W P RAGAN TO T S ROLLINS.

Mr Ragan Writes an Exceedingly Entertaining Letter to Republican State Chairman Regarding the High Point Postmaster's Accusations of Going Back on His Word.

High Point, N. C., Nov. 13.—The following "moral" dished out in quite a hot "plate" was mailed yesterday to Hon. Thomas S. Rollins, Chairman of the State Republican Executive Committee, Asheville, N. C.

"Dear Sir: On the 24th ult I addressed you under registered cover, a letter in which I asked that you return to me certain papers which were given you, and which you stated were filed with the Department at Washington, in connection with my recent application for appointment as Postmaster at High Point. Up to this time I have not received these papers, nor received any assurance from you that I would receive them.

"The fact that I was unsuccessful in my efforts to secure the appointment at High Point seems to be the source of so much pleasure to certain of your friends in Greensboro—Messrs. Glenn & Company, that they seem entirely unable to control themselves, and are amusing themselves by ridiculing me. In view of this, and certain matters which I do not feel it necessary to go into at this time, I feel that it is due both my friends and myself that they should know why I expected to receive the appointment, and why I asked their aid. It is hardly necessary for me to recall to you that you had given me your nominal endorsement in writing, which is now on file with the papers I asked you to return to me, and I must confess at this time, with some humiliation, that I relied upon your good faith, and permitted a man of your caliber and sincerity to betray me. Had you told me that your father-in-law and 'dictator,' Judge Pritchard, had written Mr. J. Wood Cox more than three months prior to the appointment of Mr. Snow, that he (Cox) need give the matter no further concern, that Snow would certainly be elected, I would pursue another course, but you seem to have entirely forgotten everything about that 'square deal' we hear so much about, and went ahead assuring me at all times that I had your unqualified endorsement and went so far as to swear that you would resign as Chairman of the State Executive Committee, before you would stand by and see a man who was 24 years old, and who had never voted the Republican ticket, appointed. Now, Rollins, be fair one more time before you fade out of the public light, (for the hand writing is on the wall and your days are surely numbered) and tell me: (First) Why didn't you advise me that you were not giving me your whole-hearted support, but simply playing me, while Judge Pritchard was fixing things for Snow? (Second) Why were you so insistent that I should not procure the endorsement of Hon. Spencer Blackburn, when you knew I could get it, and knew more-over that Messrs. Tyre Glenn & Company were fighting me alone because I was a member of the Tar Heel Club, and a friend of Mr. Blackburn's? Can you see excuse for this unless it be that it was a part of your 'system'?"

"I had always thought that as Chairman of the State Executive Committee you were given a hearing at Washington and that your endorsement carried with it some weight, but unless you have lied to me I have been misled in this, and the endorsement of Marion Butler, accompanied by the exhibit of a few shares of stock in the 'Industrial News,' is worth more than the endorsement of yourself and every member of the County Executive Committee except the 'Hon.' Robert Dick Douglas, late Attorney General of North Carolina, who has never held a position of trust at the hands of the people, though he has repeatedly stood before them.

"You stated in your recent letter to me that you did all you could to secure my appointment, but that Mr. Corley would not heed your 'warm words of endorsement,' but appointed Mr. Snow on the endorsement of Mr. J. Elwood Cox, (who by the way says that he is the only Republican in High Point township who has 'home-stayed,' and the man who 'gave' the banquet to Secretary Metcalfe, and who owns a few shares of Industrial News stock). Mr. E. D. Douglas, Judge Adams and Judge R. M. Douglas, the latter who Mr. Tyre Glenn said listened to me while I tried to advise him, and on that account attempted to prefer charges against me. All this may be so Rollins, but I am about this like my Jewish friends are about the doctrine of predestination—'Dammed if I believe it.'"

"Now this is all over—I am glad that it is all over with, and am not sorry that I went into it, because I have gotten some very valuable, if not very pleasant experience from the fact that I had been a Republican all my life, that I had given of my time and means to the support of the party, and in the days when it was hard to get up and make a fight—I canvassed this county against the late General James D. Glenn, and led my ticket by 500 votes, nor did I rely so much upon the fact that I had known you when we were in college together, and at all times been given to understand that you were my friend, but I must confess that I did rely upon your endorsement and the endorsement of all the county committee, except Mr. Douglas, editor of the Industrial News, and I am still of the opinion that if you had acted fairly with me, and had spoken with as much fervor in my behalf before Mr. Corley, as you did against Mr. Snow when I mentioned his candidacy to you, and called your attention to his political record, that I would have received this appointment.

"And in conclusion, Mr. Rollins, it seems to me that a most fitting ending to the present history of the republican party in North Carolina, would be your resignation, as you have sworn to do if Mr. Snow were appointed. I am a republican today and expect to fight the battles of the party always if she is led by men of respectability and not by grafters. I believe in the doctrines preached by Mr. Roosevelt, and whenever the republican party in this State will follow the example set by him, and put in your place a man who is fearless, aggressive, and honorable, I am with her 'gun, stock and barrel,' but so long as it remains under your leadership and Judge Pritchard occupying a judicial position joins forces with Mr. Marion Butler, a man who has wrought more harm to the republican party than all others in the last fifty years, and secures my defeat over the 'endorsement' of the state chairman, I am against you and your crowd and am going to do all I can against you. Now be frank and honest with me and tell me if I am not right, and if my past faith in your integrity should not be somewhat impaired? Don't you think that the treatment I have received at your hands is enough to discourage honest men from having anything to do with a party led by such a man as you and your crowd? I wish that I could be mistaken, and that I could believe that the republican party in the flourishing condition which you say it is when you go to Washington, but I know you too well now, and know that the party can never attain success until it throws such men as you and the members of the firm of Tyre Glenn & Company out of it. It is too big a load for a small man to carry.

"With best wishes, and assuring you of my appreciation of your 'support,' I am,

"Yours very truly,"

"W. P. RAGAN."

Duncan K. McKee's Daughter.

Miss V. H. McKee daughter of a distinguished Southern family, and now living in White Plains, is wearying herself the necessities of life in order that the closing days of her aged mother may be more comfortable.

The mother is in Bloomingdale Asylum and has only a few months to live but the faithful daughter, who gave up a good position with one of the Edison companies to nurse her, is determined that Mrs. McKee shall sit under her own roof with the comforts and endearments of home about her.

To re-establish a small home Miss McKee has a pitifully inadequate sum, which is dwindling slowly. She has not eaten a square meal in seven weeks.

The play "Valley Farm" was by Troy's local talent in the academy last Friday evening. A fair audience honored the production with their presence. A special train from Mt. Gilead brought quite a number of visitors.

We learn that a mile of stock-law fence near Candor was burned the first of the week.

Mr. N. W. Maness of Star has taken charge of the school at Shady Grove. He taught that school last year, but having decided to continue his studies, he entered school at this place a few weeks ago.

The patrons of the district, however, after repeated efforts, succeeded in securing his services again.

Those who took the teachers examination Saturday were: Misses Betty Green, Verne Zachary, Ida Batten and Sallie Robinson of Wadeville, Miss Sallie McMillan of Okefenokee, Miss Lavinia Wright of Star, Messrs J. P. Elliott of Pontop, W. H. Green of Harrisville, E. D. McNeill of Vestal, Thomas McMillan of Okefenokee. Four colored applicants took the examination Friday.

We note with pleasure that our distinguished congressman, Hon. R. N. Page was selected as one of the permanent vice-chairmen of the Southern Conference on Quarantine and Immigration at a session of the conference held at Chattanooga, Tenn., last week. This is an honor well bestowed, for a few people take more interest in the welfare of the people of the South than does Mr. Page.

Mr. J. C. Conditon of Cagle's Mill takes the prize for the largest beet grown in the county, and perhaps in the State. The beet measures 36 inches in length, 20 inches in circumference and weighed, when first taken from the soil, 14 pounds.

About twelve inches of it grew under the soil and the remainder above the ground.

A new street extending east and west, running from Main Street to the academy, is being opened for the use of the public.

A man and several children, making a journey from Mississippi to Franklin county, North Carolina, passed through town Monday. The man gave his name as J. M. Pippin, and said he was born and reared in Franklin county, where he lived until he moved West twenty-five years ago. They were traveling in a wagon drawn by two horses, and their appearance showed that the long journey had come very near wearing them out. The man said they had been on their journey about eight weeks.

Several injured in Wreck.

The Spencer shop train with several cars loaded with employees of the Southern at Spencer, was wrecked one mile north of Salisbury, on the night of Nov. 18th. The wreck was caused by a passenger engine running into the train, doing considerable damage to both engines.

Several workmen were severely injured in the crash, among them being J. J. Evans, night engineer at the shops, and Macintosh Buford, of the round-house force, Frank McQuibbin, a call boy had one arm and several ribs broken and it is feared is injured internally. Operator Duke sustained severe bruises, as did a number of others. It is feared one or more may die. This was the second wreck the same train has met with this week.

At Aberdeen reside four brothers—Messrs. Geo. W. North, Henry and Joseph Pleasants, of a family of nine brothers, all living of whom the youngest is 82 years old. Geo. W. Pleasants is the father of Mr. R. W. Pleasants, and Norfill Pleasants is the father of Messrs. N. A. McKeithon and D. S. Ray, of Carthage. Another of the nine is Mr. William Pleasants, residing at Lumbury, who is the father of Mr. J. A. Page of Aberdeen. The other brothers live in Wake and Durham counties.—Carthage Blade.

New Footstep Get its Name.

Every one probably has noticed red, white or certain skin eruptions, or all who write, or paint, or copy. As early as the year 1901, these eruptions were employed by a person in France to distinguish the footstep. One grade of paper must be used during middle ages, remembering what we call footstep, a word by that name, had its water mark a foot's head wearing cap and all. The mark appeared on a grade of paper until the middle of the 17th century, when the figure of Britannia was substituted by the English manufacturer, and the marks by other paper-makers. No one, however, even changed the name of the paper, so we have this day, the footstep paper.

NEW YORK CITY.

Capit J Hoover Visits the Great Metropolis, New York City and Describes Many Interesting Places.

Letter No. 3. New York. If a native New Yorker should happen to read these lines I hope he will not think I am trying to cover all of his city in these few paragraphs. To do it justice would require a book at least, and I might say my endeavor to give in a few words as possible a hasty glance at the "Great Metropolis," and to tell of some of the things seen in a hurried visit.

To begin with, it rained. Not a gentle drizzling, but a fall of waters that reminded one of the Deluge. It was a moist welcome surely, and as we crossed from Jersey City to New York, the river was wrapped in fog and mist, hoarse whistles on the various craft blew notes of warning, and as it was night, it gave one a certain peculiar feeling, that caused us to be glad when we reached ground again.

After leaving the ferry house, we boarded an electric car, and were whirled up-town in a short time to a fine hotel, which we had previously chosen, called the Hoffman House. If we had known it we might have stayed for the same rates at the famous Waldorf-Astoria, but we had nothing to complain of in our choice, I can tell you. These New York hotels are celebrated, as are several in Philadelphia, and I suppose it is so in each city one might visit. I should have said, that before reaching our hotel, we passed one of the most remarkable buildings I ever saw in my life. It is called the Flat Iron building, (from its resemblance to an old fashioned flat iron building, and is twenty-one stories high. It is used for offices, and stands at a corner where three streets intersect. Whether it is owing to this, or because of its immense height causing peculiar air currents to play about it, suffice it to say, there is a positive wind storm as one turns the point of this building, and much merriment to the onlooker is provoked by the troubles of the pedestrians, especially the ladies. The tallest building in the United States is to be found in New York, as is also the tallest inhabited building. In fact these "sky scrapers" as they are called, have ceased to cause comment, as common as they are becoming in all the large northern cities.

To ride on the "elevated," or L. road as it is called, was one of the novel sensations, as from the car windows, one can catch fleeting glimpses of that great tenement life about which so much has been said and written. New York might be roughly divided into two sections, viz, uptown and downtown, reached by the L. road, electric subway, cars, and the new subway, or underground trains. This last mode of conveyance relieves the congestion which used to occur during the busy hours of morning and evening. The speed at which they run is terrific, and the time saved to the passenger on a long ride is a large percent. There are stations every ten squares, and the passenger must know exactly where he wishes to go or he will be carried miles beyond before he is aware of the fact.

The Anderson Rollins Row is presented to the President by Blackburn.

The Washington correspondent of the Chaslot Observer in a recent issue writes of the Anderson Rollins row.

The statement is made that Representative Blackburn has fully determined upon this course and that he will lay especial emphasis on the contract signed by Chairman Rollins and District Attorney Holton, in which Anderson was promised a job under certain conditions. The effect of this agreement traffic patronage on the presidential mind, when it is unfolded at the white house, will probably be the occasion of some concern in North Carolina. Mr. Blackburn and his friends are said to entertain the opinion that it will eliminate Mr. Holton and Mr. Rollins and Mr. Millikan both as possibilities for the district attorneyship, and that at the same time a vital blow will be struck at the organization in the State. It is apparent since the appearance of the Tar Heel, that Mr. Blackburn has decided to stand up and fight, and that his attitude towards the organization will no longer be one of passiveness. Some of his friends are saying that he has been quiet too long for his own good.
