SUNDAY MORNING, MAR. 18, 1888

If Mr. Randall's bill to reduce revenue taxation is intended and will be used to defeat any legislation looking to tax reduction, no good Democrat or Republican representative can afford to vote for it. Taxes, both tariff and revenue, must be reduced by this Congress. Mr. Randall's measure comes nearer suiting a large majority of our people, take it all in all, than the other; but one or the other must be passed for both systems of taxation now in force are simply outrageous oppressions of the people.

NOBLE SENTIMENTS.

The new Emperor, in assuming the reins of power addresses a letter to the trusted guide and counsellor of his illustrious father. The successor expresses himself as inclined to continue the trust imposed on the able chancellor, and to lean on him for advice and aid; and addresses to him a long letter expressive of his sentiments. The following extract however does not bear the inspiration of Bismarck. It is full of noble thought and high purpose. It does not look to war as the sole end of glory and power. It regards the victories of peace as quite as important as those of war. It places the happiness of the people as an object of government at higher value than the fame of the soldier, and is a foreshadowing of that disarmament which might be general in Europe, if mutual distrust and jealousies could cease, and if rulers would learn that their true interest were in the culture of the arts of peace rather than those of war.

The following is the closing sentence of the Emperor's letter:

"These are my intentions, and I count on your well proved devotion and on the support of your tried experience to aid me, and with the unanimous co-operation of the people, as well as of officials, and the trustful co-laboration of all classes of the population, we will lead Germany and Prussia to new honors in the domain of pacific developments. Careless of splendor and glorious achievement, I shall be content if it can be hereafter said of my Government that it is beneficial to my people, useful to my country and a blessing to the empire.

"FREDERICK."

COL. SAUNDERS' NOTES.

The News Observer says:

"The privilege has been accorded us by Col. Saunders of a perusal of the Prefatory Notes to the 5th and ords. Notes of Col. Saunders to these publications are not only very interesting but are very valuable contribution to our historical literature. As he is not confined by his plan to observe a unity of design such as constrains the historian to follow a narrow path, he touches on every event of every importance in the growth of the Province and presents to clear view a variety of subjects that have heretofore been obscure.

Superior in intellectual power to any who have heretofore explored the same field, and having access to material and others could not consult."

We have enjoyed the same privilege, and we are indebted to the author for the exceedingly valuable and interesting personal and historical sketches, which illustrate the progress of North Carolina. We cannot at present more than refer to it. Much of the notes cede that precede the fifth chapter have much interest for Western North Carolina, at the period referred—1755-60—a wilderness, given up to the Indians, who instigated by the French, extended their forays into the country East of the mountains to the terror and ruin of the inhabitants. Various expeditions were sent against them by joint forces from N. and S. Carolina and Virginia. In these expeditions Col. Hugh Waddell, grand-uncle of Messrs. D. C. and F. N. Waddell, of Asheville, played a conspicuous part. He was not only a daring soldier, but a skillful general. As an Indian fighter he had no equal in the continent, and his prowess found a field not only in North Carolina but in Western Pennsylvania, then in possession of the French, or constantly threatened by them on conjunction with their savage allies.

In 1759, Col. Waddell was the builder of the fortifications known as Old Fort, just at the foot of the mountains.

We will have more to say on this subject at another time.

MR. RANDALL'S REVENUE REDUCTION BILL.

Mr. Randall has introduced his revenue reduction bill, and it has been referred to the committee on Ways and Means. It reduces the internal revenue seventy million and tariff revenue twenty-five million dollars. It makes a clean sweep of the tobacco tax, which yielded last year over thirty million dollars. It abolishes all taxes upon spirits distilled from apples, peaches and other fruits. Last year this tax amounted to $1,090,394. It reduces the regular whisky tax from from 90 to 50 cents a gallon. This tax last year amounted to $59,551,972. It abolishes the license tax on wholesale and retail liquor dealers, amounting last year to over five million dollars. It embraces the administrative features of the Henderson bill which recently passed the House. The tariff part of the bill is a reprint (with slight modifications) of the tariff act of 1883, with what is known as the Hewitt tariff administration bill attached. The latter feature is also borrowed from the bill prepared by the committee on ways and means.

The Washington correspondent of the News-Observer says:

"It is impossible to say now what its fate will be. It unmistakeably antagonizes the Mills bill and the administration policy as outlined in the President's message. Every protection Democrat in the House will support it, and the Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama internal revenue abolitionists are not saying a word against it. The desire to keep well in line with the administration prevents anything like a Democratic endorsement of the bill. The North Carolina members are reticent. A strong party pressure will be invoked in favor of the Mills bill, but it is very manifest now that nothing short of Republican votes can save it. This may all be changed before the bill is put on its final passage. The line of battle is defined by the Randall bill, and whether Randall or Mills shall win depends upon the numerical strength of their respective Republican allies. The preponderance of Republican sentiment is clearly with Randall. Mr. Randall was confident to-day that his bill would pass both the House and Senate. He has assurances of support, he says, from more that forty Democrats. He does not intend, he says, to antagonize the administration. It is simply a difference of opinion. His bill he believes to be a safe business measure. The Mills bill will be reported to the House next week. Mr. Randall is clearly of the opinion that his bill is genuine as a substitute for the Mills bill. He admits the possibility of the tactical resort by which the Republicans may defeat all tariff legislation, but does not comprehend such a result. It may be Mr. Randall's way, but in talking with your correspondent to-day he was very confident, not to say sanguine.

In Brief, And to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

SAVED HIS LEG!

SCROFULA

BONE CURED!

LITHONIA, GA., August 11, 1887.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.:
Gentlemen:—I have been afflicted with ulceration of the leg ever since I was a child, the disease undoubtedly being hereditary, as my mother suffers from scrofulous symptoms. As I advanced to manhood my affliction increased until the malady became harrassing and painful beyond the power of words to describe. My right leg particularly became fearfully ulcerated, the left leg being less painfully affected. Finally, about fourteen years ago, the ulcers on my right leg had eaten through the flesh into the bone. In order to save my life the doctors determined to amputate my leg below the knee. The operation was successfully performed by Dr. H. V. M. Miller, of Atlanta, and Dr. W. P. Bond, of Lithonia. But the loss of my leg gave me only temporary relief. The poison was still in my system, and soon began to show itself as in a short time after large ulcers appeared on my left leg, covering it from the knee to the instep, frequently while at work I would be troubled by the blood which oozed from the huge ulcers, and the sores and running sores were so offensive that my fellow-workmen could not stand the stench and would move away from me.

Last winter I was persuaded to try S. S. S. As a last effort I consented to do so, and about seven months ago I began taking the Specific. I soon began to feel the good effects of the medicine, the ulcers commenced to grow less and less and finally ceased, the ulcers healed, my flesh became firm and solid, and to-day, after using twenty-one bottles, I am as hale and stout a man of my age as there is in Georgia. I am seventy-one years old, but feel now younger and stronger than I did when I was twenty-five. I weigh about 170 pounds. Nothing is to be seen of the terrible disease, or to remind me of the torture I suffered for so many years, except the scars of the perfectly healed ulcers.

I want the world to know of the almost miraculous cure effected on me by S. S. S., and I call upon those who wish to know the particulars directly from me to write, and I will consider it a pleasure as well as a duty to answer their letters. I refer to Dr. W. P. Bond, of Lithonia, as to the truth of my statement. Very gratefully yours,
B. DEARE.

The Shelby Aurora says: The tin mine is again on a boom and promises to prove a bonanza to its owners. Prof Furman, a mineral expert of national reputation, is developing this tin mine with the aid of forty laborers, now at work cutting three trenches in the Ware tract near King's Mountain. They have certainly found tin; specimens of tin block, resembling tourmaline and associated with quartz and mica schist now on our table. The only question awaiting solution is whether it can be found associated with other minerals in quantities.
