The Messenger says: "The Linville Land, Manufacturing and Mining Company was organized on the 14th inst. at Cranberry, N. C., under the management of the following officers: Don ald McRae, of Wilmington, president; S. T. Kelsy, of Highlands, vice president and general manager; C. E. Ricksecker, of Hutchison, Kan., secretary, and Wallace Hahn, of Cranberry, Thos. F. Parker, of Charleston, and H. W. Brundige, of Horton, Kan., directors. The object of the corporation is to build a town in the beautiful Linville Valley through which the well known river of that name flows. The company has purchased a large tract of land in the broad valley lying between the Blue Ridge on the west, and the majestic Grandfather and Grandmother mountains on the east about ten miles southeast of Cranberry. The track is remarkably well watered, and is covered with a fine forest of various kinds of hardwood timber. The soil is rich and runs naturally into blue grass and white clover. The special features claimed by the company are the climate, water, scenery and altitude of about four thousand feet, which will give it prominence as a summer resort, and being in the iron district and within easy reach of coal has advantages of manufacturing. The company haue laid out on an extensive scale and have been arranging preliminaries for more than a year, planning the town in the most approved manner with broad streets and extensive parks, with a view to making a town of which North Carolina may in the near future, be justly proud."
