FROSTINGS By ELSIE ANDERSON

1523, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate Mary stood back and regarded her inished handiwork. Its icing was perfect, winding in spirals and circles over the white surface, an intricute pattern, worked with the cumping of an experienced hand. Yet there was distaste rather than satisfaction in her look

"All this wasted on a birthday cake," she muttered to herself resentfully, "when I'd give everything to by working on the Cashman order !"

"That Cashman order" was the largest which had come to the Cooks' catering establishment in many a dayan order for wedding cake so gor geous as to embody the wildest visions of any baker. It was to be garnished by a tower of frosting, with a fairy white wedding bell, all so fancifully, delicately fashioned as to suggest spun glass. Mr. Cook himself was even now superintending the baking of the skeleton; an honor befitting a Cook cake that was to grace the most important wedding of the senson! Mary's eyes were dreamy as she watched the process, Romance had somehow passed her by in her 24 hard-working years, and she had fall-en into the habit of spending her starved little heart out on these confectionery creations which "witnessed the happy consummation of other people's loves. How she sentimentalized over even the most modest cake that was to adorn the wedding breakfast of some obscure little bride! Every crystal quirk was a symbol of a potential love which found its outlet in this pseudo romance.

Birthday cakes were different-and special favors like that batch of crys-tal rose cups that she had 'finished yesterday.

And now she was missing the Cashman cake, the most tantalizingly beau-tiful cake of the year; while Mr. Cook, who thought only in terms of dough and icings, to whom the beauty of a wedding meant only one more plume in the cap of "Cook-the Caterer. Orders Filled Without Delay"-he was to fashion that white crystal tower with his capable, unimaginative hands! She could have cried. It was like missing a brief love adventure of her own, somehow-a tragedy in her narrow, cheated life.

Suddenly Mary dropped her work, inspired. The thought was a mad one, but she did not stop to ponder its advisability. She knew that Mr. Cook was to supply 15 maids for the wedding breakfast dervice. If she could be one of them, to catch an intimate glimpse of the things she had visualized so often-the radiant bride, the groom, the guests, and the cake, momentarily the center of attraction, proudly, beautifully perfect!

Mr. Cook, respiendent in his starched whiteness, was in excellent humor. "Well, well, Mary-what can I do for you?" he asked, rubbing his hands in a genial way that he had.

"I want you to send me to the Cashman wedding," she told him, breathlessly afraid he would refuse. "I can serve quite well-and I have finished that birthday cake order for Mrs. I-I really wish to go very Ellis. much.'

"All right, then," he was good-naturedly amused at her insistence. Watkins is to be head waiter. You can see him about your uniform."

So it came about quite naturally that Mary tasted a bit of the frostings of life first hand. She trod the tiled floors of the spacious kitchen and the .92 carpets of the outer rooms, perfectly .02 content in simply being there. She was airing her stified love of beauty. .12 The wedding party had not yet arrived and Mary's heart beat wildly with an-.39 ticipation. She was tremendously ex-49 cited over the tiny part which she was to play in this sumptuous setting. She fluttered back and forth between the .50 .50 pantry and the dining hall, with cut .50 glass and silver, intensely alive to the .23 beauty of every appointment. .70

In Fortunate Albania They Knew Noth-ing of Such Things as Calen-dars or Clocks.

HAVE NO WORRY ABOUT DATES

Calendars and clocks are luxuries in Albania. The untutored peasantry know only three periods of timemorning, noon and night, and two seasons of the year, winter and sum Days and dates are Sanskrit to them. Nor have they any conception of dis-tances. When a traveler asks an Albanian the distance of one point from another, he never answers in miles or kilometers, but "it is half a day, it is two days, it is a week." When an Albanian makes an appointment, he is considered to have kept it if he comes within two or three hours of the time

With the absence of calendars, the people naturally do not know their correct ages, especially those in the country districts. In this respect the women of Albania enjoy an advantage over their sisters in foreign countries who guard so jealously the secret of their years. Often the age of an Albanian womac is unknown even to herself,

Arabe Use Opium Bait.

A novel way of catching fish by Arabs was described by Lieutenant Commander A. S. Elwell-Sutton in describing the work of the British gunboats on the river Tigris above Bagdad. The natives, there, he said, laid a ground bait of lumps of dough containing a small quantity of oplum. The fish swallowed that and, becoming stupefied, floated about with their white bellies uppermost. Arabs went in pursuit of them on blown-out sheepskins which they maneuvered with their feet while the hands were free to hold the landing net.

To Make Scientific Investigations. Mountain miners in the Andes do heavy labor in a rarefied atmosphere makes the slightest effort fathat tiguing to newcomers, says the Scientilic American, and Canadian scientists are in Peru to discover whether this immunity of the miners is due to changes in the blood or to other functions. The scientists will yield their own blood, both at sea level and at three-miles altitude, and the samples will go to our universities for analysis.

France Encourages Aviation. France recognizes the value of air travel and its importance to the future. She has, budgeted 154,878,000 francs for civilian aviation for the year 1922. Naturally, Paris is the great center of French commercial aviation, the Le Bourget airdrome in the suburbs takingon the appearance of a busy railway terminal, Airplanes to and from London (five departures daily) and Brussels carry the largest number of passencers.

But the excitement stood her in .36 poor stead. A slip of the hand, a .42 crash of tinkling glass, and a deep red stain of fruit Juice crept down the

.10 white front of her uniform! She had come so far, but she was not to serve, after all! The wedding breakfast .15 .10 would go on as though she were back .80 at Cook's, frosting birthday cake after .85 birthday cake. Tears of disappoint-ment blinded her so that she could .12 .12 not help in the kitchen. She made her way to a corner by the laundry chute. .24 and it was there that Watkins found .54 her, a doleful, huddled, sobbing slip .40 of a girl. .70

He had never especially noticed her .85 before; but there was an appeal about her grief that quickened his interest. .57 He tried awkwardly, to console her. .81 And she had never particularly noticed him before, perhaps because he hadn't .57 noticed her. Now she found him in-.18 teresting, in a six-foot, manly way; so .45 she permitted herself to be consoled-.08 not too suddenly, but by degrees, so that they were laughing like old friends at her predicament; when he .20 .05 had to leave her to go on duty.

"Remember," he warned her as he 70 left, "I shall be back as soon as I can .85 get away, and If I find any more tears I shall prescribe a dinner for two as .80 an antidote. While if you're good-" .85 he went away with a mysterious wag .59 of the head as to what her reward .00 was to be. .95

Mary sat down to wait, the mastercake in the other room completely for gotten. She had something better, t. dream of, new-a touch of romance first hand-a bit of life's frosting!
