> "The first play of the season at the Charlotte opera house, last night, was a good one, and was deserving of double the audience that greeted it. Those who witnessed the play were unanimous in the opinion that it was one of the most moral and elevating of all the plays yet witnessed in this city, and a decided credit to the stage. The plot was pretty well covered in yesterday's issue of the Chronicle, and the expectations of the play goers were not cut, in a slightest degree, and was presented with as much life and animation as if the theatre had been packed from pit to dome. Mise Blythe is one of the best emotional actresses who has yet appeared upon the Charlotte stage, and she is supported by an excellent company. In fact, it is one of the best plays, and one of the best companies that has been seen in Charlotte.
