A learned pundit of India, Raja Sivaprasad, thus explains the aversion of the followers of Jainism, one of the many Indian religions, to interfere with the exigencies of any living thing: "We endeavor to avoid even green vegetables, under the idea that cutting the plant may hurt it. Our diet as far as possible, is dry vegetable food. We would not needlessly pick a leaf from a tree, lest the tree should possibly feel pain. That plants are not unconscious, but share the attributes of man, is maintained in the Jain scriptures. As the nature of man, it is held, is to be born and to grow old, so is the nature of the plant; as the one needs food, so does the other; as the one falls sick when khamaged, so does the other; as the one is not eternal, so the other is not eternal; as the one has reason, so does the other. This Jain comment is amply by remarking that the plants observe the season and sprout at the proper time; the seed always grows upward and so on; all which would not happen if the plants had not knowledge of the things about them."

A CLEVER TRICK.

It certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anybody can try it who has lame back and weak kidneys, malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones up the whole system, acts as a stimulant to liver and kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures constipation, headache, fainting spells, sleeplessness and melancholy. It is purely vegetable, a mild laxative, and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and be convinced that they are a miracle worker. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents a bottle at T. C. Smith's, W. C. Carmichael's and Pelham's pharmacy.

DAVID B. HENDERSON A Long Career in the Army and in Politics.

Politics is a game of chance to a large extent; that in the outcome is always uncertain. A little while ago the chances of David Bremner Henderson, of Dubuque, Iowa, to succeed Thomas B. Reed as Speaker of the House of Representatives appeared to be slight. But now he looms up as the dark horse of the contest, and there seems but little doubt that he will win in a walk.

Public interest is, therefore, concentrated upon Mr. Henderson at present, and it is believed in Washington that he will be nominated for Speaker upon the first ballot, when the Republican caucus meets just before the beginning of the session.

Nothing short of a complete revulsion of public sentiment against him in the next six months can prevent his success.

The career of Mr. Henderson, therefore, has a special interest at this time. He is a naturalized citizen of the United States, for he was born at Old Deer, Scotland, on March 14, 1840. His parents emigrated to America when he was six years old, and finally settled in Iowa, in 1849. He was educated in public schools and at the Upper Iowa University. Subsequently he studied law and was admitted to the Bar in 1865. Meantime he had enlisted in the army, in 1861, as a private. He was wounded several times and lost a leg, but entered the army again upon his recovery as colonel of the Forty-sixth Iowa Infantry, and remained with his regiment till the close of the war. From 1865 until 1896 he was collector of internal revenue for the Third district of Iowa, resigning his position to become a member of a law firm in Dubuque. For about two years he was Assistant United States District Attorney for the northern division of the district of Iowa, which position he resigned in 1871.

For the last sixteen years he has served in Congress continuously, and almost from his first term has taken an active part in the business of the House. The most important piece of legislation with which M. Henderson has been chiefly associated in recent years is the Bankruptcy law, which he, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, reported and carried through the House. He advocated the bill for the election of Senators by the people, and debates on the Civil Service law he has been one of its strongest supporters on the floor of the House. His position on the money question is satisfactory to sound money men generally. Mr. Henderson is personally popular among his colleagues in the House, irrespective of party, but he is a strong partisan, and his impulsive manners have frequently brought him into sharp clashes with his political opponents.

In Washington and in Iowa "Dave" Henderson, as he is known among his friends, is a noted and popular character—because of his oratorical gifts, his good nature, his love of humanity, and his love of song and of singing. Mr. Henderson possesses a voice of such power as to make itself heard in any chorus. His singing has been described by a rival in that accomplishment, former Representative Warren B. Hooker, as very strong in wind but very weak in tune. But this may be a case of professional jealousy, for at any rate everybody is fond of hearing Mr. Henderson sing. It was he who led the chorus in the Doxology sung before the Speaker's chair at the close of the Fifty-first Congress, and his voice is in constant demand at social gatherings.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought

A Gift That Won Her.

The prettiest story of the giving or presents that I know anything about is a chapter in the life romance of an adorable little woman who is the wife of an ex-senator from a state in the middle west. She was a widow when the senator first met her and he a widower. It was the afternoon of life with both of them, but he wooed her with the ardor of a boy and the persistence of a man. At one time she had definitely made up her mind that her duty forbade her to marry him, and she told him so. She was deaf to his pleadings, and he went away, asking only that he might give her some gift in token of his unalterable affection. She would accept nothing but a trifle—a book, she said, and a book he gave her. It was the most magnificent edition to be had, and on the back was embazoned the title, "Paradise Lost."

STORY OF A SLAVE.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her usual work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a god-send to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 25 cents a bottle. Sold by T. C. Smith, W. C. Carmichael, and Pelham's Pharmacy.

Itch on human, cured in 30 minutes by Woodford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by T. C. Smith, druggist, Asheville, N. C.

PHOTOGRAPHING OF CRIMINALS.

Justice Truax of the Supreme Court, of New York, was asked to grant a writ of peremptory mandamus to restrain the Police Commissioners from taking a photograph of Thoms Joyce and placing it in the Rogues' Gallery after he had been convicted of an assault and sentenced to six months in the Workhouse. It was shown, in response, that Joyce had frequently been arrested and that he was an associate of criminals. Justice Truax denied the application, holding that these facts were sufficient to warrant the action of the Commissioners. Justice Truax quotes from Prof. Tiedeman's treatise on the limitations of police power: "Another phase of police supervision is that of photographing alleged criminals and sending copies of the photographs to all detective bureaus. If this be directed by the law as punishment for a crime of which the criminal stands convicted, or if the man is in fact a criminal, there can be no Constitutional or legal objection to the act, for no right has been violated." Referring to the definition given in the Consolidation Act of the duties of the Police Board in New York, the Court states them to be, among other things, to preserve the public peace, prevent crime, detect and arrest offenders, and protect the rights of persons and property. "One of the ways to prevent crime and to protect the rights of persons and property," Justice Truax says, "is to know who are habitual criminals, and the easiest way that such persons can be recognized is by their photographs. But it is well settled that a mandamus will issue only to compel a public officer to perform a duty imposed upon him by law."

ROMAN CATHOLIC VIEW OF INGERSOLL.

Freeman's Journal. What of his responsibility for the evil he has done? God alone knows, for He alone knows whether the early shock to his faculties left him that liberty of soul which is essential to accountability. He therefore knows how far he was free, and will judge him with infinite justice. A practical answer to the question of responsibility may be put in this way: Had a well instructed Catholic, with same mind and normal will, made the record of blasphemy Mr. Ingersoll made and took with him, and had he died without repenting, he would most certainly be damned to hell for all eternity. But hypothetical answers, like expert evidence, are of very little use in the solution of an actual problem.

"Our baby was sick for a month with severe cough and catarrhal fever. Although we tried many remedies she kept getting worse until we used One Minute Cough Cure. It relieved her once and cured her in a few days."—B. L. Nance, Prin. High School, Buffalo, Texas, Paragon Pharmacy.

An exchange says: "It is not beyond the range of possibilities that this country may one of these days, and not far distant days either, be electrified by the announcement of the discovery of a diamond field on one side or the other of and near the Canadian border. Five diamonds found a short time ago in Northern Michigan have been pronounced genuine. They are now in the possession of Tiffany in New York. Canadian geologists have recently been making investigations, and have reached the conclusion that there is a 'mother lode' of diamonds which begins on the shores of Hudson bay, probably on both sides, and extends southward. The gravel in which the diamonds mentioned were found has been analyzed and found to be exactly similar to that of the famous South African diamond fields at Kimberley. Canadian government geologists are now making further investigations."
