On The Screen at The Lyric

Manager Rogers opens the New Year at his Lyric theatre with a two-day run Monday and Tuesday of "The Young in Heart," a story of faith, beautifully portrayed. A charming, impoverished family—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Janet Gaynor, Roland Young, and Billie Burke—use their wits to get everything they want. They finally meet a rich, old lady, with whom they become intimate in hopes they can be remembered in her will. But her will is stronger than the charm and the family settles down—Young secures work selling motors; Fairbanks falls in love; Paulette Goddard and Janet Gaynor declares her love.

Joe E. Brown stars in Wednesday's attraction, "Flirting with Fate." In the cast are Leo Carrillo, Beverley Roberts, Wynne Gibson and Steffi Duna.

Famed Sally Rand, who made head-lines with her fan dance at the Chicago Fair and later on a personal appearance tour of the nation, stars in "Sunset Strip Case," the picture booked for Thursday and Friday. It was first called "Murder on Sunset Boulevard" but later renamed to place emphasis on the star. She poses as a dancer and gets a job in a London night club where her father, a detective, was murdered. She collects evidence against the owner, Paul Sutton, sufficient to convict him but barely manages to escape with her life.

Saturday's Westerner is "Shine on Harvest Moon with Roy Rogers and the show starting at 10:40 is "Time Out For Murder," another of the newspaper, racket-busting movies which were produced in recent months. Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen are the leading characters.
