The Philippine Language.

William R. Walters, who is serving in the Philippines, tells this story: Some very amusing affairs take place between our soldiers and the Chinese merchants, owing to the inability of the Americans to "sabee" the Oriental language. During that part of the fighting which is known in our ranks as "the loot of Tondon," I saw a corporal of the Twenty-third regulars rake a small safe out of some ruins after a fire. Finding it to be empty, he started away with it under his arm. Before he had gone very far he met a Chinese merchant, to whom he undertook to sell the plundered safe.

"Looker here, John, how muchee you give for safee? Bellee nicee. Muccho wano safee?" says the corporal with much gesticulation and contortion. "I really don't need a safe," quietly replied the benighted Chinaman, "but I suppose you boys need some beer money, so what do you say to $1 for it?"—Rochester Democrat.

BLOOD POISON CURED BY B. B. B. Bottle Free to Sufferers.

Deep seated, obstinate cases, the kind that have resisted doctors, hot springs and patent medicine treatment, quickly yield to B. B. B. (Botanico Blood Balm), thoroughly tested for 30 years. Have you mucous patches in the mouth? Sore throat? Eruptions? Itching sores? Bone Pains? Itching skin? Swollen glands? Stiff joints? Copper colored spots? Chaperes? Ulceration on the body? Hair and eyebrows falling out? Is the skin a mass of boils, pimples and ulcers? Then this wonderful B. B. B. specific will completely change the whole body into a clean, and skin smooth with the glow of perfect health. B. B. B. drains the poison out of the system so the symptoms do not return. At the same time B. B. B. builds up the broken down constitution and improves the digestion. So sufferers may say: "B. B. B. a trial bottle will be given away free of charge."

B. B. B. for sale by druggists at 21 per large bottle, 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. Com see directions with each bottle. For trial bottle, address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga. Describe trouble and free medical advice given.

A HAPPY ENDING

"Well, I'm glad that some one has bought Judge Harmon's old place at last," said John Saunders, as he finished his cup of tea.

His sister looked up. "Hetty spoke of it the other day, but did not know if the rumor was true. Who is the purchaser? Do you know?"

"Somebody from the city. They say he's rich, and will spend his summers here. It will make quite a difference in the village when those shutters are taken down. It seems the Judge is going to remain in Bermuda permanently, the climate agrees so well with him. Well, I must be off to the store if I wish to get back before dark," and away John went whistling out of the door and down the road.

His sister busied herself clearing away the supper table and washing the dishes, and when her work was ended sat down on the chair in the ivy-covered porch to read the latest magazine, but its contents did not interest her, and her thoughts were busy with the past.

Cynthia Saunders was an old maid. She was tall, somewhat angular and not at all good-looking, but there was something very attractive in her countenance, "the goodness shining through," as one of her neighbors expressed it, which made her the friend of every one she came in contact with, and the idol of the village school, where she had labored faithfully so many years.

Cynthia had had her romance, an experience which had saddened her whole life, and as she sat thinking of the past her mind wandered back to that summer day twelve years before—twelve years that very day, it occurred to her then—when Frank Hendrick had parted with her at the gate. She could see him now as he strode down the road in anger.

It was only a lover's quarrel, a trifle, but both were obstinate, and as a result the estrangement had become permanent. A few weeks after that eventful evening she had heard the remark from some gossip in the village street that Frank Hendricks was going away. He had disposed of his business and would leave in a few days for the city.

At last the day came when she heard of his departure, and after one outbreak of grief, Cynthia had made up her mind to banish him from her thoughts and live her life without him.

Years had gone by. She had been too busy with her school and home work to be very unhappy, but she could not forget, and the news of the sale of the Judge's house had opened the wound in her heart afresh. How often had Frank said to her that some day he would buy the old place, the handsomest in Blairsville—some day when he had become rich—and how happy they would be then.

Often she had thought that she hated him for his desertion, his cruelty to her, but at that moment she acknowledged the truth, and not to herself alone—"I love him still." Inadvertently she spoke the words aloud.

"Then you will forgive me, Cynthia," said a voice. She looked up. Frank Hendricks stood before her, older, with hair slightly gray, she could see in the gathering twilight, but unmistakably Frank.

One moment she hesitated, then threw herself into her lover's arms.

"How could you be so cruel not to let me hear a word from you in all these years?"

"But there must be some mistake. I wrote you many times, twice even before I left Blairsville, until your silence forced me to believe that you no longer cared to hear from me."

"I never received a letter, Frank. Some one has treated us most cruelly."

CYNTHIA LOOKED UP.

"Then I will have the matter investigated and that some one shall suffer. But Cynthia, let us not grieve too much about the past. Do you know it was the old Judge's house that brought me back to you? I saw it advertised for sale and bought it simply to prevent it from passing into the hands of any one else, after all our day dreams of long ago; and as I came up this afternoon on the train I decided to see you once more. That is how I came to be here, and now let us forget the past. We have both suffered, but all's well that ends well."—Boston Post.

WINE OF CARDUI

HEALTHY OLD AGE.

LARUS, BENTON CO. ARK., Aug. 4. I am 69 years old and have been suffering with Chronic Life. I had flooding spells so bad that none thought I could live. My husband got me Wine of Cardui and it saved my life. I am like another person since taking it.

MRS. E. B. TOWNSEND.

Wine of Cardui

It is the devout wish of nearly all people to live to a ripe old age. None of us want to die young. This universal desire can be realized if care be taken of the health in early and middle life. A little precaution then will add many years to our existence. Death can be kept away a long time. Happy, healthy old age will be the lot of the woman who promptly corrects the ailments which afflict her sex. In youth, Wine of Cardui will take the female child safely over the dividing line between girlhood and womanhood. As a wife she needs it to help her through the trials of pregnancy and childbirth with as little discomfort as possible. At the Change of Life it will help her over the dangerous place that appears in her pathway between 40 and 50. Then will come many years of truly blissful existence. She will grow old slowly and gracefully. To the last she will preserve that charm and beauty which are always characteristic of perfectly healthy grandmothers.

ALIENS IN JAPAN

How They will Be Affected by the New Decree.

Over 1,000 citizens of the United States, 2,000 Englishmen and about 1,000 Germans and French citizens will be directly affected by the new order of things in Japan, by which extra-territoriality disappears and foreign residents are made subject to the laws and business regulations of that empire. Fully 5,000 of the 10,000 foreigners now residing in Japan will be thus affected by this feature of the fifteen new treaties which have abandoned consular courts and extra-territoriality and made the citizens of the fifteen countries in question subject to the laws of Japan when residing in that country.

It is interesting to observe that the disposition of the Japanese is apparently to look almost exclusively to the United States in educational matters, as the total number of Japanese students residing abroad, as shown by the census figures, was 2,465, and of this number 2,178 were in the United States, 129 in Germany, 47 in Russia and Russian colonies, 46 in England, and English colonies, 21 in China, 14 in Korea and 10 in France.

The commercial relations between Japan and the United States differ materially from those of many other countries. While our total exports largely exceed our total imports, the conditions are reversed in our commerce with Japan, as our imports from that country greatly exceed our exports to it. This is due to the fact that Japan is the producer of certain articles absolutely required in the United States, and which cannot, or at present are not, produced in this country. Of raw silk for our manufacturers our imports from Japan in the year just ended amounted in round numbers to $15,000,000, or nearly as much as our total exports to that country, while practically one-half of our tea imported was also from Japan, the total from that country during the year being over $4,000,000. Of rice the imports range in the vicinity of a half-million dollars; fax, hemp and jute for manufacturing in round terms a half-million dollars, while manufacturers of silk from Japan range between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 annually. Japanese official figures show that the exports from that country to the United States were in 1898 47,311,154 yen and her imports from the United States 40,001,087 yen. An examination of the total figures for 1898 shows that Japan's trade with the United States is larger than that with any other country, the exports to the United States being 47,311,154 yen, against 30,473,895 to Hong Kong, 20,198,175 to China, 20,494,406 to France and 7,783,643 to the United Kingdom; while the imports from the United States were 40,001,087 yen, against 62,707,572 from the United Kingdom, 40,764,244 from British East Indies 30,523,860 from China and 25,610,961 yen from Germany.

WOULD NOT SUFFER SO AGAIN FOR FIFTY TIMES ITS PRICE.

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It worked like magic and one dose fixed me all right. It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my home hereafter, for I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price.—G. H. Wilson, Haverman, Burgattstown, Washington county, Pa. This remedy is for sale by C. A. Raysor, druggist.

Dewey on Discipline.

"Dewey" said an old friend of his the other day, "is a man with an ideal, and he has lived up to it nearer than most men. His first ambition is to do the duty before him with all his strength and all his might. Long ago, when he was only a subaltern, one of his shipmates said to him: 'Look here, Dewey, if you don't let up a bit on your all-fired discipline you'll have all the crew down on you, sure enough.' 'I shall be very sorry for that,' responded the young officer, 'but it will not deter me from doing what I know is expected of me.' 'Go on,' replied his companion, 'but you're going to be unpopular. His colleague's prediction did not come true, however. There is no officer in the Navy who is more esteemed and respected by his men; yet he has invariably kept them up to the highest state of discipline. He has at the same time treated them as men, sympathized with them, looked out for their welfare and stretched a point now and then to let them have a good time.'—New York Tribune.

Neglect is the short step so many take from a cough or cold to consumption. The early use of One Minute Cough Cure prevents consumption. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results.
