Yacht racing is a mighty uncertain sport.

Is the American public as fickle as the French? The way Dewey, the hero of yesterday is criticised today would seem to indicate that it is.

To those possessed of feisure and a good horse these have been ideal days. The drives around Asheville never better order. The bright tints and hazy atmosphere of October delight the eye, and the Good Roads association have done much to put these delights in easy reach. Nothing can be prettier than the White Fawn drive, for instance. The woods are brilliant with the scarlet of sumac and sourwood, the yellows of maple and the purples of oak, mingled with a hundred shades of green, from the deepest gloom of the pines to the bright yellow greens of the shrubs. Wild asters, Michaelmas daisies and golden rod still deck the wayside, and through the gaps in the foliage the blue of distant mountains gleam until, when one has wound his way up the gentle ascent to the turn, a panorama of open country on each side bursts into view. Asheville dies at his feet on one side, with its background of rolling hills and lofty mountains, Kenilworth's picturesque pile rises at the right and Biltmore gleams like a fairy palace in the distance, while on the other side is spread a beautiful, sheltered valley of farms and nestling firm houses. Rounding the turn, the descent is made through an enchanting landscape, glorified by autumn foliage. On a crisp, sunny morning, such a drive is one to be :emembered and to bring joy and appetite to any one. It, too, is only one of many drives of equal beauty that Asheville offens to her denizens or the sojourner within her gates, and no one who has not taken these drives can claim to know Asheville's charms.

SQUELCHING There are so many SAVAGE wars and rumors of FREEDOM. wars that call for ed-

Yet the war Mexico is now about to wage with the Maya Indians in Yucatan, as the Gazette sees it. deserves some notice. Ever since the youthful days when we read Stephens' travels in Yucatan and viewed the pictures of the ruined temples perched on pyramids, we have felt an interest in this land of fevers and sandflies and jungles and Indians that was once covered with stone cities and paved roads amounted to $998,199.84. The newest and latest plan or scheme of the postoffice department is a doorto-door registration of mail. In other words, after January 1, according to the announcement, a mail carrier can take up your registered letter or package at your home instead of making you go to the postoffice. A ruling, some time ago allows the carriers to deliver registered letitors and take receipts for them. The new system could be installed by December 1, but owing to the rush of business during the holidays, the view is taken that the carriers and general public, being unaccustomed to its workings, there would be unnecessary delay and confusion. The system will at first be instituted in all grades of postoffices throughout the country. The haree small and medium offices will be tried. and the extension of the service will be made as fast as practicable. For the fiscal year ending June 10, 1898, there were over 15,000,000 pieces of registered mail matter handled by the postoffice department, and the revenue derived
