There is considerable question about the status of the republican members who drew up the agreement. The democrats insist that they treated with them as authorized representatives of Governor Taylor. The latter asserts that he never authorized any one to

Some republicans declare that it would be an act of cowardice for the governor to sign the agreement. They say he owes a duty to the people who elected him, and a practical surrender of his office, as proposed, would be a violation of that duty. On the other hand, the agreement having been signshall, lieutenant governor under Taysign, he would rob himself and his party of all public sympathy, and in the event of bloodshed, that any justice that the cause might have would

AT GOEBEL'S FUNERAL Covington, Feb. 6 .- There was an mpressive scene at the railroad station when Goebel's remains arrived today. Almost every store in the city was closed. All the public buildings were draped in black. Fully 5,000 people were awaiting the arrival of the funeral train. As the funeral cortege passed heads were uncovered. The Odd Fellows' hall, where the remains were placed, was heavily draped. There were numerous beautiful floral offerings on the stage. The casket was placed in the center of the hall. Rev. Mr. Schmidt, the pastor of St. a number of chairs and a bundle of TEAS.

Marshall, N. C., Feb. 6 .- Hon. Robert D. Gilmer of Waynesville spoke here this afternoon in support of the proposed constitutional amendment. He made a strong speech for his side, and labored hard to show that the amendment would be for the best interest .of the people, but the grizzly farmers shook their heads in dissent. His speech fell flat, so far as making votes for the amendment is concerned. Many democrats were heard to express their bitter opposition to the proposed disfranchising measure. Mr. Gilmer's speech has done more to arouse our people against the amendment than anything that has happened here since the agitation of the question. There

DANGERS

Mr. Butler supported the resolution declaring that certain proposed amendments to the constitution of North Carolina was in contravention of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments' to the constitution of the United States. He discussed the matter from a constitutional standpoint, and said: "The voters of North Carolina are intelligent enough to know there is no grave, if not certain, danger to the 60,000 white voters in the amendment known as the 'grandfather'' clause, but they also know that if this amendment were adopted and section five eliminated, no power under heaven could restore to these voters their ballot. By amending the constitution these 60,000 voters are intelligent enough to know that when once disfranchised they would have no vote to change the amendment and help wipe out the wrong."

He denounced the whole scheme, saying it was fraught with danger and that it tended to put the south in . false and unenviable position.

At the conclusion of Butler's speech it was arranged to take up the financial bill each day after the routine business. Notices were given of several amendments to the bill. One provided that nothing in the bill should operate against the renewal of efforts to secure international bimetallism, Sad Scene in Judge Timberlake's Court another that the gold dollar of 25.8 grains and the silver dollar of 412.5 grains shall be the unit of value, and still another that nothing in the bill shall effect the present legal tender quality of the cilver dollar.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, Feb. 6 .- Today's session in the house was almost wholly given to a discussion of the question of expansion, being in committee of the whole upon the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Wilson of Tennessee considered the subject historically, asserting it had been the policy of the English-speaking people of America from the first.

Williams of Mississippi and Morris of Minnesota discussed the constitutional phases, the former maintaining that the United States could not acquire territory without extending the constitution and its guarantee over it and the inhabitants thereof, and the alatter contended that the United States could do any act that any other sovereign nation could. Other speakers were Messrs. William Allen Smith, H. C. Smith of Michigan and Neville of Nebraska. This concluded the general debate on the bill and it will be considered tomorrow by paragraphs for
