Options have been obtained on the water power of Haw river for several miles above Bynum, and it is hoped that a sale may be made at an early day to a company that will put up a large factory.—Chatham Record.

A Courier representative in his rounds this week saw five pieces of gold, amounting to about $7, which was found in the gizzard of a chicken recently killed by Mrs. A. G. Murdock, of Franklinville.—Ashboro Courier.

A colored boy was brought here a few days ago charged with illicit distilling. His father came to the trial last Monday to try and get his boy out of jail. Result: The boy and old man were both bound over to the federal court, and in default of bail both had to go to jail.—Chatham Citizen.

Last Thursday evening Mr. Raymond Moose's horse broke loose from a tree to which it was hitched in front of the house and ran into Mr. P. A. Hoyle's wire fence and was killed. The fence is not barbed. The horse was thrown down and it is supposed that the force of the fall killed it.—Newton Enterprise.

Officers have been advised to look out for Mack Fesperman, the negro who deliberately shot and killed his wife in Charlotte. Fifty dollars reward has been offered for his arrest and it is believed that he will be arrested in a few days. His mother says she believes he will commit suicide before his capture is effected.—Salisbury Sun.

Lillie, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington Bedingfield, died Saturday of last week of bone erysipelas in the ankle. She was ill only four days. No serious consequences were apprehended until the day of her death, as it was thought she had only sprained her ankle. The interment was at Mt. Page Sunday.—Hendersonville Times.

Lexington is to have another cotton mill. The factory is to have a capital stock of $200,000. Of this amount $75,000 was subscribed last night. A committee was appointed to give the people of the town and county an opportunity to secure $50,000 worth of stock and the remaining $75,000 can be easily raised among our business men.—Lexington Dispatch.

An exchange states that a single walnut tree in Watauga county recently brought $1,100. North Carolina has immense wealth in her forests. Our hard woods are especially adapted to the manufacture of furniture, and through we make a good deal at present the industry is only in its infancy. High Point, Lexington, Hickory, Lenoir and Marion manufacture a great deal of furniture now and ship their products all over the country. The furniture factories are becoming more numerous year after year.

There are now three silver mines in North Carolina. Mr. Bruner, secretary of agriculture, says that the silver mines in this state now in operation are at Silver Hill and Silver Valley in Davidson county and at Troutman, in Rowan. Fine native silver nuggets, some of them weighing half a pound, are being taken from the mine of the West Prussian Mining company, limited, at Silver Hill. The shaft at this mine is 800 feet deep. This is not a new mine, but was worked before the war. During the civil war it was worked by the confederate government. This mine carries silver, lead and zinc, and during the war bullets were made from the natural run of the mine and thus it was that many bullets used in the confederate army contained a large amount of silver as well as lead and zinc.—Raleigh Times-Visitor.

FOUR MOUNTAIN LIONS.

A Prospector's Sensations When He Thinks His Hair Stood on End.

"Twice in my life, up to five years ago, I had felt my hair crawl," said the prospector, "but, as to its standing on end, I didn't believe such a thing possible. I was knocking about in the mountains of Idaho with a partner when I went out alone one day to pop over some game for the dinner pot. I had gone a mile or more from camp and had descended to the bottom of a ravine to get a drink of water when I turned the top of a fallen tree and ran plump against as pretty a sight as you ever saw. On a grassy spot, in the full blaze of the sun, lay four mountain lions fast asleep. For half a minute I thought them dead, but as I stood staring with my mouth open every one of the four sprang up with a growl. I had a Winchester in my hands, but I could no more have lifted it to my face than I could have uprooted the mountain. The first sensation I had caught me in the ankles. It was a numbness, as if my feet were asleep, and it traveled upward until I stood there like a block of ice. Only my brain was left clear. On top of the numbness came a feeling that I was breaking out with a rash. Then the hair at the back of my neck began to curl and twist and crackle, and a minute later every hair on my head was on end. I had on a soft felt hat, and I am sure that that was lifted up an inch or two.

"As to the lions, they stood there, head on to me and sniffling and growling and switching their tails, and had I but moved a finger they would have been on me. I didn't move because I couldn't. I don't believe I moved an eyelash for three minutes. By and by one of the beasts dropped his tail and whined. My unexpected presence and queer appearance mystified him. His actions were followed by another, and ten seconds later the four made a sneak down the ravine, growling and whining as they went. They had been gone a minute before I felt my blood circulating again, and perhaps it was another minute before I could move about. Then I found my hat on the ground at my feet. There wasn't a breath of wind down there, and if my hat didn't lift that hat off my head how did it leave it? I know the hat was pushed off. I know it, because when I got back to camp my hair hadn't yet flattened down, and when my chum rubbed his hand over my head there was a crackling as of a rabbit running through the dry brush. This state of things continued for two days, and the way I finally got the scare out of the hair was to rub on about a pint of coon's fat and heat it at the camp fire."—New York Sun.
