ESCAPES DROWNING; KILLED BY AUTO.

Robeson Farmer Stepped From Running Board of Machine, Meets Instant Death. Thomas Chason, a resident of the Lumber Bridge section of Robeson, was instantly killed by being run over by an automobile, Thursday afternoon at New Home schoolhouse, two miles from his home. He stepped from the running board of the moving machine and was run over. Mr. Chason's death occurred a few hours after he had narrowly escaped drowning while fishing his boat sank with him. He managed to save his life only to lose it a few hours later.

Mr. Chason was a prospective young farmer and had many friends. He was a member of the military company at Lumber Bridge. His mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Chason, and several brothers survive.

Mr. Chason had three uncles who met violent deaths. One of them, J. A. Chason, who was chief of police of Fayetteville, was killed by a negro, Tom Walker, in a raid at Walker's house in 1907; another uncle, James Chason, was killed by an officer in this city during the Fayetteville fair in 1911, while a third, Charles Chason, was killed on the plantation of the late Capt. A. B. Williams, in Bladen county.

A Suffragette Tragedy.

Sad news comes from the camp of the English militant suffragettes. They have lost their "war chest."

The Women's Social and Political Union, as Mrs. Pankhurst's organization is called, had an enormous campaign fund. On August 7, Christopher Pankhurst announced in the Suffragette that it had reached $860,000. Since the militants distrusted British banks, the money was deposited abroad; it is believed to have been banked in Germany. And now not one penny of it is available.

Other women's organizations have formed relief corps and are actively engaged in serving their country in its need. The militants, who might have won public support by using their wonderfully efficient machine for similar service, are criticized now for their inactivity.

Kansas City Flooded.

Night fell on Kansas City with many sections under water because of the overflowing of Turkey creek. Three thousand homes, it is estimated, were flooded and several hundred families driven from their homes. The water was receding but there was much danger from collapsing buildings. Two men were killed when they came in contact with a broken trolley wire, and a number were injured. The total loss is estimated at about $1,500,000.

Turkey creek, a drainage always treacherous, was a harmless thread of murky water when the men and women who live in the valley southwest of the city went to bed last night. Then came a rain which continued ten hours and fifty minutes with a fall 6.94 inches, the biggest rainstorm ever recorded in Kansas City.

Wake Forest opened last Thursday with an enrollment of 380. Davidson College began work the same day with something like 120 new students present, 110 of whom are freshmen.

The Granite Falls Manufacturing Company at Granite Falls will spend about $3,000 for improvements.

It is adding 500 twistlers and 300 spooling machines, overhauling spinning room and repairing cottages. The Ivey Manufacturing Company of this city is also making extensive improvements. Surely these men believe there is a future for the textile industry, and are not in sympathy with the calamity cry of disappointed politicians.—Hickory Democrat, Sept. 3.

HAPPY MOTHERHOOD

The happiness of motherhood is too often checked because the mother's strength is not equal to her cares, while her unselfish devotion neglects her own health. It is a duty of husband or friend to see that she gets the pure medicinal nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, which is not a drug or stimulant but nature's concentrated oil-food tonic to enrich and invigorate the blood, strengthen the nerves and aid the appetite. Physicians everywhere prescribe Scott's Emulsion for overworked, nervous, tired women; it builds up and holds up their strength.

"STOP, LOOK, LISTEN." Automobile Drivers "Flirting With Death."

Greenboro Correspondence, 4th. Many automobile drivers are daily "flirting with death" by failing to observe the highway regulation, "stop, look listen," when approaching railway crossings, declares Engineer M. C. Glenn, of Southern Railway, who makes a plea that people using the public roads take some consideration of the feelings of engineers as well as be more careful of their own safety.

"Yesterday I was engineer on Southern Railway train No. 108 and at Williams crossing, which is about four miles west of Raleigh," says Mr. Glenn, "I only missed striking an automobile about two seconds, and in this automobile were grown people and children. If I had struck the automobile and killed or injured those people some one would have said that the engineer failed to blow, etc., when in fact, I had just sounded the whistle for Thompson, answered a signal from the conductor, and had blown a road crossing signal. The bell was ringing also, but the driver of the auto evidently did not hear any of the signals for when I came in sight of him, which was for a short distance on account of a curve in the track, the driver averted a collision by suddenly cutting his car to the right and I passed within 10 or 12 feet of him."

Mr. Glenn calls attention to the fact that if drivers of automobiles and other conveyances would observe the rule, "stop, look, listen," when approaching railroad crossings they would safeguard their own as well as other people's lives to say nothing of the property loss in case of accident.

Paris and Bordeaux.

Not a few newspapers believed that the removal of the French capital from Paris to Bordeaux was practically the beginning of the end, as far as the allies are concerned, and that the change in the seat of government denoted in substance the flight before danger of the national administration. As a matter of fact, military experts agree that the transfer was a wise move, and that it evinced a mastery of tactics which makes impossible the surrender of the government proper as was the case in 1870. Should Paris be taken by the Germans the government will still be intact, and beyond the frightful losses in lives and property which might ensue from a prolonged bombardment, the capture of Paris would not mean any more than the capture of the smaller French cities has meant up to date. But the probabilities are that the fall of Paris is a long way from accomplishment. As stated in Associated Press dispatches yesterday morning, before Paris can fall, the British, French and Russian troops must be annihilated or captured before the Germans can enter the city on the Seine. It is true that up to the present time the Germans have approached perilously near Paris in the face of the allies' vigorous opposition, but there is ground for the belief that the allies have purposely led the enemy on in order to get him within range of the outer forts of the capital. Such, at least, is the belief of military observers, and the reverses to the German arms south and east of Paris, reported last night, lend color to this opinion. With the Parisian forts and the allies in front, while the Russians attack them in the rear, the Germans have anything but an easy task when they attempt the capture of Paris. The dispatches this morning that the Germans are fighting with their backs to the capital, or rather the former capital, and thus it would seem that they are already on the defensive.

The News-Herald's New Linotype.

The above is a picture of the Model K Linotype now in operation in THE NEWS-HERALD office and on it was set the reading matter for this issue. It is able to do the work of five or six hand typesetters and with it we are enabled to better meet the increased demand on the newspaper and job departments. Our patrons and friends are cordially invited to drop in and see this wonderful machine at work. In fact, it can do most anything but write editorials and make a man pay his subscription.

The Mergenthaler Fable.

The Observer has always understood that the inventor of the Mergenthaler typesetting machine had been chiseled out of his reward by a heartless company, and that he died in a poor house, but Mr. Fred J. Wharburton comes to the front with some facts which are calculated to shatter this tradition. Ottmar Mergenthaler was a mechanic working at $3.50 a day when he was engaged by a party of Washington reporters to work on a typesetting machine which had been invented by Charles H. Moore. He worked on it for two years, but although he improved it, the machine was not made a commercial success. He used the money he got in securing an education in the printing art and by which he was afterward enabled to perfect the Mergenthaler machine. Mr. Mergenthaler, instead of having been robbed, died a rich man. He had received liberal royalties and from these his family has been receiving an income of $50,000 a year. The Observer is glad to have this knowledge. Mergenthaler, through his inventive genius, revolutionized the printing business, and the fact that he was enriched, and not impoverished through it, makes the music of the Linotype machine sound the pleasantest every time one comes within ear shot of it.

Mr. J. T. Hawley, of Rockingham, sent a telegram to Mr. O. M. Mull this week saying that he had been successful in borrowing the $50,000 with which to start the construction of the Casar railroad, but he had to see some railroad officials and did not get here Monday to meet the Advisory Board which has agreed to recommend his proposition to the county commissioners. He will be here Monday to talk over the matter with the county commissioners.—Shelby Star, Sept. 4th.

An Old Confederate Soldier Passes Away.

In Catawba county, on the 3d day of September, 1914, Ambrose Williams passed away, after over a year's affliction. He served in the Confederate Army for more than the last two years of the Civil War, in Co. D, 6th N. C. Regiment and was a good and faithful soldier. He belonged to the M. E. Church, South, and was a member of Ebenezer church, in Catawba county. Hewas a consistent member of that church for thirty years. He leaves a widow and one son, A. M. Williams, and three daughters, Mrs. Aiken, Minnie Williams and Mrs. Julia Hudson; four brothers, John Williams, Wm. Williams, Joseph Williams, and Richard Williams, besides many friends, to mourn his departure. He was 70 years of age.

Pulling Fodder.

At this time of the year most farmers in this part of the country are working hard with all the force they can command to save fodder. The crowds of men and women who may be seen in the fields give the country an appearance of unusual industry. Yet we are told by the men who have investigated, that all this work is not only unnecessary, but absolutely harmful. They say that the taking of the fodder off the corn stops it from developing and causes it to shrink and lose in weight and nutriment, more than enough to pay for the fodder saved. Now if this is true, many a hard day's labor can be saved and the value of the corn crop can be increased by letting the fodder remain on the stalks. It is a difficult matter to test.
