AS THE EDITOR SEES IT
Let Us Use Forbearance

The hour is at hand for all peoples in the United States to use extreme caution and great forbearance in discussing the conflict in Europe, lest a spark ignite the powder which is to blow our neutrality to the four winds. The blood of every nation at war is mixed in our citizenship. The United States is made up of peoples from many lands. These people are good citizens, loyal to their adopted country, ready to defend it in case of need, but we cannot expect them to entirely forget the kindred ties of their nativity. The blood of their forefathers is calling to each of them, and in the heat of argument or in the stress of strong emotion it is easy to say or do that which will wound some man whose sympathies are with another country—with the place he once called home—with the land that shelters the bones of his ancestors. Let us use forbearance one to another. Let us concede to others that same right of sympathy which we ourselves enjoy. Let us remember that there is good among all peoples, honorable men of all races, justice in every land. Let us refrain from acrimonious debate, and turn our united energies to the preserving of our free country from the horrors of the conflagration which is devastating Europe.

Opportunity of a Community.

The farming interests of this community cannot place too much emphasis upon the advisability and necessity of making every foot of ground productive to the highest degree. With nearly the whole of Europe unproductive there will be a tremendous demand made upon America for food stuffs in the months to come, and this demand must be met or those people will starve.

This does not necessarily mean that America will be called upon to feed Europe gratis. Europe will pay in gold for what it gets from us, dollar for dollar.

A duty and an opportunity confront us. Duty demands that we produce to the limit, that the hungry across the water may be fed.

Opportunity knocks at our door, in that there will be a ready market at high prices for every ounce that we can sell. Even now the hand of Europe is outstretched across the water for American bread.

It is an opportunity for the building up of this agricultural community, for the enriching of our people, for an influx of foreign gold such as we have never known before.

For Europe must eat, and to eat Europe must buy the food stuffs we have to sell.

Let every foot of ground produce something for the financial weal of this community.

Tucky Party.

Much fun was afforded the young people on Friday evening Feb. 26, 1915, at a Tucky Party given by Mrs. W. T. Forbes. About eight o'clock the guest began to arrive, and smiles burst into loud appeals of laughter at the comical costumes.

After choosing partners the guests were ushered in the west parlor where they entered enthusiastically in an advertising contest. Mrs. B. Bunn and Mrs. G. B. Story being the winners.

Light refreshments were served to suit the occasion.

About 10:30 each guest was given a slip of paper on which they were to write the name of the tackiest lady and gentleman. Those receiving the most votes were Mrs. B. Bunn and Mr. G. B. Story. Mrs. Bunn wore a light blue silk skirt and a brown silk basque with red ribbon. This costume was worn during the war. Mr. Story wore uniform trousers, very short coat, red checked gingham tie, the bow reaching from shoulder to shoulder; his shoes were tied with striped ribbon, and he ramshacked J. Lynn & Co. for jewelry.

Those present were Mesdames G. B. Story, B. R. Bunn, Misses Margie Evans, Irma Boyette, Julia Benthall, Virgie, Ruth and Tullie Mae Sewell, Messes G. B. Story, B. R. Bunn, Tommie Benthall, Oris Matthews, Henderson Parker, Rufus and Charlie Story.
