The Citizens, with latest Associated Press Dispatches will be found regularly at all hotels and news-stands in the city. When the supply may be exhausted at those places, call at the office.

Mr. Lanier informs us that a number of visitors went over to the Haywood White Sulphur Springs yesterday.

A rumor reached the city that the University of Knoxville was struck by lightning yesterday, and was badly damaged.

The escaped prisoners from Hendersonville were captured near Brevard, not Hendersonville, as we incorrectly stated yesterday. The Times says all have now been recaptured.

Dr. W. A. Nelson will have open air services on the Brookshire hill, South of the Swannanoa Junction, on Sunday afternoon next at 4 o'clock. The public generally invited to attend.

The old depot section of our city is very rapidly forcing to the front as a center of manufacturing, a mammoth cotton factory, ice factory and planing and wood-working establishment to be erected at once.

The Hendersonville Times kindly says, "The Asheville Citizen has resumed the taking of the press dispatches, and now can cope with the best dailies in the State, as to the matter of news both home and foreign."

A negro who had a fight in Hendersonville and ran away, was followed and arrested in Asheville and taken back, was tried, convicted, and fined a penny and costs for his offense.

Mr. W. J. Herman, of Hickory, who has been conducting a very successful school at Clyde, Haywood, is in the city. His school closed last Friday with very appropriate exercises.

ASHVILLE WORK ABROAD. We know that our esteemed friend Canada Cowan, our popular jeweler, has enjoyed for many years the patronage of the people of all western North Carolina, but his good name and superior work have established their character abroad as well.

ASHVILLE, N. C., May 7, 1887. It is with real pleasure that I express to the public my sense of obligation to Dr. Hargan & Gatchell for relief given me from a most annoying and at times painful condition.

HOME TREATMENT. We manufacture the Compound Oxygen, and ship it to all parts of the country, even to the Pacific Coast. We send apparatus and chemicals to last two months for $15. This is as valuable as the office treatment.

THE TRAVELING PUBLIC SAYS. NATHAN, Thou Art the Man. For buying and selling Excursion and cut rate tickets at exceedingly low rates for all points.

AGENTS FOR UGH and DRESSED LUMBER, SHINGLES LATHS, AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Judson College commencement to-day. Mr. W. E. Moore, of Webster, is in attendance upon the court.

Mr. Kerr Craig has filed his bond, and entered upon his duties as Collector for this district.

We greatly regretted to hear of the very serious condition of the son of Judge Graves. We trust better news may soon reach the distressed father.

Col. Robert M. Douglass ex-Marshall of this district is in the city, stopping at Mr. A. T. Summey's. He is in attendance upon the Superior Court.

Yesterday was the longest day of the year. In a day or so days will begin to shorten. All persons desiring to avail themselves of our suburban summer climate should come early.

Some miscreant cut the wires of the electric lights some time yesterday, and in consequence no lights could be furnished last night. A reward is offered for the perpetrator.

The work of tearing down the old Hugh Johnston house gives proof that half a century ago they built stronger than now. One of your modern "balloon" structures would have been leveled out of the way in half a day.

Messrs. C. E. Graham and J. M. Thrash bought within the past few days twelve thousand dollars worth of that valuable city property near the Cotton Factory, on the east of the railroad. This section is certainly booming, and will soon be one of the most attractive and enterprising sections of the city.

The steam barge P. H. Stewart was sunk in a storm off Black River, Ohio, on Monday evening. The barge filled with water in half a minute after the squall struck her.

THE VANCE PROPERTY FOR SALE. This very valuable property situated near court square, certainly as fine as any residence property in the city, will be sold at auction, on premises, on Saturday July 9th.

A RARE SIGN. Mr. Nathan, who advertises Cut Rate Tickets, displays a very appropriate and ingenious sign over his office. One side represents an engine and train. As the smoke is driven back in great clouds from the smoke stack, its black mass breaks into detached fragments, each one of which forms itself into a letter, the whole stringing out the name of Edw' M. Nathan.

THE SUPERIOR COURT. Yesterday the Jury, in the case of the administrator of Sumner against the Western North Carolina Railroad Company—(suit for damages, Sumner having been killed at Swannanoa Junction several years ago while attempting to couple cars)—returned a verdict in favor of the defendant company.

ROOFING AND SHEATHING PAPERS. I will deal in the above articles, and have lately received a lot of Sheathing paper, suitable for quality and cheapness are unsurpassed. Hon. JOHN S. HENDERSON. We were pleased to meet yesterday the above gentleman, the able representative in Congress for the Rowan district. He has been suffering for some time with his eyes, but he reports himself as much better now, with strong hopes of full recovery.

DEATH OF MAJOR CHAS. B. DUFFIELD. In the stillness of the night the soul of this good man left its mortal tenement and quietly and painlessly the spirit parted from the body and took its everlasting flight. Yesterday morning as the first rays of the coming dawn penetrated the half closed shutters of the room which he had gone to his last sleep, his devoted wife had risen to include the light that might disturb her sleeping husband. She observed the light with his head and shoulders bent down in the bed than was his habit.

The deceased was a native we believe of Snow Hill, Md. He was a lawyer by profession, and in pursuit of that was some time in Missouri. Returning he lived in Accomac, Va., but achieved his distinction at the bar which was a high one, in Norfolk. Some four or five years ago, for the enjoyment of the fruits of his labors in congenial leisure, and for the improvement of his health, he came to Asheville, where he lived to the hour of his death, making many friends, respectively. He leaves his wife and an only child Mrs. W. D. Hilliard, to mourn his death.

HENDERSONVILLE ITEMS. From the Times of the 21st we clip the following:

"We are pained to announce the death of Mr. Thomas Anderson, which took place at the residence of his brother, Maj. Jas. Anderson in this place, on Thursday morning last. Asthma and heart disease were the causes that led to his death. He was a Scotchman by birth, but has been a citizen of the United States since he was a young man. He was about sixty years old. Mr. Thos. Wood of Transylvania, was in town last week. He reported a very heavy frost in the Little river section of that county on Monday, which did considerable damage to the gardens, cutting short the supply of early vegetables. At the home of Mr. Norris Allison, near Boilston, on the 12th instant, occurred the death of James M. Lewis, in the seventy eighth year of his age. Mr. Lewis was born at Edneyville, in this county. On Saturday morning last, Mr. John Anders, who lives on Green River, about ten miles from Hendersonville, committed suicide by hanging himself to the limb of a tree. He was found by his family about two hours after committing the act. It is now a certainty that Capt. M. C. Toms has a coal mine. It is situated on Pilot mountain, in this county, and with the specimen shown, we judge the coal to be of the finest quality of canal coal. A bonanza could not strike a better man, or one whose enterprise would do more for the good of the county, and we trust that soon we may be in possession of facts placing the value of the discovery beyond all question.

THE CELEBRATION AN IMMENSE ONE—ALL ENGLAND JUBILANT! The Celebration of Queen Victoria's Fifty-first Anniversary of Her Reign Over England. (By telegraph to the Asheville Citizen.) LONDON, June 21.—The first day of the fifty-first year of the reign of Queen Victoria over Great Britain opened with perfect summer weather in London. A lovelier day could not have been desired for the celebration of Her Majesty's jubilee.

The sun shone brightly, the air was clear and not very warm, and a gentle breeze blew steadily. The crowds scattered over the city are unprecedented in numbers; thousands of people who yesterday selected localities along the route of to-day's procession, in order to retain them occupied them all night, and many used camp stools or improvised rests to enable them to withstand the long and tiresome occupation. A steady stream of carriages and pedestrians poured constantly all night until dawn toward the city from all directions along the streets composing the royal procession route was secured. At 9 o'clock the line of the route on each side was a compact mass of people. Every body, despite the discomfort of the crowding, manifested the utmost good humor. The scene at Westminster Abbey was most brilliant; every seat was filled, and every person present was a distinguished person when identities were enumerated. It seemed as if every locality in the world had sent one or more of its representative personages to do honor to England's Queen on Britain's greatest holiday. There never, probably in modern times, assembled under one roof, so well and so brilliantly arrayed an assemblage. Every man present entitled to wear a uniform or decoration had both on, new or burnished up. With this audience was included the scene presented was incomparable. When the sun shone so brightly through the noble stained windows of the abbey, its rays fell upon an unaccustomed sight and the picture was indescribable. This audience, banded up as it was in the church, was anything but sombre. For a while when all were seated, there was quiet, but this was only temporary and lasted only long enough to enable the people to locate one another. Then there was a life of recognition and of gossip, and it graduated into a noisy hum.

This was startling to the persons who entered suddenly, considering the place and who were buried there, but the stranger was soon fascinated and himself added to what had struck him as desecration. Some person entered the Abbey strong enough to compel a general recognition. When the marquis of Salisbury and Prime Minister entered and proceeded to the place set apart for him he was cheered. When Mr. Gladstone was observed quietly elbowing his way to his seat he was also cheered. Such was the eagerness of those who had assured places in the audience at Westminster the edifice at unnecessarily early hours, and as many were admitted without having partaken of breakfast, it was a strange sight to see flasks and sandwiches exchanged in such a crowd and eagerly used. Numbers less aristocrats unable to longer withstand the hunger and thirst partook. This business, when added to the hum at times seemed irreverent, even on Jubilee Day in Westminster. The line of procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey was as follows:

From the Palace portals along Constitution Hill, Piccadilly St. Waterloo place, Pall Mall, East Cockspur street, Northumberland avenue, Thames Embankment, Bridge street to Abbey. The line of route was kept by nearly 10,000 troops, representatives of branches of service and in addition 600 flags from the naval training ships were drawn up at the base of the Nelson monument. In addition to the military, many thousands of police, both mounted and on foot, were on duty under the command of Sir Charles Warren. The military force was under the command of Gen'l Gippis and Col. Stirling, of the Cold Stream Guards. The particular feature at Buckingham Palace was that the services were equally honored, the guards lining one side of the roadway at Buckingham Palace. The two services were also represented in all manners at the entrance to Westminster Abbey; and Prince Albert, Victor and George of Wales, Prince Alfred, of Edinburgh, and Prince William, of Prussia, her grand sons all rode in full uniform beside the Queen's coach as a body guard. When the people at the Palace gates had shouted themselves hoarse, cheering for the Queen, they continued to cry out "long life to the Prince and Prince-s of Wales. The Queen, as she left the Palace seemed to be in excellent spirits and she smiled and bowed graciously to the people on every side. The Queen's carriage was a large one of chocolate color, the wheels red and the royal arms in gold emblazoned upon the panels. Red morocco harness was used for the horses, which were otherwise decorated with royal blue ribbon. All the servants wore state liveries of scarlet and gold. Other carriages containing members of the royal family were of a gorgeous character, with 4 bay horses each, all open. The procession proceeded at a smart walking pace to Constitution Hill and then adopted a more deliberate gait. The lateness of the spring, the beautiful green of the avenue trees, the sweet odors of the hawthorns, and the splendid uniforms of the military coupled with the enthusiasm of the crowd made the occasion one of refreshing interest. The procession slowly made its way until the Wellington arch was reached, and then the first introduction to London Street ensued. Emerging from Wellington arch the first to greet the Queen were the convalescent patients and others of St. George's Hospital which was packed from basement to roof, seats having been erected for many thousands over the roof of the hospital. On reaching Piccadilly, the Queen was seen to look up at the Apsley House; and as she passed the mansions of her intimate friends, she glanced somewhat hastily at their abodes, more especially when passing the Duke of Cambridge, Baron Rothschild, Baroness Burdette Courts and John Bright's old apartments. It was not until the Devonshire House was reached that the Queen began to realize the grand preparations that had been made to greet her. Here the Marquis of Hartington had had spacious galleries erected from which many hundreds of gaily dressed ladies waved their handkerchiefs and cheered the Queen.

Facing Devonshire house at the Beth hotel another gigantic booth had been erected and from this point to Westminster Abbey every point of vantage had been seized by the contractors to fix seats. Shop fronts and first floors were rented at from 20 pounds to 60 pounds each; and in some cases even more. The fronts of Burlington arcade, the Royal Academy, Egyptian hall, St. James Parish church, where 1000 children were seated, and sang "God Save the Queen" and the museum of Geology were all packed with human beings. On reaching Regent circus where six main streets converge the sight was a memorable one, the streets being all splendidly decorated with flowers, evergreens, etc. Many of the imposing commercial buildings along the way were one mass of heads. Many of the shops had their fronts removed and elegant boudoirs formed in places. The procession as viewed from the Duke of York's column passing down the hill from circus to Pall Mall east, was a remarkable sight. The shouts of the people were plainly heard and secured seats at a palatial commercial establishment in Waterloo place and I joined in the enthusiasm.

After the Queen passed through the vestibule of the Abbey Her Majesty was conducted to the Grand East. She was surrounded by 32 members of the Royal family. The scene in the abbey when the Queen entered was dazzling. Ten thousand people were seated. They all arose women discarded their wraps and revealed in the full splendor of their beauty. Three tiers of galleries had been built in the abbey with seats for ten thousand. Peers and their wives were seated in South Transept, Ambassadors and diplomatic corps were seated right and left of peers. Members of House of Commons were placed in North Transept. Seats for members of reigning families of Cabinet were within communion rails. All great learned societies and corporations were represented, while notably of the law of science, art and agriculture and workmen's representatives from all parts of the United Kingdom had seats duly assigned to them. The Queen was evidently profoundly impressed with the scene prepared for her. She was noticeably pale when she reached the Dais. She soon, however, recovered and regained the bright and pleasant aspect she had borne all morning. Religious services in the Abbey in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee were conducted according to a carefully prepared programme. The Archbishop of Canterbury and the Dean of Westminster alone conducted them. Nearly every dignitary of the established church, however, was present, besides a great number of distinguished clergymen belonging to other denominations.

After the Queen entered the Abbey, and the benediction had been pronounced she was kissed by and kissed in return, her royal children. This ceremony over, Her Majesty retired.

"Jan't that Mrs. Holmes? I thought the doctors gave her up. She looks all now." "She is well. After the doctors gave up her case she tried Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and began to get better right away. I heard her say not long ago, that she hadn't felt so well in twenty years. She does her own work, and says that life seems worth living, at last. 'Why,' said she, 'I feel as if I had been raised from the dead, almost.' Thus do thousands attest the marvelous efficacy of this God given remedy for female weakness, prostration, laceration, leucorrhoea, morning sickness, weakness of stomach, tendency to cancerous disease, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred affections. d&w
