HIDDEN GOLD.

The Hoard of Precious Metal That is Secreted in India.

It would be an immense benefit to all mankind if the stores of gold beld by individuals in India could be made available for general use. Ever since the dawn of history that country has been gathering gold and hiding it away. Treasures of almost incalculable value are possessed by many Indian princes. When the maharajah of Burdwan died the stock of gold and silver left by him was so large that no member of the family could make an accurate estimate of it. A report made to the British government by a secret agent stated that on the estite of the defunct potentate were a number of treasure an government of a serve agent save and ed that on the estate of the defunct potentate were a number of treasure houses, one of them containing three rooms. The largest of these three rooms was forty-eight feet long and was filled with ornaments of gold and silver, piates and cups, washing bowls, fugs and so forth—all of precious metals. The other two rooms were full of bags and boxes of gold mohurs and silver rapees. The door of this and other treasure houses had been bricked up for nobody knows how long.

These valuables, according to an anchent custom, were in the custody of the maharajah's wife, the vaults being attached to her apartments, but none of them was allowed to be opened save in the presence of the master. One vault was filled with ornaments belonging to different gods of the family. The natives of India commonly bury their hoards, and among the poerer classes a feweric butter, place is a flower thour place is a flower to the maker in their place is a flower than the process of severe themse places is a hole due.

ing to discrete gates as a consistent of the process of the process of a favorite hiding place is a hole dug beneath the bel. Disused wells are sometimes employed for the same purpose. It is undoubtedly a fact that very many boards thus deposited are lost forever. Gold is also valued on religious grounds. The gold take up great quantities of gold, silver and precious stones. The temples contain vast amounts of the voltors and white metals. The habit of hearding seems to have been helmed by arcs of this government, during which apprecion and colorous were rife. No feeling of safety existing, it was natural that the natives should adopt the practice of reducing their wealth to a concentrated shape and hiding it.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The department of agriculture could do no more practical and useful thing right now than to issue a bulletin describing all the new tracts of land which the government will throw open to settlement within a few years as In-dian reservations or us tracts which are included within the various irrigation schemes now under way. Such a bul-letin should give the locality, the terms of settlement, the names of the proper parties to apply to for detailed information. Such a builetin would be worth to the public at large a hundred times more than some treatise on burgs. Bet-ter get at this, Mr. Secretary.

A German a bit liliterate and not rated as very smart still knew enough to buy ten years ago a tract of seventy acres of cut of timber land in the Hood river culley in Washington, which he piantest out when cleared to Spitzenberg and Newtown Piphi apples. The land cost him $10 per acre, and lately he has been offered $70,000 for his little farm. These choice apand lately be has been offered $70,000 for his little farm. These chairs apples, which find their very highest development on the soil and in the climate of this valley, represent about the most profitable branch of horticulture to be found in the whole country. This fruit is all taken for export at fancy prices, some of the fifteen-year-old trees bringing in an income of $50 each.

A man who had lived on a western farm for forty years and who was a lover of trees was very proud of an elm which he had planted when the country was new in front of his house near the public highway. Circumstances compelled him recently to sell the farm, and one may judge of his feelings when the very first thing which the new owner, a foreigner, did was to go at this beautiful tree with an az and fell it to the ground.
