To be still more frank I want your money, and I warn you I am taking steps to secure it without session, but a plan has been devised which will lead you to give it up cheerfully and freely becaus: you will greatly bene-fit yourself by so doing. The motive and the plan are stated briefly as follows: I wish to convert my present stock into cash within the next 30 days for two reasons, first, I want to take a large amount of cash to market, when I go to purchase my new fall stock, as I can by this means be sure of getting the lowest market prices. Second, I must dispose of a large amount of goods to make room for this new stock. This very reasonable but pressing motive has made me deem it wise to pursue a plan which will convert my present stock into cash and do it at once. Therefore during the next 3 days, every article in my stock of Clothing, Hats, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks and Valises, will be sold without ful. ## During the next three months, we estimate that there will be fifteen thousand people. This is estimating. Our present population at ten thousand, to which we add five thousand visitors that we expect to be here and at near by hotels and boarding houses. The ques tion arises how are we to feed this multitude? That is a very easy question to answer, provided you have the provisions on hand. But suppose we should be visited this ummer with a blizzard, such as they had in New York last winter, could we pull through ?

Well we hardly ever bave snow storms here at this season sure enough to stop the wheels of commerce, but you need not be surprised to see our prices go a great deal lower than the lowest point registered by the thermometer during the blizzard last winter.

Having foreseen the rush of visitors to Western North Carolina this summer, we have prepared ourselves accordingly, and are now husy receiving the finest and largest stock of

Staple and Fancy

EVER OFFERED IN N. C. COFFEE.

The emancipation of twenty million slaves in South America has caused a yery ansettled state of affairs among the Coffee Planters, and has the effect of advancing the price of coffee which seems likely to reach still higher figures.

Before the advance we were so fortunate as to secure a large lot of genuine Mocha, O. G. Java, fancy Gustemals, Maracaibo and fancy Rio Coffees, both green and parched all of which we offer at New York prices.

Choice Rio Coffees are now held in New York at 18 cents.
