

DRESSING TO LOOK YOUNG.

"The pathos of the women who dressed too youthfully has not been recognized always," said one who was young enough to dress as she wanted and so indifferent to the subject that she never cared how she looked.

"Best on the market for coughs and colds and all bronchial troubles; for croup it has no equal," writes Henry E. Whitford, South Canaan, Conn., of One Minute Cough Cure.

RAILROAD TIES.

There are 12,000 miles of railway in Poland.

Central Asian railroad managers try to meet the desires of their public. A harem car with latticed windows has been constructed for the amusement of Bokhara.

French railroad companies have been ordered by the courts to provide their passengers with seasonal advertisements. The western railroad had increased the number of advertisements till a season ticket was as thick as a pocketbook, and commuters refused to carry them.

The railroad companies of Australia have never discovered that it is possible to take up tickets on the train; hence the passengers are locked in the cars to prevent any of them stealing a ride, and when they arrive at their station are hustled out through a turnstile and held up for their tickets.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of Trusted His Dog Too Far.

It is not always safe to put too much trust in a dog. An Ellsworth man had a highly prized dog, and when a neighbor presented a bill for two hens which he claimed had been killed by the brute the dog owner was grieved and positively refused to believe the charge or pay for the hens.

General T. H. Stanton, while in a reminiscent mood, told this story to an Omaha reporter:

"One morning I got around to the Army and Navy club in Washington and found none of the distinguished members there. I felt a little lonely, and, touching a bell, I summoned a waiter.

"Have any of the old drunks been here this morning?" I asked.

"No, sah; you're de first one," he replied.

WEDDING HOUSES.

In olden times certain towns and villages in England used to possess a wedding house, where poor couples, after they had been wedded at church, could entertain their friends at a small cost, the only outlay being the purchase of such provisions for their guests as they brought with them, the house for the day being given free of payment.

The Duchess of Portland is the tallest woman in England. She married the duke in 1839. She was then Miss Dallas Yorke. The duke is the lord of £300,000 a year and owns half a dozen castles, among them being the incomparable Welbeck, where Lady Peggy Primrose spent her honeymoon. The duchess devotes most of her time to the furtherance of temperance work.

Soap is a useful preventive of blisters on the feet. Before starting for a long tramp protect yourself against blisters by slipping over the feet of the stockings inside. For a blistered heel a useful application is made of a little yellow soap made into a paste with water and laid on the place. For broken blisters on hands or feet zinc ointment is very useful.

In the seclusion of an oriental harem a woman invented the weaving of cashmere shawls and besides this evidence of brilliance gave such wise advice to her husband that he changed her name from Nourmahal (light of the harem) to Nourjehan (light of the world). The same woman invented attar of roses.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Shakers, who are noted for their longevity, make it a rule to go out in the fresh air, breathe deeply and take a little exercise every morning before breakfast. They never sleep on a feather bed, using always the wire springs and a hair mattress.

A woman's club in Iceland, known as the Thorvaldsen society, looks after the poor, keeps up a sewing school, visits the hospital and carries on various philanthropic enterprises.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Wives, Beware!

An expectant mother had better not take anything at all than those positively dangerous mixtures so widely advertised to relieve her discomfort and nausea. She ought to know that outside external treatment is the only way that can possibly be of any benefit. She ought to know that Mother's Friend is the only remedy that will help her, and it is an external liniment. It takes her through the entire period in comparative comfort, shortens labor and childbirth is no longer to be dreaded. More than that, it preserves her girlish shape after the ordeal, and her little one will come into the world perfect in form and health.

Get Mother's Friend at the drug stores for $1 a bottle, or send to THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., ATLANTA, GA. Write for our free book, "Before Baby Is Born," finely illustrated. For married women only.

Woman and the Jewish Talmud.

The Jewish Talmud has these sentences about women: "A good wife is heaven's noblest gift. A housewife never allows herself to be disturbed from her work; even while conversing she is busily spinning. An old, experienced woman in a household is an ornament to it like a pearl. He who lives in an unmarried state knows no joys, none of the blessings of home, and is without support. The man who stands at the deathbed of his wife feels like those who saw the temple of Jerusalem reduced to ashes, for the wife is the temple in which each man finds repose and quiet, where he rests after the labors of the day, and where he can give expression to his feelings, joyful and mournful. God has given to women more ability of judging correctly than a man."

THE EXCITED MAN.

Why His Efforts to Calm the Passengers Were Unappreciated.

"Some funny situations occasionally arise from sudden cases of real or apparent danger," remarked a much-traveled Philadelphian one day recently, "an illustration of which fact came under my observation on a crowded steambot. The time was night, and some big excursion party was on board. All at once the boat began to careen from side to side in a way that alarmed even me, accustomed as I was to queer antics of water craft, but because of the many women and children on board I kept my alarm to myself.

"It wasn't so with others who noticed the boat's rocking, however, and pretty soon everybody was frantically fastening on life preservers. I mean everybody who could get them, for the boat was equipped with only about half enough to go around. Then there followed a scene of the wildest confusion. Women were crying and shrieking. Some of them were holding their babies. In the midst of it all the captain appeared. Coming up to a little group of which I was one, and the members of which were outwardly calm, he assured us that there was really no danger and asked us if we would quietly mingle with the people and endeavor to restore quiet. Of course we consented. But that wasn't the funny part. Standing near enough to overhear our conversation was an excited individual of middle age. When we started on our missionary work, he thought it his duty to help, and half a minute later he was hard at work in the cabin telling the women to stop their crying, for the boat was all right. He didn't seem to have much success, however, and I wondered at it until I saw him stop in front of a grim visaged, middle-aged woman who had been unable to get hold of a life preserver.

"Be calm, madam, be calm," he exclaimed, "there is no danger whatever, and the boat will get to shore all right."

"The woman looked the fellow over scornfully.

"If you are so sure of that," she retorted, "then give me one of those two life preservers you are hanging on to so tight."

"Sure enough, although I hadn't noticed it before, the man had been carrying a life preserver in each hand in addition to the one he wore around his waist all the time he was energetically assuring the weeping women that there was no danger. The thing was so absurd that I and two or three others who took it all in burst out laughing, which had as much to do with restoring quiet as anything else. Half an hour later the boat landed right side up with care, and we saw no more of the man with the three life preservers."—Philadelphia Inquirer.
