Federal office holder who attends political conventions or participates in the conduct of partisian affairs. Those who disagree with Mr. Watts upon some matters of political import have been seeking to make the Collector the sole offender of President Wilson's appointees bccause he dared to exercise the privilege and right of attending the recent Democratic State convention and voting his convictions. But he had plenty of company. The collector for the Eastern District, Hon. Josiah William Bailey, was on the ground and spoke loud and long before members of the platform committe, as the representative of the progressive meeting held a few weeks previous. But not a word of criticism do we hear of Mr. Bailey. Hon. W. C. Hanmer, District Attorney of the Western District, had the hardihood to appear as a delegate and voted his county for the minority

A GLIMPSE OF A FAIRYLAND IN THE GREAT SOUTH GARDENS.

Panama Pacific International Exposition Company

Upon entering the main gates of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition from San Francisco the visitor will find he must traverse a vast stretch of landscaped grounds, wherein are set millions of beautiful flowers in bloom, where fountains play and groups of statuary are set at intervals. This is the great South Gardens. The photograph herewith shows the South Gardens as they are today and gives a glimpse of the fairyland which will delight exposition visitors. Thousands of rare trees, palms and shrubs have been brought from all parts of the world for the landscaping, which is carried on in that sumptuous way which the semi-tropical climate of California permits. There have been brought to San Francisco giant tree ferns from Australia, rhododendrons from England and West Virginia, tulips from Holland, banana plants from Hawaii and Central America. Large trees, some of them more than sixty feet in height and of great girth, have been transplanted to the grounds. The Panama-Pacific International Exposition opens in San Francisco in February, 1915.

The British and French ambassadors, Sir Edward Goschen and Jules Cambon, called on the minister of foreign affairs, Herr Von Jagow, with communications from their governments. Authentic information has been received in Berlin that Russia though not mobilizing her army, is taking certain precautionary military measures. Runs on savings banks by small depositors in various parts of Germany were the outstanding features of the day, which despite the first bloodshed of the Austro-Servian conflict, registered a slight but distinct increase in optimism regarding the test of all. situation

The British ambassador made no concrete proposals. It is understood he told the German foreign minister that Great Britain's object was not to intervene in the Austro-Servian controversy but sought a basis on which Great Britain, France and Germany by action at Vienna and St. Petersburg, could prevent the spread of the conflict.
