later. The most interesting story, which comes from Raleigh in connection with the situation, is that Ed Justice, the brilliant, daring democrat of Guilford county, will move to Raleigh in the course of a few months and enter the race for keeps. It is argued that he is the "real progressive" of the state. Claude Kitchin, now one of the heavy weights on the house ways and means committee, helping Oscar Underwood and others to make a few tariff schedules, is picked by some to win in the event that his brother Bill, Senator Simmons and others deadlock the legislature. Charles Brantly Aycock is called the favorite dark horse of the lot by some. Claude Kitchin told me that he would not be in the race.

The friends of Judge Walter Clark would like to run him, it is said, but for reasons best known to themselves they will not enter him at this time.

F. M. Simmons and William Walton Kitchin are in the field. The boys are already at work. Simmons, who has already shown the courage of his convictions, is standing pat—downright pat—on his record. Thirty thousand copies of his speech on reciprocity will be sent to the state, and he is making no excuses for his vote on Lorimer.

The fight is on and will be to the last ditch. Heretofore Senator Simmons has been backed by a majority of the representatives of the house from the state, and it is believed now that he will have most of them when the curtains fall. However, Claude Kitchin, the clever politician of the famous Kitchin brothers, has a mighty whip in his hand. As a member of the "committee on committees" he can come pretty close to assigning the North Carolina congressmen to committees. Will he use his power for political purposes? That is a question. North Carolinians at the capital are intensely interested in the matter.

Claude Kitchin is looked upon as the plum man for the Tarheel delegation. It has been so long since the democrats had a look in on party patronage that some of the applicants are over-anxious to land. Mr. Kitchin is hearing from every section of the state. Some dozen or so places may be filled by North Carolinians.

These are some of the things that are entering the old Simmons-Kitchin controversy.

Prize Lie of the Year.

Mr. Howard Banks is the editor of the Hickory Democrat. He is also the author of the following story, which is respectfully submitted as the biggest "lie" of the year, and for which the Mendacity medal, annually given by Col. Wade Harris, of the Charlotte Chronicle, should be awarded:

"Did you ever hear of Stuart Coffey's pipe organ at Boone?" asked Mr. J. Lenoir Cilley of a Democrat man in the First National Bank.

"Never did?"
"Well, it was this way: You know the wind comes roaring down through a narrow gap there at Boone. All the wind from Tennessee rushes through at one time, and it so happens that all the chimneys in Boone are built in a straight line from the gap. When the first chimney—that of the hotel—was built it was soon seen that when the wind blew down from the gap it made the hotel chimneys whistle on the same principal of a boy blowing into a hollow cane.

"Now the brick masons of Boone took note of the phenomena, and when they built other chimneys from time to time, as houses were added to this charming little mountain village, they built some lower than others, so that the wind, as it blew over them, would run the chromatic scale.

Stuart Coffey, Tom Coffey's boy—he's a bookkeeper for Hinkle Craig Live Stock company at Lenoir now—was a musical genius and he made some apparatus to go over the tops of the chimneys, attaching ropes to each one. Of these he collected the ends in his room at the Coffey house, and on blustering, Boreal nights he would sit in his room by the hour and play grand pipe organ music, which would startle the belated driver of the covered wagon hauling Watauga cabbages or apples to lowland markets, so that they would almost think that doomsday was at hand.

"I am surprised you never heard of Tom Coffey's house chimney pipe organ. Ask old man Josh Winkle or Bill Fletcher about it. They know it's so.

the Atlantic Hotel and the Norfolk & Southern Railway, was present and cordially invited the editors to meet at Morehead City. An invitation was also received from the Oceanic, the new hotel at Wrightsville Beach. Col. A. B. Williams, the able editor of the News and the Times at Roanoke, Va., came all the way to Salisbury to extend the newspaper men a pressing invitation to meet in that progressive city of Old Virginia.

Mr. Wade Harris, of the Charlotte Chronicle, was present, and spoke for the selection of Lenoir on account of the fact that a trip to this section of the State would be educational and the editors would have an opportunity to become better acquainted with its wonderful natural resources and scenery.

After these kind invitations had been received the committee went into executive session and considered them. After thoroughly going over them it was decided to go to Lenoir. June 20 to 23 was fixed as the date.

A side-trip to Blowing Rock, Boone and Linville will be arranged and altogether the 1911 meeting promises to be one of the most delightful the Association has yet held.
