

ASHEVILLE CITIZEN.

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 8, 1887.

"Agitation, protestation, demonstration—these are the needs of the hour," is the phrase in which the venerable Libera chief Gladstone summarizes the situation in his party.

General John A. Palmer expresses the sentiment of the Democrats of Illinois regarding President Cleveland in saying that they admire "his superb common sense," about which there is "no evasion, no nonsense," but "courage, brains and honesty."

The New York Star says: Secretary Whitney has shown respect for a proper sentiment in ordering the old Kearsarge to be repaired and kept in commission.

THE YORKVILLE S. C. MOR. The Charleston News and Courier gives the following account of the lynching at Yorkville, S. C., on Tuesday:

"In November last John Lee Goode, a young white lad, the son of a well known farmer in York County, was murdered under circumstances of peculiar brutality. The preliminary legal investigation of the coroner's jury was that Goode was killed because he had accidentally detected his murderers in the perpetration of a robbery. The negroes who committed the crime, it was also proved, were bound together by a solemn oath to rob and plunder, and "murder all persons who might detect them in their lawlessness." They were formed into a lodge, had regular places of meeting, were under the leadership of desperate men, and each member of the clan was bound by oath to perjure himself in case any of his fellow-conspirators should be arrested and brought to trial.

"How do you think of the future of Charleston if this road is built?" "Well, I don't think that I can better answer your question than by saying what will surprise many people, and none more than the people of Charleston themselves, and make them write me down a crank no doubt. If this road is built I would rather invest my money in real estate in Charleston if I had it, than any city in the United States. You will ask me why. Because, in the first place, property is very cheap there now, and in the second, when this connection is made with the West it will advance beyond anything anybody now dreams of. It may be some years, but with this trunk line through connection, nothing can keep Charleston back. I assume, of course, that it will continue to be free from yellow fever, as it has been for ten years, and with the continuance of proper quarantine always will be. It is one of the healthiest cities in America, with a winter climate without an equal, a fine harbor and central location."

"Well, Charleston is no more liable to earthquakes than New York or Baltimore, or any other American city. We supposed we were exempted on this part of the Continent from such calamities, but we have been sadly disabused of this delusion, and in calculating the future for Charleston there is no better reason to discount earthquakes than elsewhere. In fact, I think there is much less, as she has had her 'shake,' and is not likely to have a repetition."

At Rocky Valley, in an adjoining county, there was buried last week a prominent man who might be yet an ornament to society, had he not neglected the advice of his friends to such an extent that he can be said to have died by his own wish.

THE CHARLESTON, CINCINNATI AND CHICAGO RAILROAD—CHARLESTON'S BRIGHT PROSPECTS. Senator Butler, of South Carolina was interviewed in Richmond a few days ago and gave the following encouraging statement concerning the prospects of the above important road, and of the future of Charleston.

"Would you object to giving me the route of the Charleston, Cincinnati and Chicago Railroad from Charleston?" Senator Butler was asked.

"Now, if you will take a map and run a line from Charleston to Sumter, crossing the Santee at the most practicable point, thence to Camden, Lancaster, Rock Hill, Yorkville, Black's in South Carolina, thence to Rutherfordton, Marion, Cranberry in North Carolina, thence to Johnson City in Tennessee, thence to Esterville in the Breaks in the Cumberland Mountains in Virginia, thence down the Sandy to Ashland on the Ohio River, thence down you have the Charleston, Cincinnati and Chicago Railroad. Now, put your finger on the map at Chattanooga and Danville, and measure the distance between them. You will find it about four hundred miles. There is not a railroad from South Carolina penetrating the mountains into the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys between these two points. The consequence is that we are off the trunk lines, and get only what commero-floes to us by a sort of eddy. We want to put Charleston in direct communication, through the mountains, with Cincinnati, and this road does it."

"Are the prospects of the road flattering?" "We think so. The company has completed it from Blacks to Rutherfordton; has secured the Chateaufort Railroad, running fifty miles from Ashland on the Virginia line, and is being extended south by the Chicago, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company. I have no doubt it will be built, and the indications are the road will be running from Camden to Rutherfordton, a distance of about 150 miles, inside of twelve months. Then it will only be necessary to fill up the gap between Rutherfordton and the Chateaufort road, to have a continuous line to the Ohio River from Camden. The building from Camden to Sumter, and from Sumter to Charleston will then be a small matter."

"Are the friends of the roads sanguine about its future as a paying road?" "I do not see why they should not be. It will pass through a country in which every product raised on the American Continent, except coffee and bananas, can be produced. It passes near those valuable magnetic and red hematite iron beds in the upper part of South Carolina; near the Cranberry mines in North Carolina, the finest steel-producing ores in the world; through the inexhaustible coking and other coal and limestone beds in Virginia, imbedded within thirty minutes' haul of iron ores. The road will be a trunk line for this traffic and for the traffic in other commodities between Charleston and the Mississippi Valley and its tributaries. Why should it not be a paying road? The fact is, Charleston has been kept back from her legitimate position as one of the great commercial cities of the Atlantic seaboard by the want of just such a railroad as this promises to be."

"What do you think of the future of Charleston if this road is built?" "Well, I don't think that I can better answer your question than by saying what will surprise many people, and none more than the people of Charleston themselves, and make them write me down a crank no doubt. If this road is built I would rather invest my money in real estate in Charleston if I had it, than any city in the United States. You will ask me why. Because, in the first place, property is very cheap there now, and in the second, when this connection is made with the West it will advance beyond anything anybody now dreams of. It may be some years, but with this trunk line through connection, nothing can keep Charleston back. I assume, of course, that it will continue to be free from yellow fever, as it has been for ten years, and with the continuance of proper quarantine always will be. It is one of the healthiest cities in America, with a winter climate without an equal, a fine harbor and central location."

"Well, Charleston is no more liable to earthquakes than New York or Baltimore, or any other American city. We supposed we were exempted on this part of the Continent from such calamities, but we have been sadly disabused of this delusion, and in calculating the future for Charleston there is no better reason to discount earthquakes than elsewhere. In fact, I think there is much less, as she has had her 'shake,' and is not likely to have a repetition."

At Rocky Valley, in an adjoining county, there was buried last week a prominent man who might be yet an ornament to society, had he not neglected the advice of his friends to such an extent that he can be said to have died by his own wish. Mr. Jones had a slight cold, neglected, it becomes serious. His friends advised the great Cough Remedy, Symphax. He refused every appeal by his friends. As a natural result he grew worse and died. Ye that are suffering with coughs and colds beware that you do not lay yourself liable to the same charge and die a premature grave, but take Symphax at once and live.

What they say of the Interstate Bill. Vice-President Fink of East Tennessee says that a rigid construction of the long and short haul provision means bankruptcy for the roads. It is considered doubtful if, in view of the importance of the question, the commission will be able to give a decision in time to avert serious embarrassment.

A prominent advocate of the bill says: "If the commission decides at the outset to suspend the provisions of the bill relative to the long and short haul, it may as well disband and save the government further expense, for outside of that provision there is little of practical importance." A Pennsylvania Railroad official says: "I think differential rates on both passenger and freight traffic will be found necessary in order to allow the weaker roads to maintain their identity. I think Erie, Lackawanna and West Shore will certainly cut rates on passenger business between New York and Chicago."

Private dispatches from London say that the Grand Trunk officers there say that the road must have differential rates.

BRACE UP. You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with headache, you are nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, bad whiskey, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alternative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of your liver and kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at H. H. Lyons' drug store.

LAND SALE! NORTH CAROLINA. COUNTY OF JACKSON. In the Superior Court, before the Clerk. Sophia E. Davis, Henry Knox, and Louis F. Dayton, ex-Sale for Particulars. In pursuance of a decree of the Superior Court of Jackson county made in the above entitled cause on the 24th day of March, 1887, the undersigned Commissioner will proceed to sell at public auction at the court house door in the city of Asheville, State aforesaid, on the Second Day of May, 1887, at 12 o'clock, m., the following described real estate, to-wit:—about 11,000 Acres of Land, lying in the counties of Transylvania and Jackson in the South Carolina, and being the lands granted by the State of North Carolina to Woodford Zachary, R. Welch and others, and on the waters of the Great Smoky Water River, Morgan's Mill Creek, and Chatsauga river. Part of the land, shaded from recent surveys, will be exhibited on the day of sale. These are fine grazing lands, being well watered by several streams. They are heavily timbered with poplar, chestnut and oak. Corn and mica crop out in various places, with fine prospects for good mill and several mines of mica have been worked.

There are good veins running part of this property, from which considerable gold has been taken by panning. This is perhaps the last chance in Western North Carolina to buy a Large Body of Land. All the lines and boundaries of the land have been well defined and established by the recent surveys made under the order of the Superior Court of Jackson county. Said lands will be first sold in parcels, as will be indicated by the plat exhibited, and then afterwards as a whole, and whichever sale produces the more money will be reported to the court.

Terms of Sale. Twenty per cent of the purchase money will be required to be paid in cash on the day of sale, balance payable in equal installments at six, twelve and eighteen months, with interest four date. The purchaser to give notes with approved security for the deferred payments. Title will be retained until the purchase money has been paid. Cure for Piles. Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, erysipelas, inflammation are present, itching, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. The best and most reliable cure is the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, relieving the itching, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure.
