The Old North State.

The Washington Times of the 6th says editorially:

The shiftings of political authority which go with changes of party and personnel, bring some interesting situations. Just now I have several of the latest North Carolina commands attention because of the probability 1st, 1914, entitled, "Me and Pa that in the next Congress she will number in her delegation the Let me name you prices and leaders of both houses. In the first place, Senator Simmons is chairman of the Committee on Finance, which deals with tariff and revenue problems. It is always a committee of the very first rank. Despite that one large section of its authority was taken from it when the Committee on Banking and Currency was created, it is still probably the most distinguished committee of the upper body.

Simmons will continue its leader. The corresponding committee in the House, that on Ways and Means, is now headed by Mr. Underwood. He will move to the Senate, and Mr. Kitchin of North Carolina will become leader of the majoricy-assuming that the Democrats retain the control, which seems altogether probable-and chairman of Ways and Means. No committe has more to do with framit legislation and determining icies in the present era, than that on Judiciary, the great law committee, in a way the supreme court of the House. Alabama gives way at two very important points to North Carolina.

The Senate Judiciary chairman is Mr. Culberson of Texas, who is seriously ill and very possibly will not attempt to resume his duties in another session. Should he vacate the Judic'ary chairmanship in the upper house, it would go by sen'ority to Senator Overman of North Carolina. Thus the North Carolina delegation would hold the lead rship of the House, and the chairmanship of what many regard as the two most important committees in both houses. It is decidedly a notable coincidence, and it testifies anew to the wisdom of that policy which a number of States have followed, of keeping their ty is my opponent's champion. delegations long enough in sering places.

GLEN ALPINE HIGH SCHOOL Congressman Webb Replie to Mr. Preston.

To the Editor of The News-Herald: In view of some insinuations made by my opponent in a recent newspaper article, and which he has been distributing over the district, I wish to say that I never represented the Southern Railway in my life. I have often appeared against it. The two questions the Southern Railroad has been interested in before Congress during the last ten (10) years were the Southern Fast Mail Subsidy, and the Federal Compensation Act. 1 voted against both of them. The Hailroad was for them. My oppoment knows these facts as well as I do, and yet he has been unfair and unfrank enough to attempt to prejudice my friends against me by dragging into his article Hon. C. F. Mason, who represents the Southern Railroad, and he insinuates that, because Mr. Mason is my personal friend, such fact should be used against

This is whining pure and simple, and if I were given to this method of insinuation, I should say that the Whiskey Trust is backing my opponent, because the liquor organ, "The National Review," published at Washington, D. C., launched a criticism against me in its issue of May Killed the Bear."

I might further argue that the liquor trust and the liquor forces are backing my opponent, because the LEADING LIQUOR ADVOmanding position, but never has CATE AND ANTI-PROHIBITIONIST, it. her representation held so many in Western North Carolina, is posts of first-rate importance as campaigning in behalf of my opponent, and against me.
