CAROLINA NEWS

Interesting Items from Various Parts of the State.

Glimpses of Life and Progress in the Land of the Sky.

Notes Gathered for the Gazette and Selections from Latest North Carolina Newspapers.

The secretary of state has incorporated the Davidson Cotton Seed Oil company, with a capital of $100,000. Principal office, Davidson, Mecklenburg county. Capital stock, $20,000 with the privilege of increasing it to $100,000.

The amount necessary to defray the incidental expenses of the grand gala week and firemen's tournament, is estimated at $2,500, and the finance committee is requested to proceed at once to raise this amount.—Greensboro Record.

Greensboro is soon to have a $10,000 chair factory. The movement to organize the company has been on foot for some time and we are glad to learn that nearly all the capital stock has been taken. We are asked to withhold further statements for reasons best known to those concerned.—Greensboro Telegraph.

Reports from all parts of the county indicate that the storm of Saturday night was the most terrific in years.

The rain fell in a perfect deluge. The dam at Buffalo mills was partially washed away, it being estimated that about one fourth of the dam is gone.—Shelby Aurora.

A Special to the Wilmington Star from Kingston, N. C., says: Friday morning Mr. Lonnie Lane, about twenty two years of age, and Miss Glennie Sauls, about fourteen years old, both of well to do families, took a walk together. Not returning search was made, and that evening their bodies were found near the city. It appeared that Lane had shot Miss Sauls and then killed himself with a pistol. His attentions to the young girl were not acceptable to her parents, and he had been forbidden to visit the home. This was probably the cause of the tragedy.

The North Carolina Bar association will hold its first annual meeting in Morehead City next July. The executive committee of the bar association met at Raleigh Saturday and agreed upon the place of meeting and the date. The association will meet at 9 p. m. July 5, and will remain in session the 6th and 7th. The program for the July meeting was partially arranged. A number of gentlemen prominent in the legal profession, several of whom are men of national reputation, residing in other states, were invited to deliver other addresses. The program will not be made public until the invitations extended speakers are accepted.

Sunday morning a young son of Mr. B. E. Arey, of Chambersburg town ship, found a white tramp, apparently about fifty years old, chained in an out house on his father's premises. The neighbors gathered in, and the chain was filed, when it was discovered that the lock which held the chain together was not locked. The man said that three men had chained him there the night before, but this is not believed. It is thought by all who saw him that he fastened himself. What his motive was is the merest conjecture. Some of those who saw him are of the opinion that he was of unsound mind.—Statesville Landmark.

The rains of last Saturday night swept away the mill dam of Walker & Co.'s roller mill at Oak Ridge. Sixty feet of solid masonry went from the middle, creating a roar which awoke people a mile away, at 2 a. m. Sunday morning. The new county bridge just below the mill was swept away. The damage is estimated at $1000 to the mill property. This is a very old mill site. Lord Cornwallis camped at this mill on the 11th of February, 1781, a month before the battle of Guilford court house, as he was trying to intercept General Greene on his way to Virginia. On the following day the bugler was killed by Tarleton's men. Whether this dam was built before that time or about 1820, when the mill was made a "merchant mill," is not known.—Winston Journal.

A horrible accident occurred at the cotton mill at Durham Friday before noon when a pipe coming from a newly erected pump burst, filling the room in which Mr. W. Branson and superior tendent Mathes were in, with steam. So full of steam was the room that the door could not be opened. Mr. Branson, during his suffering, broke out a window glass and called for help. At last the wall on one side of the building broke and let out the steam. But it was too late to save the life of Mr. Branson, whose body was badly scalded. He died that afternoon a few minutes after 5 o'clock. The condition of the superintendent was reported very serious on Friday night.

Cape Fear Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, of this city, are very anxious to make their confederate museum a state institution, and with that end in view Miss Mary F. Sanders, chairman of the history and relics committee of the chapter, has issued a letter appealing to all veterans or the descendants of those who are dead, throughout the state, to deposit, either as a gift or loan, such relic as they may have. It is especially urged upon all such as can possibly do so to contribute some item of history either of their personal experience or anything else which they may know to be true, to be preserved so as to assist the future historian in giving North Carolina her proper place among the sisters of our ill fated little republic.—Wilmington Messenger.

In the trucking region around Wilmington, says the Messenger, the straw berry fields are blooming and advanced vines have some little berries in the embryo state, but notwithstanding the fact that they are not expected to be ripe for the market for some weeks yet, representatives of northern produce and commission houses are buying up the crop of berries yet to be produced. A prominent grower from Pender, who was in the city yesterday, said he had sold some of his crop at $110 an acre. The buyer takes the crop whether it is large or small, assuming the risk of a failure of the crop, and the grower has no more to do with it until his vines are stripped of fruit. The purchaser bears the expense of picking, crating and shipping himself.

Rev. P. R. Elam, the King's Mountain coal expert, claims that he has discovered a flow of natural gas, which is to him conclusive evidence of the existence of coal deposits. He said the gas was flowing out of the earth on the Cherryville road, about two miles from King's Mountain. It makes its way through apertures varying in size from that of a goose quill to that of your finger. Touched with a lighted match the jet will burn. Mr. Elam said he had not applied the test, but that others had. Children living near had, on hog killing days, taken bladders to the gas vents and had them inflated by simply inserting the quills in the gas orifices. When rainy weather causes the water to stand in puddles or pools, the gas bubbles up through it. An old darkey, who owned land near by was so afraid of this boiling of the water that he sold his possessions and left. The phenomenon has been known by the neighbors for many, many years, but Mr. Elam says they did not know what it was, and that he himself did not hear of it until a week or two ago.
