

STATE NEWS FROM RALEIGH

Hancock's Charges Against Gov. Russell.

The Southern May Take out an Injunction

Against the Reduction in its Passenger Rates—Then Again the Railroad May Raise the Tariff.

Raleigh, Mar. 2.—There will have to be another wait upon the United States supreme court for the decision in the North Carolina railroad commission case, for no decision was handed down as was expected.

The Newberne fair seems to be drawing a crowd. Raleigh will be well represented. The weather, so far, is all that could be asked.

The question was asked yesterday whether the railroad commission has power to forbid an inter-state free pass being issued—a pass from Raleigh to Atlanta or Richmond and return.

The exposition car, "Charlotte," seems to be doing a fine business. At Wilson, where it was only one day, 1,000 visited it. It has gone to Newberne to be one of the attractions for the week.

Clerk Wimlish, of the penitentiary, says that he only ordered 150 pounds of that coffee, and was dumfounded when 20,000 pounds came.

It is said that Hancock will not give out his proof regarding the charges he has made against Gov. Russell until the meeting of the next legislature, when he will lay the entire matter before the body, and ask that Russell be impeached.

The monthly health report for Raleigh is out and shows a fine record. There were only nineteen deaths during January, six of these were whites, and three out of the six were outsiders who came here sick.

The following delegates to the "Food Congress" have gone to Washington city: Prof. W. A. Withers of the experiment station, Col. A. C. Holiday, Dr. Richard H. Lewis, Mr. J. C. L. Harris and J. L. Ramsey.

It is said that if the present passenger rates, as made by the commission, are not advanced, that the Southern railroad will sue out an injunction in the federal courts claiming that the 2 and 2 1/2 cent rates mean practically a confiscation of their property, thus impairing their ability to meet contracts.

GATLING'S NEW GUN

The Famous North Carolina Inventor of Hertford County. The people of North Carolina are always interested in the successful career of Dr. R. J. Gatling, a native of Hertford county, whose rapid-fire gun has made him famous, says the News and Observer. Now in his old age he is in Cleveland, O., to see the final work of the new type of big coast defense gun, which he has invented. His views upon his work, the present international situation, and the possibilities and needs of the United States in the case of hostilities, as printed in the Leader, is full of interest. Dr. Gatling said:

"Yes, I shall make every endeavor to hasten the work upon the gun, in view of the present situation," said Dr. Gatling. "Although nothing has yet been said to me by the government upon the subject, I know the feeling and the efforts that are everywhere being made to hasten preparations."

"The gun may perhaps be ready to send east in a week, and if the lateness are not too busy at Washington, which I rather fear is the case, it may be rifled in about a fortnight. It may be mounted upon any carriage. I should think, if everything goes well and the work is pushed, the gun possibly be ready for testing in a month or so."

"If it is favorable to the authorities, I should very much like to see a competitive test to the death between the one-piece gun and the present style of built-up guns. I should not feel well satisfied with a test of eight or ten shots, for one of the great advantages in the new style of gun, I believe, is its far greater longevity. While three of these one-piece cannons could be made while they are making one of the built-up kind, which takes about a year, the life of the new gun, I am sure, will be three or four times greater, if not more, more. In rapid work I do not believe that the many-part guns would stand firing more than about twenty times. The one-piece guns I think will last for over one hundred shots. I would like to see this new gun and one of the present type fired until both are destroyed."

"I hardly think I will want anything further done at the City Forge Works, where the gun now lies, as you say, and as soon as I give it an examination to-day, it will probably be sent over to the Otis Steel Works, where it is to be annealed and mandrilled. The latter is the expanding of the bore of a rotary motion. After the gun is re-annealed, which itself will take several days, the mandrilling will take only about a day, and then it will be ready to go east. General Miles and other members of the ordnance bureau have expressed a desire to be present when the final work is done and they may be here next week. Of course what the gun will do depends altogether upon the firing tests to be made when it is finished, but so far everything is favorable. The tests of tensile strength of the special steel used for the gun is very high, being 108,000 pounds to the square inch. The steel of the built-up gun runs about 90,000 pounds. Sometimes wrought steel has been brought up to 108,000. England has given up the built-up gun, and is experimenting with wire guns. No, I do not think these will prove much better."

BEAUTIFUL SEA SHELLS. Every one admires them. Since coming south I have received numerous inquiries from northern people for sea shells, and now am prepared to answer yes. I can send you shells, for I have made quite a collection of lovely shells, both from our own coast, the coral reefs, and some beautiful ones from the West India Islands. I will mail a dozen, no two alike, to anyone who will send a stamp for postage.

Yours, MRS. F. A. WARNER, Jacksonville, Fla.
