Pritchard and Linney's Visit to Lynn—The Dockery-Bellamy Case.

Gazette Bureau, Washington, March 15. The newspapers of Boston, Lynn and other cities, which were received here last night, were found to contain elaborate and most complimentary reports of the republican rally held at the last named city.

Senator Pritchard, of North Carolina, and Congressman Linney, of the same state, with Congressman Roberts, of the Seventh Massachusetts district, were the principal speakers, and to each was accorded an enthusiastic reception, when introduced by the toastmaster, Senator Howard K. Henderson.

"More than four hundred persons were present, the gallery being occupied by women and their escorts. The hall was profusely decorated and the banquet was one of the most successful ever held in the city.

"The visiting statesmen held a reception at the mayor's office, city hall, early in the evening and were there met by several hundred prominent men. Afterward they were taken directly to the hall.

BROWN'S IN TOWN

"One unending laugh," is the way the management describes the new farce, "Brown's in Town," which will be seen at the Grand next Tuesday night.

The latest farcical effusion, which has them entirely different from anything yet seen here on that order, was written for the sole purpose of amusing the theatre-going public, and the amusement is created in a logical and reasonable manner.

"Do you know," she said, "that every time I look at you I have thoughts of revenge?" "Why?" she gasped.

"An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions.

"We might just as well come to an understanding right now," said the angry husband. "It's hard for you to hear the truth, especially from me, but—"

"Indeed it is," interrupted the patient wife. "I hear it so seldom."—Chicago News.

MUSIC FESTIVAL NOTES.

Schubert's Unfinished Symphony in B Minor Which Will be Given.

The more one studies the magnitude of the approaching music festival and the highly artistic character of those taking part in it the more evident it becomes that the citizens of Asheville have in store a rare treat.

Let it never be said again either by visitor or by citizen that nothing good in the way of entertainments ever comes to Asheville. The best the country affords will be here the 21st and 22d of March.

Now let us prove our appreciation for best by crowding the opera house to the utmost. May it never be said that our fair little sister, Spartanburg, can have these festivals, but that Asheville, cultured Asheville, the city that is set upon a hill and because of her beauty and culture is inviting all people to come and behold and linger among us, cannot attain to anything so high.

The orchestra will render Schubert's "Symphony, B minor (unfinished)." One of the most lamentable misfortunes in all music is the incomplete state in which the composer left this beautiful symphony.

As he is known to have afterwards composed one more (the great C Major Symphony), and since it is further believed that he wrote still another, the manuscript of which, unhappily, has disappeared. The score of the B Minor Symphony—published in 1867 and brought to this country and first performed by Mr. Thomas, who chanced to hear it while in Vienna—comprises the opening Allegro and the Andante movements, and nine measures of what was to have been its third movement.

The first movement opens, without preamble, with a dreamy, mysterious unison passage given out, pianissimo, by the cellos and basses in octaves. The violins enter at the ninth measure with a trembling, restless figure, which forms the background for the plaintive, wailing melody which the oboe and clarinet bring in four measures further on.

Like the indistinct visions of a dream this wavering, wandering figure continues until, after a long sustained tone in the bassoons and horns, the sleeper seems to heave a deep sigh of relief as the dream pictures shift to a pleasanter and more restful vision.

The development (drawn almost entirely from the opening theme) is very extended and ornate, and a short coda concludes the movement. The second and, regrettably, the last movement is of vast length and teems with beautiful melody. It opens with a theme in the strings, punctuated at intervals by entrances of the wind instruments. The second theme is announced by the clarinet against a syncopated string accompaniment. The movement closes with a brief coda, constructed largely from fragments of its principal themes.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases and got no permanent relief.

About one year ago, the disease assuming a more serious and dangerous form, I became very weak and lost flesh rapidly. I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. From Deep Sorrow to Great Joy

What Mother's Love and Tender Care Failed to Accomplish Hood's Sarsaparilla Promptly Effected.

"I would cry every time I washed my baby!" This plaintive sentence tells a volume of mother's agony. In such a dreadful condition from eruptions and sores, Mrs. Guerinet's child received the tenderest care that mother's love could give, and the most skillful medical attendance that father's means could provide.

"My baby was three months old when festers broke out on his neck. The openings appeared like boils, spread down his back and along the spinal column until it appeared as one mass of sores. Our doctor prescribed for the case, but the disease spread and the little one's sufferings increased and he became a mere shadow. His pitiful wailing was heart-rending. It nearly crazed me, weary and worn-out as I was from constant watching and nursing. The discharge of matter was so profuse that it was necessary to dress his back three times a day. Every time the bandages were removed blood would flow and for a time even powders and different salves did not check the trouble. It became necessary to wrap the little body in silk. When the trouble appeared at its height our anxiety was increased by the appearance of a boil just outside the lid alongside one of his eyes. We feared lest the scrofulous matter get into the eye, and even if his life was spared to us, that his sight would become affected.

"I cannot begin to express my gratitude towards Hood's Sarsaparilla and your other medicines for the good they accomplished in my baby's case." Mrs. N. GUERINET, 37 Myrtle St., Rochester, N. Y.

gave the infant the smallest dose of the Sarsaparilla prescribed, and then took off the bandages and washed the mass of sores with the Medicated Soap. Next I applied the Olive Ointment and adjusted a fresh wrapping of silk. A change was noticeable the next Sunday, giving assurance that we had at last hit upon the treatment to successfully battle the poisonous blood. Slowly but with a perceptible gain, the discharge grew less, the inflammation disappeared, the surrounding skin took on a more healthy color, and what a short time before had been a mass of raw flesh began to scale over and gradually a thin skin formed and the scales dropped off. Not a scar or blemish around the eye, neck or back or anywhere on his body is to be found, and now at eight months old he is as bright, healthy, and full grown as any child of that age. Less than two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, aided by Hood's Medicated Soap and Hood's Olive Ointment, accomplished this wonderful cure.

For the cure of all blood diseases and Spring Humors, Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled. Try it.

THIS BIG GUN HAS BEEN DRAGGED FROM LADYSMITH TO THE HILLS THAT GUARD THE TUGELA.

Squirrels and Turkey Calls. Did it ever occur to you to use a turkey call in squirrel hunting? I once had three gray squirrels up a large gum tree and had tried to slip up to them, but they saw me and hid. I went up as close to the tree as I wanted and sat down to wait for them to come out. I sat there 20 or 30 minutes, and they did not move that I could see. I was in a fairly good turkey country and so got out my turkey call and made a few calls, and in less than two minutes all three squirrels were in sight, and in a good deal less time they were all mine on the ground. I take it that they thought that if it was safe for a turkey to be calling they were in no danger. I would like to know if any one else ever had a like experience, and if I ever get in a like situation I will make experiments until I am satisfied.—Forest and Stream.
