

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON II, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 11.

Text of the Lesson, II Sam. vii. 4-10. Memory Verses, I Sam. vii. 1-10. Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stronach.

Copyright, 1916, by American Bible Society. In this remarkable chapter, the whole of which we are about to study, we have three sections—verses 1 to 4, David's purpose and Nathan's approval; 4 to 17, the Lord's message to David through Nathan; 18 to 29, David's communion with God. As David says in verse 23, Israel was unlike any other nation on earth, because, in God's judgment, it was a special people unto Himself, to do great things for them, that through them He might be made known to other nations.

If there is the best lesson to our own understanding, there will be found in the story of David's life, and that alone, from day to day, in our last lesson we are told the wisdom of David and all his counselors only brought trouble, but as soon as they obeyed God all was well with them. Now, David has a question which Nathan answers as he tells the prophet Nathan, who says to David, "Who, then, is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" (I Chron. xxi. 5.)

David's question was, "Who, then, is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" (I Chron. xxi. 5.) THE ROAD PROBLEM.

SHOULD UNCLE SAM ASSIST IN HIGHWAY BUILDING?

Some Views of Prominent Men For and Against the Improvement of Roads in the Rural Districts by Government Aid.

In view of the large population recently added to the rural districts, the problem of road improvement is one of the most important of the day. It is a problem which has attracted the attention of the public mind, and has become a subject of national interest.

The National Road Commission, which was organized in 1915, has been studying the problem of road improvement in the rural districts, and has issued a report which is now before the public.

The report of the National Road Commission is a valuable contribution to the study of the road problem. It contains a detailed analysis of the present conditions, and offers many suggestions for improvement.

One of the main questions which the report raises is whether or not the government should assist in the improvement of roads in the rural districts. This is a question which has been discussed for many years, and there are many different views on the subject.

Some of the arguments in favor of government aid are that it would save the lives of many people who are killed each year by accidents on bad roads, and that it would save the government money by reducing the cost of transporting goods and passengers.

On the other hand, some of the arguments against government aid are that it would be a heavy burden on the taxpayers, and that it would be better to let the people take care of their own roads.

SHEDDING FEATHERS.

Information Concerning Care of Fowls During Moulting Period.

During the late summer and early fall the egg supply becomes materially reduced. This happens because the birds are shedding their feathers, and are therefore unable to lay eggs.

As nature provides for the protection of the egg, it also provides for the protection of the bird during the moulting period. The bird's body becomes weaker, and it is therefore more susceptible to disease.

It is therefore important to take special care of the bird during the moulting period. The bird should be kept in a clean, dry place, and should be given plenty of food and water.

One of the most important things to remember is to keep the bird's body clean. The feathers should be washed with a mild soap, and the skin should be kept dry.

Another important thing to remember is to keep the bird's body warm. The bird's body temperature is lower during the moulting period, and it is therefore more susceptible to cold.

DUCKS FOR THE MARKET.

The Best Are Those That Have Never Seen a Duck Pond.

The little ducks that come to market are the best. They are the ducks that have never seen a duck pond, and therefore they are the most tender and flavorful.

It is therefore important to choose the best ducks for the market. The ducks should be fresh, and should be kept in a clean, dry place.

One of the most important things to remember is to keep the ducks fresh. The ducks should be killed as soon as possible, and should be kept in a clean, dry place.

Another important thing to remember is to keep the ducks clean. The ducks should be washed with a mild soap, and the skin should be kept dry.
