Rev. W. M. Latta Coming to Erwin

(Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer) Officials of the church this week verified current rumors that Rev. William M. Latta has resigned as rector of Calvary Episcopal church parish. His resignation, recently presented to the vestry, is to become effective on January 1. He is giving up the pastoral charge including Calvary church in Wadesboro and All Souls church in Ansonville to accept a call to Saint Stephen's parish at Erwin in Harnett county. Erwin is a thriving manufacturing town, while the congregation of Saint Stephen's is larger than that of the Anson county church.

Rev. Mr. Latta is one of the most popular ministers in this section, a man of broad interests with an effective use of extensive educational attainments, deeply religious with a strong devotion to practical Christianity in churchmanship, and a forceful and convincing speaker. He ranks as the dean of Wadesboro clergymen, having come to the rectorate here on January 1, 1940.

On September 15, 1940, Rev. Mr. Latta was granted a leave of absence, he having been called then to active service in the Army from the status of a reserve officer in the National Guard. He served as chaplain through World War II, early in the conflict being promoted to captain. He held important supervisory duties in Army religious work, much of it overseas in England and elsewhere. He returned to civilian life in the Wadesboro pastorate on September 15, 1945.

Rev. Mr. Latta is a native of Wilmington, a graduate of Duke University and of the Theological Seminary of Virginia at Alexandria. His wife is the former Miss Betsy Harding, from Washington, N. C., and they have two children, W. M. (Billy), Jr., and Betty. This attractive and cultured family holds a warm place in the hearts of the people of this community generally, in addition, of course, to the affection of the Episcopalian fold; and so the news of their approaching departure has been received with keen regret and with best wishes for their success in a larger field of usefulness.
