AMERICAN SHAMROCK.

Ireland's Beloved Flower is Found Growing in Many Parts of the Union.

"Few people, comparatively speaking, are aware that the shamrock, Ireland's national emblem, grows in many parts of the United States," said Mr. Michael Cavanagh, of Boston, during a recent visit to Washington, says the Post.

"I was out walking in the northwest section of Washington the other day, and saw loads of shamrocks in one of the parks. It is identically the same as that which flourishes on the soil of Erin. A good many people confuse the shamrock with clover, which it resembles considerably, but the shamrock can always be told from the other by its small, yellow blossoms, exactly like a strawberry bloom. This blossom puts forth five little yellow leaves. Now the blossom of the clover is either red or white, and it is larger and shaped differently.

"The shamrock has three leaves, which, in most instances, are perfect in their heart shape, though not always so, and it grows luxuriantly in limestone regions. The tradition that St. Patrick explained the mystery of the Trinity by the little flower is the common explanation of its adoption as Ireland's most cherished emblem."

WHY She Be Pleased!

An attaché of the Chinese legation the other day in a photographer's shop was buying all the photographs of pretty girls that the proprietor was at liberty to sell, and he betrayed an especial fondness for young women in evening dress. The more generous the display of polished shoulders the better he was pleased. I asked him what he intended doing with the photographs, says a writer in the Washington Post. "I shall send them to my wife in China," he said. "She has never been in America. She will be happy to see how the Washington young ladies look." And perhaps she will be, but I have my doubts.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for reelection to the office of superintendent of the water department, subject to the action of the democratic convention. My record as superintendent for the past year is open to investigation and should have weight with fair-minded citizens who desire a clean, energetic administration of the city's water department.

THE CRANE'S MEAL.

He Easily Catches and Kills the Sparrow, But Finds it Hard to Swallow Him.

Court square has a new denizen, and now the peacocks and the squirrels stop every now and then to look in wonder at the spindly-legged crane which stalks in solemn dignity to and fro, says the Memphis Semitrary. This crane, however, is not attracting merely the attention of the other dwellers of the park, for every day or two a large human audience watches his performance. The crane catches sparrows and it is the efforts he makes to swallow his prey which cause spectators to gather by the score. The crane stands quietly like a statue and waits. The sparrows fly about fearlessly, not even startled by the strange bird. They have seen rags on a stick before and they are not afraid; oh, no! Then one of the sparrows lights very near the crane. The rag becomes lively and his beak is shot out with lightning quickness and the sparrow caught right by the neck.

Then comes the fun. The sparrow is a little large to swallow. The crane kills him, thinking the small bird's lively capers must be the cause of the difficulty. Death makes the task no easier. The sparrow still chokes the crane. The crane tries the sparrow head on. The small bird's wings stick out and prevent the sparrow from going down. The crane starts at the feet; but the feathers on the prospective dinner are ruffled the wrong way and the second attempt fails. An idea strikes his cranium. He walks to a small tub of water and soaks the sparrow so that the feathers cling closely. It is still an impossible task to swallow the bird. The crane works and works, and finally, by pounding the sparrow almost to a pulp, at last makes a meal. Then the audience disperses, wondering at the crane's marvelous digestion.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too free desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidney, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding water in passing it, or bed effects following use of liquor, opium or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents or one dollar.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, if you send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in the Asheville Daily Gazette.

A Siamese Cremation.

The utmost magnificence characterized the cremation of the late Phra Charoew Rajathon the other evening. A couple of shadow plays and a marionette show were within the wat grounds, and on all sides hung the rich banners sent by friends of the deceased, inscribed with wishes for his future welfare. In one corner was a booth containing the store of silver and other articles which were to be given to the visitors. Each of these on arrival was invited to dip into a black bag and withdraw a number corresponding to that on one of the articles in the booth, and the expenditure on these gifts must have been most lavish. In a pavilion facing the crematory refreshments were served, and in another one could watch the crowd, or later on witness the magnificent display of fireworks. At about seven o'clock the fire arrived from the king, and shortly afterward H. R. H. Prince Bhanurangse came as his majesty's representative to apply the first light to the funeral pyre.—Siam Observer.

WINE OF CARDUI
MONTHLY SUFFERING.
Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pain in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides, hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.
These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.
WINE OF CARDUI makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why wait a month when Wine of Cardui will relieve it? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?
For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address giving symptoms, "The Medical Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.
