

Ingall's recent speech denouncing McCallan and Hancock and Southern people is being printed and circulated throughout the North in immense quantities.

The democrats of Ward 4, Columbia, S. C., have nominated a man named Smith for Alderman of that city.

The Raleigh correspondent of the New York Times, one of the most intelligent republicans in this State, writes that papers strongly denouncing the fight made on Justice Lamar by Northern republicans, and the election bills introduced by Senator Chandler and the late bitter speech by Senator Ingalls are not only unpatriotic, but doing more to keep the South solid than everything else combined.

"If the National Republican Convention is controlled by Messrs. Ingalls and Chandler Mr. Cleveland is assured of another term."

The gist of the complaint is that the charge of the democrats that the republican party is the only sectional unpatriotic party is fully sustained by the republican leaders, and hence the good men of the country will keep in power the Democratic—the only national—party.

THE REV. MR. PEARSON. This evangelist is now in Wilmington and excites profound interest, his services being largely attended.

"Nature has done very little for him. He has none of the natural endowments that set off the great orator. His personal appearance is youthful, homely, unimposing. His voice is peculiar, and yet not without a certain fascination—penetrating and not unmusical when you get accustomed to it. He has a clear articulation. His manner is deliberate, self-contained. His mind is logical, acute, responsive, aggressive. He is not eloquent in any high sense. He is not a rhetorician. He scarcely uttered in his fifty minutes' discourse one rhetorical sentence. He is not imaginative. His descriptions are not remarkable. Then with all this negation, what is he? What power has he as a preacher?"

"And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power. It is his closest work that makes him so effective. He has the holy gift of speech that enables him to clothe clear thoughts in simple language. He is plain, simple, earnest, almost vehement. He is a servant of the Most High God, and he shows unto men the way of salvation. He is a preacher of the Cross of Jesus and we know how that is variously felt and estimated."

THE DEATH OF CHIEF JUSTICE WAITE. From the Charleston Sun of the 23rd we extract the following account of the death of the above distinguished gentleman: Washington, March 23.—Morrison R. Waite, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, died suddenly at 6 o'clock this morning from acute pneumonia. He died without a moment's warning and in presence only of a professional nurse. On Saturday night, the Chief Justice, walked to the home of Senator Hearst because of the illness of his coachman. He also walked home. Next morning he complained of feeling unwell and a physician was summoned, who announced that he was suffering from a slight cold. He remained in the house during Saturday, and when Monday came conferred with two of the Associate Justices and the physician, and determined to go to Court because of the decision to be delivered in the telephone case, deciding however, he would not read the decision, but would transfer that duty to Justice Chase.

THE CAUSE OF DEATH. The exposure consequent upon this journey accentuated the cold and on Tuesday he was advised to go to bed. Nothing serious was expected, but on Wednesday Mess Waite decided to telegraph her brother, Mr. C. C. Waite, of Cincinnati, who arrived here yesterday afternoon. Surgeon Ruth, of the United States Navy, the physician in attendance, and a friend of the family advised Mr. Waite on his arrival that it would be advisable to call in another physician in consultation. Dr. Gardner was summoned, and the result was that last night at midnight the patient and family were assured that there was no danger.

NOT ABOVE THE LAW OF NATURE. At 5 o'clock this morning the nurse heard the Chief Justice moan, and going to his bedside was informed that he felt pretty well. An hour and a half later hearing a gasp she ran to the bedside and found a corpse.

Morrison Reisch Waite was the seventh Chief Justice of the United States, and was born in Lyme, Conn., November 29, 1816. He graduated at Yale College in 1837, studied law and began to practice in Maumee City, Ohio, in 1840. He was a member of the Legislature, and in 1850 he removed to Toledo. He declined repeated nominations to Congress, also a seat on the Supreme bench of the State. In 1871-72 he was one of the counsel of the United States before the tribunal of arbitration at Geneva. In 1873 he presided over the Constitutional Convention of Ohio. On June 21, 1874, he became Chief Justice of the United States and since that time has resided in Washington.

WORTH KNOWING. Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough and running into consumption in its first stages. He tried many well-known popular cough remedies, but they all failed to give him any relief.
