Ezra Simpkins' "Scoop"
Had No Call to Leather, but Sailed High on Ink.

When I kept it dark, and Ezra came back to life by easy stages and in such a way as to attract my special attention to himself. He managed to get the impression around that he had been snatched from the jaws of death. It was a rescue party at the last moment. The last I heard of him he was in New York and drawing ten thousand a year, which was more than he could have worked up to in the leather business in a century.

ON TAKING A REST
Once a Year Substitutes Bacon and Eggs For Baked and Battered.

I hear a good deal about men who won't take vacations and who kill themselves by overwork, but it's usually by way of whiskey. It's not what a man does during working hours, but after them, that breaks down his health. A fellow who follows a business should be known friends in the office and some enemies out of it. A carter mind is one that is swept clean of business at 6 o'clock every night and isn't opened up till it again until after the shutters are taken down next morning. Some fellows leave the office at 4 o'clock and start out to sleep it up with the boys, and some go home to sit up with their troubles. They're both in bad company. They're the men who are always needing vacations and never getting any good out of them. That every man should have a year in a change of work—that is, if he has been cured up over a desk for fifty weeks and sitting on his back and hunched up, he ought to take to fishing for a living and try to get some good out of it. AS TO APPEARANCES
"Old Geron Graham" Advises His Son About Clothes.

Dear Geron, that other for a career of St. Louis. I've got a lot of things to tell you about your appearance. First, your hair. It's too long and too dark. You should have it cut and dyed a little. Second, your eyes. They're too small and too dark. You should have them made a little larger and a little lighter. Third, your nose. It's too big and too straight. You should have it made a little smaller and a little curved. Fourth, your mouth. It's too small and too straight. You should have it made a little larger and a little curved. Fifth, your ears. They're too small and too straight. You should have them made a little larger and a little curved. Sixth, your hands. They're too small and too straight. You should have them made a little larger and a little curved. Seventh, your feet. They're too small and too straight. You should have them made a little larger and a little curved. Eighth, your clothes. They're too plain and too straight. You should have them made a little more interesting and a little more curved.
