ASSURED STYLES IN HATS FORETELL RICH MILLINERY

N EW fall hats are making a statety are apparent in the group of new fall entry-they are creations of con- models illustrated. It begins with in entry-they are creations of con-sequence. Paris is sending over hats of two extremes as to size-either very wide-brimmed hats or small draped turbans. Only time will tell whether the extremely large hat will make a triumph here or not, but that materials and trimmings will be rich and brilliant, whatever the shapes and sizes may be, is already assured. Many of the wide-brimmed French hats lift at one side and droop at the other, and some of them are round as a cartwheel. Lyons velvet, panne and hatters' plush cover the larger shapes, in which beauty of line is stressed. New trimmings are distinctive and fine, with many impressive novelties in plumage, made to surmount these wide hats. Spanish and radium laces, in black, gray, sand, brown and some navy are scheduled for leading roles in the drama of picturesque millinery, but the paramount novelties of millinery are the ornaments made of silver, aluminum and steel. Metal cloths bear out the trend of popular taste toward things that are brilliant; they harmonize with the rich fabrics.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this prep-aration now, because no one can pos-sibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

TAFFETA frocks have many sivals their stusive and shifting colors. But this summer, what with the fiare the new medallion resettes of marfew for organdle (its nearest of kin) and an unabaken devotion to crepe for both afternoon and evening frocks. But the liking for fabric-made trimmings on the gayer dresses, and the adaptability of taffeta to this style of adaptability of taneta to this style of trimmings, have strengthened its cause. Where, onlor counts most, as in evening frocks, taffeta is at its best and in the changeable weaves there seems to be nothing that quite equals it in because. In plate and in changes seems to be nothing that quite equals it in beauty. In plain and in change-able weaves taffets screechy bids good-day to summer afternoons and meets its fair fivals in evening frocks without finding comparische odious. ribbon, that seem to catch the colors and group them together, make a marvelous decoration for them. A large medailion with streamers of narrow plaited ribbon, in turquoise, magenta, petunia and silver, placed on a changeable, petunia. taffeta frock, was among the early imports and it re-affirms the French mastery of celor. The black taffets at the right of the picture has a highly lustrous surface which picks up and plays with the light. It is an interesting design with puffs over the hips and on the sleeves and an embroidery of black sitk and sliver thread, which hele to make it a sparkling dress.
