BERTILLON EXPOSED

His Great Scheme Proved to be Only a Farce.

The Judges Take Great Interest in the Exposure.

The Bordereau Alone May Decide Dreyfus' Fate.

Mercier and Roget See Drift of Events and May Have Recourse to Desperate Means.

Rennes, Aug. 28.—A remarkable change in the moral as well as the physical atmosphere at Rennes has taken place in the past twenty-four hours, and hope and confidence have been renewed in the ultimate triumph of truth. Today's proceedings in the court room were important since the chimerical structure was destroyed which a crack-brained fanatic had reared in a laboratory of science.

Bertillon is being driven mad with rage and grief by the exposure of his strange idiocy. The world at large knows Dreyfus did not write the bordereau, but it is becoming evident that this old issue will almost alone decide the prisoner's fate.

The first indication of this was the attitude of the judges who have taken a great interest in Bertillon's exposure and have treated well the experts who acknowledge Esterhazy wrote the bordereau. There are other reasons suggesting the end toward which the case is tending.

It should be remembered the general staff has failed to produce a scrap of evidence showing the important bordereau was ever delivered to a foreign power and the judges can therefore acquit the prisoner without, in their opinion, condemning their superiors of conspiracy or the use of illegal measures against Dreyfus in 1894, basing their verdict upon expert testimony.

Mercier and Roget now plainly see drift of events and it is reported tonight that they are in desperate circumstances and will have recourse to desperate means, insisting that Dreyfus was a traitor in partnership with Esterhazy and Weil.

THE COURT MARTIAL.

Rennes, Aug. 28.—When the fourth week of the court-martial of Dreyfus opened this morning, General Mercier was present, thus settling at rest reports as to his having fled and his arrest.

The first witness was M. Paray Javal, a draughtsman called by the defense to refute the system by which M. Bertillon attempted to prove the prisoner wrote the bordereau in a disguised hand.

General Mercier was not very cheerful today. He hardly said a word to General Gougeon, but during the suspension of the court's sitting he and General Gougeon and Roget walked up and down the court yard of the Lycee engaged in conversation.

The center of interest in the court yard was Captain Freytag, who testified favorably to Dreyfus and gave the lie to Colonel Maurel in a most important feature of the latter's evidence. The captain held a veritable reception of friends who shook his hand. These friends, however, were all civilians. Not a single uniformed officer spoke to him, which is a clear determination of the military clique to ostracize him.

When the first two witnesses had testified and argued against Bertillon's system, it was the opinion of the sympathizers of Dreyfus that if the statements of the witnesses were correct they had simply pulverized Bertillon. The latter wished to reply, but Colonel Jouaust refused to allow it.

An amusing scene followed. Bertillon pleaded that he had a personal statement to make and mounted the platform. But he had hardly uttered a half dozen words when Colonel Jouaust saw he was merely regarding his evidence and, to the satisfaction of the audience, curtly told the specialist to leave the platform, which he did, discomfited.

M. Tessonere's testimony against Dreyfus followed, and then M. Charavay confessed he had made an error and said he was now convinced Esterhazy, and not Dreyfus, wrote the bordereau. The next expert, Pelletier, testified favorably to Dreyfus. Courard, expert, deposed that he was convinced the bordereau was not written by Esterhazy. The final witness, M. Varinaud, maintained his declaration made before the court of cassation that the bordereau was not written by Esterhazy. The court adjourned at 11:50 a. m.

PENNSYLVANIA TROOPS PARADE

Hundreds of Thousands Applaud Them--Speech By President.

Pittsburg, Aug. 28.—Hundreds of thousands of people turned out today to greet the return of the Tenth Pennsylvania. The line of march was four miles long, and was lined with enthusiastic crowds, who divided the plauds between the volunteers and President McKinley, who drove at the head of the parade. With the president during the day were Generals Merritt and Green, Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania, and Governor Atkinson, of West Virginia. When the parade reached the president he reviewed the troops and then came speaking by Governors Stone and Atkinson, General Merritt, Lieutenant Colonel Barnes and the president. President and Mrs. McKinley left tonight for East Liverpool, Ohio.

After welcoming home the regiment and congratulating them on what they had done, President McKinley paid a tribute to the dead. "Over there in the Philippines," he continued, "they represented the courage and conscience and pure patriotism of their country. They were not serving the insurgents in the Philippines or their sympathizers at home. They had no part in common with the men, few in number happily, who would have rejoiced to have seen them lay down their arms in the presence of the enemy whom they had just emancipated from Spanish rule, and who should have been our firmest friends."

He went on to say that peace brought us the Philippines by treaty. "It became our duty," he said, "and is ours as much as the Louisiana purchase or Texas annexation."

President McKinley again complimented the volunteers for remaining in the Philippines to help put down the rebellion, and praised the work of the regiments and of the navy. He commended them for refraining from fighting while the peace treaty was pending ratification, saying "I take all the responsibility for that direction. General Otis was only instructed by orders of his government, and the soldiers, under great provocation to strike back, obeyed. The first blow was struck by the insurgents. Our kindness was reciprocated by cruelty, our mercy with murders. They assailed our sovereignty and there will be no useless parley until the insurrection is suppressed and American authority is acknowledged and established."

SILVER DOLLARS BEING WITHDRAWN FOR COTTON

Coin will be Shipped from Mint at New Orleans.

New York, Aug. 28.—The withdrawal of silver dollars for use at the south to move the cotton crop began in earnest today when local banks deposited $50,000 at the sub-treasury in this city on account of the cotton crop in Texas and other southern states.

The coin will be shipped from the mint at New Orleans, which is always well supplied with silver dollars. Today's deposits at the treasury in this city on account of the cotton movement were far ahead of any day this season, only $75,000 having been received altogether this month for silver dollar shipments.

Santiago, Aug. 28.—General Jimenez, aspirant for the presidency of San Domingo, and his two sons, arrived this afternoon on the steamer from Cienfuegos, but he was not allowed to land. General Wood was advised by the Cuban government to hold him until advised from Havana what course to take. A great reception for Jimenez was prevented.

THE SICKNESS AT HAMPTON.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 28.—There are now only ten cases of yellow fever in the hospital at the soldiers' home, all of which are on the convalescent list and will probably be discharged as cured within the next ten days. Twelve of the patients who have been in the hospital were discharged yesterday, but they will be detained in the house of detention ten days. It is very probable that the quarantine against the home will be removed by September 15.

BUILDING COLLAPSES

Frame Work of Coliseum Building in Chicago Falls.

Crash Came Without a Minute's Warning, Catching Forty Men.

Six are Killed, Seven Injured and Several More Missing.

Loss Will be About $40,000 Which is Borne by Pittsburg Bridge Company.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Without a moment's warning the immense steel frame work of the Coliseum building, in process of construction on the site of the old Libby prison war museum on the east side of Wabash avenue, collapsed this evening, carrying with it forty workmen who were putting the finishing touches upon the arches. So far six have been recovered, while three more are known to be missing and are believed to be buried in the ruins. Seven were injured, three probably fatally.

All the killed and injured were workmen, many of whom were not residents of Chicago. It is believed that faulty engineering and imperfect work of the contractors were responsible for the accident. The men in charge represent the Pittsburg Bridge company, and they refuse to give out information regarding the men employed, and a complete list of the casualties will probably not be learned until the debris is cleared away.

One theory is that the sand under the foundation shifted under the immense weight and unsettled the base of the arches.

The loss will fall upon the Pittsburg Bridge company and will exceed $40,000. The Coliseum will also lose heavily, as the building will not be ready for any of the big attractions, such as the horse show.

The collapsed structure was 304 feet long, 172 feet wide, and completed would have been 85 feet high.
